NOT SANCTIONED BY HARRY THAW

Is the Payment of the $25,000 Hush Money

EXPENDED BY ONE OF HIS ATTORNEYS

Hartridge, Himself, Admits This on the Stand.

The Attorney Also States That He Believes That He Has Lost the Book in Which He Kept Account of the Disbursements — Harry Thaw Goes on the Stand Again This Afternoon.

Court-house, White Plains, N. Y., July 29.—That Harry K. Thaw did not sanction or order vast expenditures of "hush money" to 200 girls mentioned by Mrs Merrill was admitted today by Clifford W Hartridge, former attorney for Thaw, who was on the stand all morning at the Thaw sanity proceedings before Justice Mills.

Mrs. Susan Merril, who declares she paid out as much as $25,000 for Thaw at Hartridge's dictation, said she gave her acount books to Hartridge. Hartridge explained today that he could not find the books, and believed they had been lost. He admitted, however, that of the money he is said to have paid as "hush money," only a "very small sum" was paid at Thaw's request, and this was paid to Mrs. Merrill herself and not to any one of the 200 girls.

Thaw was restless all the morning. He was eager to get back on the stand after his apparent victory over Jerome in yesterday's tilt of brains. But his attorney entered into so many objections to the testimony of Hartridge that the entire morning session of the court was spent with Thaw's former counsel on the witness stand.

"Insane" Man Wins.

White Plains, N. Y., July 29.—A sane man and a legally insane man fought a battle of wits here yesterday, and the "insane" man won, so jubilant over the successes of yesterday, Harry Thaw faced his ancient enemy, William Travers Jerome, today, eager to continue the ordeal. Every one who saw Thaw and heard his testimony is astounded at his ready wit and keen logic. His relatives and counsel are enthusiastically certain that his release is but a matter of days.

Jerome, however, entered the court-room with three bags of documents today prepared to keep up the battle of the brains.

Yesterday Jerome was so astounded by the mental poise of Thaw that he begged the witness to submit to a private examination by alienists. Thaw insisted that the public examination proceed.

Thaw has indicated that his attitude toward the charges of pervert practices, made by Mrs. Susan A. Merril, will be a total denial. He has already said the same charges were made by others in an attempt to blackmail him.

Despite a broiling heat, the court-room was packed with women. Justice Mills, before opening court, warned the spectators that there must be no more applause, as on yesterday.

Hartridge on Stand.

Before recalling Thaw, Attorney Morschauser recalled Clifford W. Hartridge, who was under subpoena to produce the books which Mrs. Susan Merrill claims she gave him to show how she had paid vas sums as "hush money" to 200 girls. Hartridge said he had made a careful search for the books, but had been unable to find them. Morschauser then gave up his attempt to get the books and began questioning Hartridge about his suit against Mrs. Thaw for $125,000 counsel fee.

That $125,000 also covered "expenses" Hartridge claims he incurred. He said the books were not important in that suit.

Jerome then asked Hartridge for certain writings of Thaw, given by the prisoner to Hartridge when he was acting at Thaw's counsel. Morschauser objected on the ground that they were privileged communications between counsel and client, but Justice Mills allowed them marked for identification, pending his decision as to their admissibility. These writings, Jerome hinted, concerned the charges that Mrs. Merril makes about the use of a dog whip on girls by Thaw.

Possibly Destroyed.

Jerome then asked about the missing Merril books and Hartridge admitted that they might have been destroyed. Jerome asked their contents.

"They were statements of money expended for me by Mrs. Merrill."

"Your own money?"

Morschauser objected, and was sustained.

Jerome then tried to make Hartridge admit that Thaw authorized the payments, but the best he could get was a reluctant statement from Hartridge that Thaw had written to him on the subject.

Justice Mills a few moments later, allowed one of the writings admitted as evidence. It read: "Mrs. S. Merrill: "Mr. Reid says: 'Say nothing.'"

"Thaw told me to see the woman and tell her to keep quiet about his living at her house and his actions there," said Hartridge, who said he had visited Mrs. Merrill several times and that he had discussed his visits with Thaw.

To Keep Quiet.

"I gathered from what Thaw told me that I was to ask Mrs. Merrill to keep quiet and to keep every one else quiet, too."

"Did Thaw tell you to pay the money?"

"I don't think Thaw ever gave me any money, except perhaps some very small sums for Mrs Merrill."

"Did Thaw tell you to do anything else with the money?"

"Yes, to secure certain letters addressed to 'Mr. Reid' which were at the house of Mrs. Merrill."

Hartridge said he would produce these letters when he could find them.

Hartridge ther said he secured the letters on notes written by Thaw, ordering that fifty letters be given to the bearer. The letter was read. It was signed by Reid, 140 west Thirty-Sixth street."

Hartridge said a letter signed by Thaw would have been useless in getting the letters

The Whip Matter.

Hartridge, along this line, told of a telegram Thaw sent him, in which he told Hartridge to send Roger O'Mara to Pittsburg to secure two tin boxes belonging to Thaw from a "Miss Bell." Thaw, he said, also telegraphed to "Miss Bell," telling her to let O'Mara "get some things."

"Did Thaw ever tell you to go to any woman and get a whip"

"No."

Hartridge said Thaw had instructed him to write to Ethel Thomas about the alleged "Hummel blackmailing scheme" Hartridge promised to produce the letters.

Thaw's attorney objected strenuously as paper after paper was produced by Hartridge and marked in evidence. Morschauser declared all these documents were the confidential documents between client and attorney. These delays lengthened Hartridge's testimony far beyond the time expected, and Thaw, impatient to resume the stand, moved restlessly about in his chair.

Jerome then read a number of letters from Thaw to Hartridge, discussing the Thomas suit.

Never Saw "Mrs. Reid."

"Did you ever see a 'Mrs. Reid' at the dictation of Thaw?"

"No."

"Did you ever see a "Mrs. Reid' at Mrs. Merrill's?"

This was objected to, and Justice Mill's sustained Morschauser.

After placing in evidence a letter from Thaw to Hartridge, ordering him to "have Mrs. D. Dix, No. 1116 Broadway, keep quiet about 'Evelyn' having a flat there, when I took her there," Jerome turned the witness over to Morschauser, who attacked Hartridge vehemently for producing

STATEMENT OF THE ALLEGED PERSECUTOR

My examination of Harry K. Thaw has just begun. I propose to question him closely on every detail of his trials for the killing of Stanford White, and, if necessary, on every detail of the thirty-eight years of his life. I shall settle, once and for all, the question of his sanity, if I have to keep him on the stand for a week.—William Travers Jerome.

STATEMENT MADE BY ALLEGED PERSECUTED

I am confident I can withstand any cross-examination of Jerome. Yesterday proved that, I think. I don't care how long he keeps me there. I am satisfied I can prove to Justice Mills that I am absolutely sane. This is my first opportunity to do something for myself in my battle for life and liberty, which has lasted for three years.—Harry K. Thaw.

RETREAT INTO FORTIFICATIONS

Under Guns of the Warship in Melilla Harbor.

ALL THE OUTPOSTS ABANDONED TODAY

Moors Encouraged by Death of General Pinto.

Spanish Gunboat Captures a Blockade Runner Which Is Loaded with Thousands of Rifles of the Latest Design and Hundreds of Thousands of Rounds of Ammunition. Evening Up for Dum-Dums.

Gibraltar, July 29.—A semi-official message that has just been received from Melilla declares that the Spaniards lost 1,000 in killed and 2,500 in wounded in the terrible fighting around Melilla, in which they were driven from their outposts and compelled to retreat to the very fortifications of Melilla for safety. It is said that unless reinforcements arrive very shortly their condition will be precarious.

A despatch from General Marinas says:

"On July 27, the Moors destroyed our railroad communications with our outposts. We shelled the Moors with our batteries, but we had to abandon our advance posts. The situation at Melilla is grave, despite the bravery of the troops, who are fighting under the walls of the city. We lost in Tuesday's engagement, General Pintos, a colonel, two lieutenants, five captains, many officers and subalterns and about 1,000 men. The wounded numbered at least 2,500 men, including many officers. The hippodrome is full of wounded soldiers. Two generals were mortally wounded."

The officers led their men with the most desperate courage which accounts for the unusually large death list among them. They were, however, deplorably ignorant of the methods of Moorish warfare, and recklessly threw their lives away.

Moors Lose 5,000.

It is believed that the Moors lost fully 5,000 in this battle. They were mowed down with frightful rapidity by the Spanish artillery.

In yesterday's fighting the Spanish loss was increased by 450 further casualties. The appalling proportion of the dead to the injured is due to the fact that the Moors are butchering all the wounded whom they capture.

The sides of the neighboring hills are stacked with bodies, among which are a number of helplessly injured. Jackals and carrion birds are making the victims their prey.

The position of the Spanish soldiers in the outposts which this main body of troops tried so unsuccessfully to relieve, is extremely critical. Unless the troops in Melilla can make a successful sortie, it will be impossible either to reinforce the outposts or to provision them, if they are still holding out, as the Moors have torn up every track connecting with the outposts.

Situation Serious.

Gibraltar, July 29.—Official news from Melilla received today shows that the besieged Spanish garrison is in a serious strait and has been compelled to retreat into the forts at Melilla under the guns of the Spanish warships in the harbor.

All the outposts previously held by the Spanish have been given up to the victorious Moors, and the Spaniards sorely pressed, rely upon the warships shells to save them from surrender or complete annihilation.

The news of the death of General Pinto, the brave Spanish general, who, under the orders of General Marinas, has been in personal command of all the active fighting on the outposts, has given heart to the Moorish besiegers, and they have charged the Spanish works again and again, despite their terrible losses from the machine gun fire of the Spaniards

Retreat Under Galling Fre.

So fierce have the Moorish rushes been that every outlying position the Spaniards had hold had to be given up, the Spaniards retreating under a galling fire. Though the Spaniards claim the Moorish losses have been terrible and seek to minimize their own losses, it is known that the Spaniards have suffered heavily in dead and wounded and that unless more reinforcements are rushed to the beleagured city, even the heavy guns of the war-ships will be unable

HARRY THAW'S LEGAL NEMESIS AND SCENE OF SANITY INQUIRY

Harry Thaw and his relatives and friends were keenly disappointed when they learned that District Attorney William T. Jerome had been called into the inquiry at White Plains, New York, into the sanity of the slayer of Stanford White. Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, mother of the prisoner, issued a pamphlet in which she criticised the zeal of Mr. Jerome as carrying him beyond the line of his duty in attempting to keep Thaw in a madhouse. Thaw's attorney, Charles Morchauser, said there was no legal way by which he could keep Jerome out of the case and that he would not try to do so if there was. He insisted that Mr. Jerome could bring out nothing more than the truth as to Thaw's condition, and that was what his client sought Thaw, however, has had a wholesome fear of Jerome ever since the first trial, and he was unable to conceal his disappointment when he heard that his old foe was coming into the case.

STANDARD UP TO ITS OLD TRICKS

BAIT OFFERED IS OIL CENT CHEAPER

The Hook Is Penalty for Use of Other Oil.

Although the Standard Gives the Retailer Oil One Cent Cheaper Than Home Companies, It Wants Clause Providing for Penalty of Seventy-Four Cents on Every Forty Gallons Purchased from Others.

London, July 29 —Great Britain is to go to war again, this time with the Standard Oil company. All efforts to patch up the old agreement between the American concern and its English competitors have failed, and the two sides are today resting under a truce which will expire within a short time.

Then the English companies must either come to the Standard's terms or engage in a rate war that threatens to be fought to the end. Indications today are that the English companies will fight.

The Anglo-American Oil company, which is the Standard in Great Britain, holds the strategic position, and is said to be anxious for the fight. The English concerns frankly say that they will be satisfied with peace that brings an equal division of the trade.

For years the American company, the Home Light company, and the British Petroleum company, both British concerns, have practically controlled the oil trade of England. Under the agreement entered into by them, the price of oil was maintained at a standard figure.

The Bait Offered.

Instead it offered the retailer a contract giving a reduction of one cent a gallon. The retailer would have welcomed he reduction, but for a clause in the contract imposing a penalty of seventy-four cents on every forty gallons of oil obtained from other sources

The Home Ligh and the British Petroleum rushed in with contracts offering the same reduction, but without the penalty clause and a rate war was launched.

The three companies declared a truce and agree to stop giving the retailers contracts for the present. They were, however, unable to agree on the future price. Should one company lower its price a gigantic rate war will be precipitated.

SPAIN ON VERGE OF REVOLUTION

Which May Sweep Alfonso from His Throne.

THE COUNTRY FACES A GREAT UPHEAVAL

King Greeted by a Storm of Jeers and Hisses,

When He Attempts To Appease the Wrath of the Populace by Appearing at a Window of the Palace. It May Be Necessary for Spanish Warships To Shell the City of Barcelona.

Madrid, via Frontier, July 29.—That Spain considers the revolutionary situation in Barcelona of even greater gravity than that in Morocco, was shown today by the despatch of the Third and Fourth army corps, two brigades of cavalry, two cruisers and three destroyers, to that city. Much of this military strength was to have been sent to Melilla, but the danger of a revolution at home was considered of greater gravity. All reserves have been summoned to the colors, and all of Spain's military forces will be mobolized at once. All garrisons have been ordered under arms.

Throne Is Tottering.

Madrid, via Frontier, July 29.—Spain is today on the verge of a revolution that threatens to sweep Alfonso from the throne and engulf the country in an upheaval equal to the French revolution of 1793.

All of today's developments, both at home and in Morocco, indicate that the government is rapidly losing its grip and it is now declared that foreign intervention alone can save Alfonso his throne. There is danger that the revolutionary wave has spread too far, even for this to suffice.

The disaffection in Madrid has reached the point where it is no longer safe for the king to venture from the palace. Crowds gathered in front of the palace today and shouted: "Down with the king."

Alfonso attempted to appease the wrath of the populace by appearing on one of the palace balconies, but a storm of hisses and jeers drove him inside.

Situation Is Unique.

Such a situation is unique in Alfonso's career. He has always been counted one of Spain's most-beloved rulers, and the feeling against him can be interpreted in no other way than that the entire nation has suddenly caught the spirit of revolution and of opposition to the war in Morocco.

Even former close supporters of the government are now becoming hostile owing to the government's attempt to suppress the news from Melilla. The public is demanding the resignation of the minister of the interior, who is called a "newspaper hater" and has threatened to arrest couriers coming from Barcelona.

It is expected that General Weyler, known for his barbarous rule in Cuba, will be appointed military dictator today, following yesterday's declaration of martial law throughout the country.

Troops Fortifying.

The situation at Barcelona continues desperate. Loyal troops—what few remain—are today fortifying themselves in the central barracks, awaiting the arrivel of the Third and Fourth army corps and two brigades of cavalry, commanded by Prince Charles de Bourbon The cruisers, Emperor Carlos V and Princess De Asturias, and three destroyers are also on the way to Barcelona under instructions to shell the town if the revolutionists do not cease their agitation. If the revolutionists are not speedily checked they themselves will complete the wreckage of the city. They are now declared to be in possession of practically the entire city and several important suburbs.

The latest buildings to be destroyed by the mobs are the beautiful Church of San Pablo and the great college, Des Escalaplos de San Antonio. The loss of these buildings are national disasters.

Prepare To Resist.

The revolutionists are preparing for a sturdy resistance to the reinforcements now enroute to Barcelona. Barricades made of earth and cement and one story in height have been thrown up in a number of streets and hundreds of well armed revolutionists now man these defenses.

The tramways of the city are completely out of commission today and most of the cars have been wrecked. The railways are also crippled, no train service being attempted.

The Socialists are working hand in hand with the revolutionists and anarchists. Pablo Iglesia, the Socialist leader, announces that all preparations for a general industrial strike have been completed and that the strike will be launched if the government carries out its threat to break up the anti-war meeting planned by the Socialists.

Outbreak at Saragossa.

The latest outbreak is reported at Saragossa, where women employes of the cotton mills went on strike and attacked the police. They were finally dispersed after the police had made free use of their clubs. The clash resulted in a number of casualties.

Hundreds of emissaries left Madrid and other revolutionary centers today to spread the revolutionary propaganda throughout the country. Already the entire provinces of Lerida, Gerona and Tarragona, including the important towns of Sabadell, Manresa, Tarrasa, Reus and Alcoy, are seriously affected with the revolutionary spirit and the entire industrial population of the provinces is distinctly anti-government.

A crutical moment will come when the reinforcements that are now enroute to Barcelona arrive.

The revolutionists declare that not more than ten per cent. of the government troops are loyal, and that the majority of them will refuse to fire on the strikers.

Spain's Last Stand.

London, July 29 —Spain is making her last stand against a revolution, in the opinion of English students of international affairs. She may succeed in putting down the present uprising without becoming involved in an actual revolution, but it is believed here that the revolutionary spirit has gained too much strength in the present disorders to be successfully checked, and that within a short time another revolutionary wave will engulf the country and put an end to the monarchy.

The most sinister aspect of the situation is the fact that the present disorders should be fomented at a time when the country is engaged in a foreign war; in fact, should arise out of this war.

Under ordinary circumstances a foreign war is sufficient to temporarily sink all national differences and unite the people in a common cause.

Deeper Than Suspected.

The national discontent in Spain is deeper than suspected, and the events of the last few days make it inconceivable that King Alfonso can ever check the growing sentiment against the government.

The dynasty is between two fires. The war with Moroccan tribesmen must be fought to a successful conclusion or the country is lost. To conquer the tribesmen will mean a tremendous outlay of money and men and every dollar that is spent and every soldier that falls, simply add to the clamor at home and increase the national peril.

PRESIDENT TAFT PUTS FOOT DOWN

And Mr. Littauer of New York Loses Out

IN ENDEAVOR TO BOOST GLOVE RATE

Remarkable Influence of Ex-Congressman.

Why He Has Been Able To Make the Fight for Increased Tariff on Gloves That He Has—What He Has Done To Endear Himself to the Members of Both Houses of Congress.

Washington July 29.—In a written communication to the tariff conferees received by them today, President Taft insisted that the rates on lumber should not exceed $1.25 per thousand feet and that the senate rates on gloves and hosiery, which are much lower than those contended for by the house, should be retained.

With this communication before them, which was regarded in the nature of an ultimatum, it became necessary for the Republican members to withdraw for the present their invitation to the Democrartic members to join with them in the consideration of the report.

Senator Bailey, one of the Democratic conferees on the floor of the senate, this afternoon expressed the opinion that congress would be able to adjourn within a week or ten days. This prediction seemed to indicate that the Republican conferees had given their Democrartic colleagues pretty definite assurances that they will be able to conclude their report today.

Only Two Days Debate.

It has been decided that there will be only two days debate upon the report in the house. The opinion is now expressed that in the senate it can be disposed of within less than one week.

The morning session of the tariff conferees ended at 1 o'clock with the house and senate still in disagreement over matters in which the president is interested.

Republican opponents of the tariff bill in the house were busy today conferring as to the possibility and advisability of defeating the conference report. The continuance of the deadlock has given them increased courage, and they are beginning to believe they will be strong to refer the report back to the conference committee.

A Meeting Tonight.

A meeting will be held tonight of the Republican members who oppose free raw materials.

There was a report floating about the capitol today that the answer of congress to the letter of the president to the conferees, would be final adjournment next Monday without final action on the tariff bill. The report was not given serious attention.

Naturally the receipt of the president's ultimatum created some consternation in the conference committee. The members, however, now have a definite idea of just what the president wants and it is predicted that after a continuation of the struggle, perhaps for a day or so, longer, they will come to the president's terms.

Influence of Littauer.

Washington, July 29.—The most extraordinary of the many peculiar things in connection with the framing up of the tariff bill, is the tremendous influence wielded by former Congressman Littauer, of Gloversville, New York. He is a manufacturer of gloves, as his father was before him. He is also wealthy and a "good fellow."

With these qualifications, he came to Washington at the beginning of the present special session, with the avowed purpose of raising the tariff on gloves for women to such an extent that foreign makes would be excluded from this country, except at prohibitive prices, leaving himself in control of the American market, he being the largest manufacturer.

The new rates that Littauer suggested were increases of 100 per cent and more over existing law. He managed to work these increases through the house and, though the senate turned them down, he has kept up the fight for their retention, until the last minute.

Cannon and Payne.

Littauer has had Speaker Cannon and Chairman Payne firmly insisting upon the adoption of the Littauer

HARRY THAW ON WITNESS STAND

Direct Examination Is Waived by His Attorney.

THAW IS TURNED OVER TO JEROME

Latter Goes at Young Man Hammer and Tongs.

Although Thaw Is Nervous, He Has the Satisfaction of Getting the District Attorney Angry—Thaw Refuses To Waive Any of the Rights Which Are Given to Him Under the Laws.

White Plains, N. Y., July 28.—Calmly and deliberately considering each question carefully before answering, Harry K. Thaw today withstood the battering of the steel-jawed prosecutor, Jerome, for two hours and a half.

Thaw's conduct on the stand is evident control of his emotions and his clear, logical following of the difficult course set by his interlocutors made a favorable impression not only on the crowd that thronged the court-room, but also on Justice Mills the final arbiter as to Thaw's liberty.

Jerome fired query on after question at Thaw, calculated to arouse anger. Wonderfully, the studious-looking young man held himself in calmly discussing accusations of the foulest character made against him. When Thaw left the stand for the noon recess, his mother and sister embraced him fervently and Charles Morschauser, his counsel, grasped his hand, congratulating him on his conduct on the stand.

But the most terrific assault of Jerome was planned for the afternoon when the story of Susan Merrill was to be the basis of Thaw's examination.

Thaw on Stand.

White Plains, N. Y., July 28.—Plainly nervous and realizing that his fate depends upon his own actions and testimony, Harry K. Thaw took the stand at 10:07 this morning to try to prove to Justice Mills that he is sane enough now to be freed from Matteawan.

Thaw showed the effects of yesterday's testimony, when his cause was dealt many body blows by the testimony of Mrs. Susan A. Merrill. He declared, however, as he rose, that he was sure of his conduct on the stand, and did not fear the gruelling examination he must undergo at the hands of District Attorney Jerome, his implacable enemy.

It was at once apparent that the attorney for Thaw would take no chances of having Jerome cross-examine him after Thaw had been on the stand all day and was tired out, as he did at the Poughkeepsie hearing.

Turned Over to Jerome.

As soon as Thaw took the stand he was turned over to the tender mercies of Jerome, Morschauser waiving his direct examination.

"Why are you here?" began Jerome.

"It is a habeas corpus proceeding looking toward my release from Matteawan," answered Thaw, nervously.

"Why were you committed to Matteawan?"

"Because at the end of my second trial I was acquitted, but the presiding judge issued the commitment."

"Well, why were you acquitted?"

"Because they found me not guilty," answered Thaw rather sharply.

"Why, you killed Stanford White, did you not? Shot him to death on Madison Square Garden?" asked Jerome.

Thaw crossed his legs, swung his huge left hand to and fro a couple of times, then leisurely answered:

Why Acquitted.

"I was acquitted, I think, because counsel for both sides told that I was suffering from delusions at the time."

"You understand do you not the noblesse oblige that prevails among gentlemen?"

"Yes."

"Would you, having committed an act which you felt called upon as a gentleman to perform consent to the subornation of perjury by your counsel to escape the consequences of your act?"

"By no means," answered Thaw.

Jerome then attacked the testimony of the men who during the first trial, said Thaw spoke of hearing voices of young girls. He suddenly left that line, however, and asked Thaw if he had studied hypnotism before he was married.

"Yes, a very little Professor Ferris called on me and gave me several lessons. I was not much interested however."

"Did you study because you thought Evelyn Nesbit was dominated by Stanford White through hypnotism?"

"Why no," said Thaw smiling. "I never looked into the matter."

"I think you took he did exercise hypnotic influence over her?"

"From her remarks I thought it was quite possible. He certainly exercised a strong influence over her."

In reply to Anthony Comstock Thaw said: "I have taken little interest in his work since my arrest."

Jerome then turned to the question of the notes of little girls heard by Thaw at the police station.

Thaw denied hearing the voices at the time Lynch, the fireman at the Tombs, said he had heard them. Jerome read Lynch's testimony given at the murder trial.

"That's nonsense," answered Thaw.

The Reason Why.

"Then why did you dominated by that idea of nobleese oblige, a one it to go into the records?" sneered Jerome.

"I spoke to Mr. Littleton about it but he thought that while it was in and why it should go in so long as the other side had used the evidence of Hummel."

This led into the alleged blackmailing scheme of Hummel, which Thaw denounced. This was the suit of Ethel Thomas, in which it was charged that Thaw had tied the girl to a bedpost and flogged her with a dog whip.

"What became of that suit?" asked Jerome.

"What became of that suit?" asked Jerome.

"I told them to come on with the suit, but they never came on," was Thaw's defiant answer.

"Is it true that your wife threatened to sue you for divorce because of this flogging of girls and you said that you had sufficient grounds?"

"It is not."

Would Waive Nothing.

"Are you willing to have your wife go on the stand and waive your privileges in this connection?" demanded Jerome, but Thaw answered that he would waive none of his privileges.

Jerome then produced a letter which he said was written to Evelyn by Thaw, but after a lengthy debate this letter was barred as a confidential communication between husband and wife.

"Did you ever write your wife lewd letters, containing lewd drawings by yourself?" shouted Jerome, angry because the letter had been barred. Then followed another storm of objections and the argument that followed between Jerome and Morschauser was long and extremely bitter.

This argument gave Thaw a chance to rest from the galling rapid fire of questions from Jerome. He observed the debate closely and smiled down at his mother and sister, who smiled back congratulations for his attitude on the stand.

Leaves the Stand.

Thaw's appearance and conduct were much in his favor, but at this point Jerome's examination threatened startling disclosures. Susie Merrill, fat and middle-aged, attired in a pink linen suit, sat in the anteroom throughout this examination of Thaw.

Justice Mills finally ruled that the letter should not be admitted with Thaw on the stand, but that if Jerome could have it identified as Thaw's handwriting by some one other than his wife, he would admit it in evidence.

Here Thaw leaned over and held a five-minute whispered conference with Justice Mills, after which he left the stand while Peter B. Olney, of the first Thaw lunacy commission which found Thaw sane, was called.

While Olney identified the records of the insanity commission Thaw held a hurried conference with his attorney. As soon as Olney was through, Thaw resumed the stand.

Jerome then took up Thaw's residence at Matteawan.

"Do you think you have always been sane?" Jerome asked.

Sane Medically.

"Not always, legally, but I think I have been sane medically, always."

Jerome then tried to pave the way for a private examination by asking Thaw if he did not think one was necessary, in order that an alienist might make a correct diagnosis. Thaw said he thought he had been examined enough by alienists.

"Doctors Baker and Lamb at Matteawan, both examined me and both told me that I had never suffered from paranoia and had never had any delusion."

Thaw's counsel objected to the question as to the opinion of Dr. Britton D. Evans, the expert for the defense, but Jerome and those of his staff knew what Thaw told him, was true and that the doctor therefore upheld some of these things which Thaw denied.

While Jerome argued a point of law, demanding the withdrawal of the question, Thaw whispered to his counsel. Then Thaw orator ically shouted out that he wanted to show to the world that "this man is a perjurer."

Thaw pulled himself together and wiped his spectacles with a handkerchief.

Jerome, in order to [illegible] point of Dr. Allen McLane Hamilton, asked Thaw if he had been examined by Dr. Hamilton.

Didn't Like Hamilton.

Thaw declared that Dr. Hamilton interrupted Dr. Hamilton's examination because he didn't like the alienist and therefore refused to speak to him.

"Why didn't you like him?" asked Jerome.

"Oh, I can not tell just why. He did not impress me very favorably. He was like the others. I do not like you, Dr. Fleming, the reason why I can not tell," answered Thaw, and the spectators roared so loudly that Justice Mills was compelled to stop the proceedings until order had been restored. Jerome then renewed in detail, in a grilling cross-fire of questions, the killing of Stanford White, leading Thaw through the night on the Madison Square roof.

"Were you crazy when you shot an unarmed man with his back toward you?" shouted Jerome.

This aroused Thaw, but he held himself in check and calmly explained that he knew White was armed and that he was sure White had glared at him before he fired. "I was legally crazy at the time, though," answered Thaw.

Jerome then reviewed the frequent changes of counsel during the trial on the part of Thaw.

"Governor Hughes was my first choice for counsel during my first trial," said Thaw, "because the jury would know that any witnesses he put on the stand would tell the truth."

No Fear of Jerome.

Throughout his examination, Thaw leaned over from time to time and whispered to Justice Mills explanations of his testimony. He evidently cared but little for Jerome's cross-examination, but showed plainly that he wanted to impress Justice Mills favorably with his sanity.

Once more Jerome returned to the attack and ascertained that Thaw left Harvard because he had been caught playing poker. He denied the insinuation of Jerome concerning perverted practices at Harvard.

Then Jerome approached the subject of Susan Merrill.

Thaw said that he knew her, and that he had been known to her as Reid as she swore yesterday. "She was kept in the witness-room by counsel until I objected," said Thaw. "Mr. Hartridge and the others of my counsel told me she had been threatened by the district attorney's office and that she would be prosecuted if she did not testify against me."

Thaw grew merry during the discussion by Jerome of several European escapades, and he and Jerome engaged in several wordy wars together, in which it was noted that Thaw had lost his fear of the prosecutor and was holding his own admirably.

While Thaw was on the stand, Justice Mills ordered the noon day recess.

Gets Back at Jerome.

When Thaw took the stand after lunch, Jerome fired this question at him:

"Do you consider yourself sane now?"

"I do, and so do others," fired back Thaw.

Jerome then produced a copy of the pamphlet, Secret Unveiled, published a few days ago by Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw the mother of the prisoner in which Jerome was bitterly attacked. The aged white-haired mother was all attention and the jammed court-room moved restlessly.

Thaw said he approved of the contents of the pamphlet in a general way.

"Did you believe the allegation with which this pamphlet opens that a cowardly combination of powerful men is at work to prove you insane in order to conceal the degenerate practices of Stanford White and his friends?" asked Jerome.

"I did, because you admitted as much in your summary at the second trial," shot back Thaw.

Jerome gave Thaw a copy of the summary and after searching the record, Thaw read a passage upon which he based his belief. Thaw said he did not copy the manuscript, but that he had seen it before it was published and had, upon the advice of Attorney Morschauser, made no objection to it.

Refers Jerome to Mother.

"Who were the men in the powerful combination?" asked Jerome.

"I don't know," said his mother, Mrs. Copley Thaw.

"Who were the lackeys mentioned in the pamphlet?"

"One of them was Mr. Hummel."

Thaw then said that Hummel had obtained several blackmailing suits among them one which was brought in the name of Ethel Thomas.

"Where did you meet Ethel Thomas?" asked Jerome, and as quick as a flash came back:

"At a disorderly house which was conducted in New York throughout your administration," and Thaw gave the number of the house.

"If all these charges were false, why did your counsel Mr. Hartridge go to all the trouble and expense of securing the [illegible] which was read into the record by Mr. Hartridge," asked Jerome.

"He never went to any expense," denied Thaw. "The suit was prosecuted for fun of which I understand Jerome has had plenty," and Mr. Dan O'Reilly the other half.

Refers to Jerome.

"This pamphlet speaks of a prominent personality that has dominated in private life of my own since before he was acquitted by the jury. Who do you think that means?" asked Jerome.

Thaw was on his guard. "Without a doubt it means you, Mr. Jerome," he fired back, with a pleasant smile. Loud handclappings and a loud murmur rang through the court-room, and the court officers had difficulty in restoring order. Justice Mills warned the spectators that there must be no further outbreak.

Jerome then took Thaw back to the shooting of White, and tried to get the witness' opinion of his own mind at that time. Thaw said his memory could not analyze his mental condition at that time.

Jerome proceeded to have him describe the killing, the scene and the occurrences immediately before and after it.

Thaw got back to the old, old story that he killed White because the latter had ruined his wife.

Jerome then began a tedious examination of several of the letters from Thaw to Evelyn which figured in the murder trials. In one of these, Thaw interrupted to correct a statement which he said appeared wrong in the records.

BLACK HANDERS BECOME ACTIVE

Five Leaders Among Michel Miners Get Letters.

Michel, B. C., July 28.—Excitement is intense here today following the announcement that five leaders among the foreign miners and business men have been threatened by the Black Hand society unless each deposits $200 at a designated spot. Michel is a mining town and its population includes a large number of foreigners. Nearly everybody is armed and the Italian miners are rendering all aid possible to the police, who are attempting to locate the alleged Black Handers. A meeting of 300 Italians will be held this afternoon, when the situation will be discussed. Other armed Italians have formed a bodyguard for the threatened men. The police force has been doubled with special officers.

THEY INSIST ON RIGHT TO TALK

That Being Refused, Two Hundred Girl Workers Go Out.

New York, July 28.—Two hundred girls employed in the shirtwaist factory of Rosenblatt & Company, went on strike yesterday, and today declare they will never return to work if their inalienable right to talk is abrogated. Likewise, they declare the forewoman is too naughty for words, because she will not let them talk during luncheon hours.

When a reporter asked the forewoman for her side of the controversy she pointed to a sign on the wall:

FOURTEEN PERSONS KILLED WEDNESDAY

When Police at Singapore Raid Chinese Society Meeting.

Singapore, July 28.—Fourteen persons were killed today and many injured when the police raided a meeting of a Chinese secret society in the Kualalumpur temple. The temple was crowded, and as the police advanced they were met by volley after volley of bullets. After a half hour's fighting the police succeeded in clearing the temple, and in arresting thirty of the supposed leaders of the society. The Malay secret societies are charged with responsibility for many of the recent outbreaks, and the authorities have begun a campaign of extermination.

ORVILLE BEATS BROTHER'S TIME

President Witnesses Endurance Test Tuesday.

CONGRATULATES WRIGHT BROTHERS

Lieutenant Frank P. Lahm Is the Passenger.

Machine Goes Fifty Miles in One Hour, Twelve Minutes and Forty Second—Average Speed of Forty Miles an Hour—Immense Crowd Cheers and Auto Horns Toot as Machine Makes Landing.

Washington, July 28.—With Lieutenant Frank P. Lahm of the army signal corps as his passenger, Orville Wright at Fort Myer broke the world's aeroplane record for two men, both as to time and distance, in a sensational flight of 1 hour, 12 minutes and 40 seconds, traveling upwards of 50 miles at an average speed of 40 miles an hour. The former record was made last year by his brother Wilbur, joint inventor with him of the machine in which both achievements were performed, at Lemans, France, with Professor Painleve as passenger. That flight was 1 hour, 9 minutes and 31 seconds.

The cheering which heralded the setting of a new mark in the conquest of the air was led by President Taft in person, who had sat an intensely interested spectator throughout the flight and who insisted at its conclusion upon personally congratulating the brothers upon their success. This success was all-important to the Wrights, in that it completed the first of two crucial tests of their machine imposed upon them by the United States government—the so called "endurance test," which required them to remain one hour continuously in the air with one passenger. Orville did nearly 13 minutes better than that, and could have kept on indefinitely—three hours and a half, the limit imposed by the gasoline capacity of the supply tank.

The other test, that for speed, will be complied with today, weather permitting, when Orville is to take Lieutenant Benjamin Foulois of the signal corps on a cross-country flight to Alexandria and return, a total of 10 miles, over a measured course, and at a speed required to average 40 miles an hour.

"Bully for You," Says Katie.

Poignancy was added to the achievements of Orville Wright by the realization that upon his last attempt to navigate the air with a passenger that passenger, Lieutenant Selfridge, was killed and he himself was terribly injured. His devoted sister, Katherine Wright, when he returned unhurt, nestled her face against his breast and said, "Bully for you, brother; it was beautiful."

There was an evident sluggishness in the rise of the aeroplane as compared with its ascent when Wright flew alone; but she rose smoothly and gracefully and when she veered around to make the northward flight along the Arlington cemetery boundary it was at a height of nearly 60 feet, and never after that was there any question of her buoyancy and equipoise. Round and round she went 74 times about the great drill ground, 4,000 feet, they say it is, in circumference, sometimes in shorter circles but usually out at the edges of the full boundary, at a height varying but slightly, save where some stray current of air from between the trees or buildings rocked her up and down or from side to side, like a boat in a gentle sea.

As the hour drew to its close excitement became intense. A thousand watches were scanned. At the conclusion of the seventeenth turn a great shout went up, automobile horns shrieked in a deafening chorus and handclapping and cheers and waving of hats and handkerchiefs told the men in the flying craft that their task was accomplished. Wilbur Wright saw out beneath them and waved his handkerchief. The crowd expected Orville to come down then, but he kept on just the same. He was after his brother's laurels.

Returns to Paris.

Paris, July 28.—Louis Blériot returned to Paris this afternoon and was received with honors befitting his achievement in flying over the English channel in his monoplane. A vast crowd met him at the station and the enthusiasm was unbounded. Ministers Barthou and Millerand received Blériot on behalf of the government and conducted him to a decorated stand, where speech-making was indulged in.

The employes of Blériot's plant were given a holiday and joined in the cheering thousands.

An official medal will be presented to Blériot Friday or Saturday, by the [illegible].

Sommer is the latest French aviator to receive attention, his flight last night of one hour, twenty-two minutes and thirty seconds being the second best ever made in France and the second best ever made by a Frenchman, that of Paul Tissandier, a Wright pupil, being first, his flight lasting one hour, twenty-three minutes and 39 1-5 seconds.

TESTIMONY TOO RANK FOR GIRLS

Two Leave Court-Room When Woman Testifies.

THAW RENTS ROOMS FROM MRS. MERRILL

To Which He Takes Two Hundred Young Girls.

Uses Dog Whip on Their Bare Backs, Has Paid Them Through the Witness $25,000 Since His Marriage, One, Who Passed as Mrs. Thaw, Has Received $7,000 as Her Share of the Hush Fund.

White Plains, N. Y., July 28.—In the supreme court room Harry K. K. Thaw listened to a woman's testimony that made his pallid face flush. He saw a pearl-handled dog whip exhibited and heard the witness swear that she had seen him wield it on the bare flesh of young girls. The prisoner's wife, Evelyn Thaw, heard most of the testimony, which was of such a nature that Justice Mills preceded its presentation with the warning that "no woman should stay in the court room unless she is willing to hear everything." Two girls left the room.

The witness was Miss Susan Merrill, a buxom woman of about 35 years, and she opened a new chapter in the life of Stanford White's slayer. She told of alleged acts of his between 1902 and 1905, when he was a young bachelor about New York.

Her testimony was in marked contrast to that of two alienists, who went on the stand and declared that in their opinion Thaw was sane. Summarized her testimony was that during the three years named she kept in succession two New York lodging houses where Thaw rented rooms under assumed names and to which he brought at various times more than two girls. After Thaw's imprisonment she said she paid these women at least $25,000 as the price of their silence and to keep them from bothering Thaw's wife or his mother. One of them, who said she passed as Thaw's wife received $7,000. The money came from Thaw.

Find Body In Oil Tank.

Steubenville, O., July 28.—The body of Everett Bell, 18, of Brilliant, O., was found in an oil tank filled with water on Rush run. His clothes were found beside the tank, indicating he had gone in the tank to swim.

Wife Stabs Husband.

Hamilton, O., July 28.—While running through the yard to escape his angered wife, Harry Hickroth, 25, a molder, was probably fatally stabbed by her in the back with a butcher-knife.

Would Handle State's Cash.

Steubenville, O., July 28.—Richard Crist, chairman of the Republican committee for years, announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for state treasurer.

TRAGEDY ENDS SUIT OVER GIRL

Father Shot Down in Arkansas Court-Room.

SENATOR DAVIS IS A WITNESS

The Murderer at Once Arrested and Disarmed.

Citizen in Pine Bluff Resents Attempt of Indianapolis Man To Secure Possession of Child, Whose Mother Is Now His Wife—Victim Falls to Floor and Expires in Mother's Arms.

Little Rock, Ark., July 28.—In the circuit court room here W. T. Ellis of Pine Bluff shot and instantly killed Nathaniel Parker Willis, proprietor of a liquor cure at Indianapolis, Ind., the bullet passing over the head of United States Senator Jeff Davis. The shooting was the tragic ending of a lawsuit brought by Willis against his divorced wife, who had subsequently married Ellis, for the possession of his child. Willis died almost instantly after he was shot.

Willis secured his divorce a number of years ago and started the litigation for the possession of the child. He had secured an order from Circuit Judge Fulk to take possession of the child, who has been for the past ten days in the custody of an uncle at Pine Bluff, and the parties to the suit met in the court room to decide where the child was to be delivered. Ellis appeared for his wife and Senator Davis represented Willis.

Ellis Opens Fire.

While Judge Fulk was seated at a table in the court room discussing with Senator Davis the conditions of the transfer of the child, Ellis pulled a revolver from his pocket and fired point blank at Willis, who was seated across the table. A court attache knocked up his arm just as the weapon was discharged and the bullet was imbedded in the wall.

Willis ran around the table with Ellis close at his heels. The latter rested his pistol against the door jam just as Willis ran out, and fired a second time. Willis fell to the floor dying, clasped in his mother's arms. Sheriff Roberts seized Ellis, pulling him into an anteroom to prevent any further shooting. He surrendered his pistol to Judge Fulk, and was at once taken to jail.

Plant Bomb In Wheat Shock.

Napoleon, O., July 28.—The finding of an infernal machine on the Rhody farm caused great excitement in Henry county. The "machine" consisted of a quart bottle of gasoline, to which was firmly bound a box of matches, secreted in a sheaf of wheat. But for the accidental discovery of the bottle when one of the men was pitching the wheat on the wagon the machine would probably have been destroyed, together with the lives of the eight operators.

Afflicted Woman Found Drunk.

Piqua, O., July 28.—Mrs. Mamie Jordan, the Dayton woman who is compelled to feed herself through a tube which is inserted in her side, pouring in the liquids through a funnel and pushing in the solids with a rod, was arrested by Officer Goetz. She had poured so much liquor through the tube that it intoxicated her. Judge Long dismissed her under a suspended sentence.

Fatality at Celebration.

Sandusky, O., July 28.—Henry Jordan was killed and two men were injured when a mortar exploded during a firemen's display in connection with the convention of the National Hay Dealers association at Cedar Point. A piece of the bursted metal struck Thos. Larkin in the mouth and flying sand probably destroyed the sight of Andrew Dietrich of Reading, O.

Murderer Gives Himself Up.

Cincinnati, O., July 28.—Stating that he was charged with the murder of Frank Lehrmann in Chicago and that he was a fugitive from justice, Edward Riske walked into central police station here and surrendered to Chief Corbin. Riske says he killed Lehrmann while the latter was entering his home in Chicago and that he acted in self-defense.

Phipps Seeks Elective Office.

Columbus, O., July 28.—W. H. Phipps of Fauldine state oil inspector and secretary of the Republican state executive committee, announced he would be a candidate for the nomination for secretary of state. Phipps' roommate and close friend, John L. Sullivan of St. Marys, state supervisor of printing, also is a candidate.

THIRD MEMBER LOCATED TODAY

Another One of the Suicide Club Found.

ADMITS SHE PLANS TO TAKE HER LIFE

Arrigo Is Betrayed by Love of Macaroni.

Liquor Hearings Are Booked for Two Weeks Ahead at Upper Sandusky — John Galvin Assumes Duties of Mayor of Cincinnati. Dayton Man Murderously Assaults His Wife—Girl Dies of Tetanus.

Cleveland, O., July 29.—Jessie Ellen, 18, the third member of the Girls' Suicide club to be discovered since the death of Rebecca Bonshek, who shot herself, was brought to Cleveland and was expected to tell her story before Deputy Coroner Dryege at the inquest into the Bonshek girl's death. The girl says she too planned to take her life with Rebecca and Esther Stromberg. She was taken sick, however, partly as a result of morbid thoughts that the club inspired, and was removed to the home of an uncle in Wooster. The Stromberg girl has been watched daily to prevent her from carrying out her plan to commit suicide. She too was expected to testify at the inquest.

How Arrigo Was Caught.

Cincinnati, O., July 29.—Betrayed by a dish of macaroni into the hands of the United States postoffice inspectors is the true story of the capture of Salvatore Arrigo, alleged to have been the overseer of the Black Hand, according to Inspector Oldfield. "Salvatore Arrigo," said Oldfield, "was betrayed into our hands by his preference for macaroni, spaghetti and ravioli. Arrigo could not subsist on vegetables and fruits indigeneous to Clermont county, where he went to hide. He had to have his macaroni and spaghetti every day and somebody had to take it to him. We got a trace of the 'somebody,' whom we traced, and soon had Arrigo located.

Liquor Hearings Popular.

Upper Sandusky, O., July 29.—Liquor hearings are booked daily for two weeks, and if arrests continue the entire month of August may be consumed. John Freimann, the local brewer, is the latest arrest, two charges being filed against him. It seems that the alleged temperance beer being made and sold here contains over 3 per cent alcohol.

John Galvin Assumes Duties.

Cincinnati, O., July 29.—John Galvin, vice mayor, took the oath of office as mayor to fill out the unexpired term of Mayor Leopold Markbreit, deceased. The funeral of Colonel Markbreit will be held tomorrow, the interment being in Spring Grove cemetery.

Murderously Assaults Wife.

Dayton, O., July 29.—Jealousy impelled James Fries to murderously assault his wife, Minnie. Fries struck the woman a heavy blow on the head with a blacksmith's file. She was knocked unconscious.

Tetanus Kills Girl.

Lancaster, O., July 29.—Miss Bertha Keller, daughter of Rev. F. H. Keller of Stoutsville, died of tetanic spasms. She became ill two weeks ago from cutting a wisdom tooth and tetanus developed.

NOT SANCTIONED BY HARRY THAW

confidential letters, but without affecting Hartridge in the least.

Jerome, on re-cross-examination, tried to get at the use of the $100,000 which Hartridge testified had been given by the Thaw family, but this line of questioning was ruled out, and Hartridge was excused.

Recess was then taken until 1:30 this afternoon.

During the noon luncheon hour, Morschauser announced that he would recall Mrs. Merril because of the failure of Hartridge to produce the books he had asked for. Jerome announced, however, that he would recall the woman for a few questions after luncheon.

Her Memory Faulty.

Susan A. Merrill, who took the stand at the opening of the afternoon session, told more under the guidance of Jerome of the alleged flogging of young girls by Thaw.

"When Thaw left, after I discovered him whipping one girl," she said, "he left money with me to give to the girl. He left money with me for other girls, too. I remember three girls that he whipped."

Morschauser then took the witness, and after finding that her memory was faulty on her past life, he asked:

"Did you ever write letters to Stanford White?"

She admitted doing so reluctantly.

"About procuring young girls?"

"No, never."

The woman said that White had not written in reply, but had called on her. She did not know White until after she knew Thaw. White first came when she advertised apartments for rent. He wished to hire a dining-room from her in which to give a dinner. Mrs. Merrill was then excused from the stand and Thaw himself resumed his testimony, interrupted at the close of last night's testimony.

Thaw Resumes Stand.

"Were you crazy when you killed Stanford White?" fired the prosecutor.

"I think I was legally crazy, but not medically crazy," answered Thaw.

Then ensued an attempt on the part of Jerome to upset Thaw on the question, quoting at length from the testimony of the alienists at the murder trials.

During his involved colloquy, Evelyn Thaw entered the courtroom. She wore the same "school girl" plaid dress she wore yesterday, together with her immense black hat. She took her usual place and watched her husband closely.

Try as he might, Jerome was unable to get around Thaw's contention that when he killed White he was suffering from a "brain storm" and nothing else.

Jerome read page after page from the records. "I do not understand that medical phraseology, Mr. Jerome, and I do not believe you do either," interrupted Thaw, who was getting tired of hearing the records read and reread to him.

"Do you think that under equally disturbing conditions you would have another 'brain storm?'"

"No, I'd be more careful to avoid it."

Thaw and Jerome Agree.

"Do you agree with Dr. Evans when he says you suffer from dementia precox or adolescent insanity?" asked Jerome.

"Do you think I have dementia precox, Mr. Jerome?" asked Thaw, asking a question by way of answer.

"No, I don't," answered the surprised Jerome, "for I'm no psychoatrist."

Thaw slipped in under the prosecutor's guard then "Well, I can thoroughly agree with you on that point," he laughed, and the courtroom roared at Jerome's discomfiture.

SUTTONS THREATEN A BIG NAVAL SCANDAL

Attorneys File a Protest as to a Recent Ruling.

PROTEST THE COURT IS NOT TRIAL BOARD

If Inquiry Is To Continue with the Inquest Body as a Trial Board a Bigger Scandal Than the Smothering of Facts in Sutton Case Is Promised—Reasons for Protest.

Washington, July 29.—Characterizing the new turn in the Sutton inquiry as an outrage and threatening a big naval scandal if forced to continue in the case, under the naval board's ruling at Annapolis, Tuesday, the attorneys for Mrs. James N. Sutton have prepared a formal protest to the secretary of the navy, and a demand that he shall order the court to resume its sessions as an inquest body, and not as a trial board with Mrs. Sutton as accuser and five officers as defendants.

"If this inquiry is to continue under the ruling of the court Tuesday," said Attorney Davis, "before we are through with this matter we will expose a bigger naval scandal than was the original smothering of the facts concerning Sutton's death.

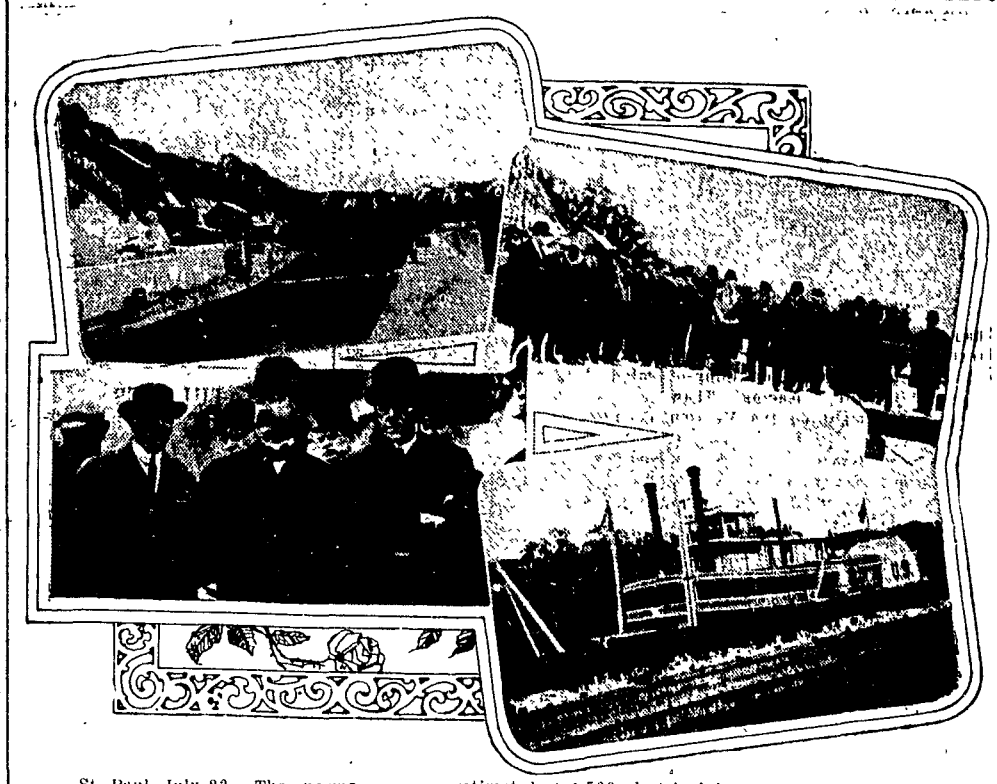
"Our point is this: If Lieutenant Utley is to be regarded as a co-defendant with those officers, he will have the right on his arrival to converse with these officers and have access to all the records, and will be able to tell a story to conform with the others. This will ensure, through the medium of Utley, the carrying out of the combination made on the night that Sutton died, and which has been so closely adhered to up to this time."

TWO WOMEN GO DOWN TO DEATH

Mother Loses Life in Attempting To Rescue Daughter.

Rochester N. Y., July 29. — Mrs. Gordon Hoyt and Miss Clara Hoyt, mother and daughter, were drowned at Snug Harbor, near Hammondsport. The daughter had gone in bathing and, being seized with cramps, called to her mother, who was on the bank near by. Mrs. Hoyt, who was an expert swimmer, went to the rescue. The daughter was so frightened that she threw her arms about her mother, and both were drowned before help could reach them.

COMMERCIAL POWER FROM GOVERNMENT LOCK AND DAM ON UPPER MISSISSIPPI RIVER



St. Paul, July 23.—The enormous power, estimated at 1,500 electrical horse-power, which may be developed at the second Upper Mississippi lock and dam now under construction at St. Paul's corporate limits, will be utilized for commercial and probably municipal purposes as a result of the exhaustive examination just completed by Major C. S. Richie, in charge of river improvement work; Major Skunk and other engineers, members of a government board. Whether the power will be utilized in a purely commercial way or whether it will be taken by the two adjacent cities has not yet been determined, but it is probable that St. Paul, owning all the riparian rights at one end of the dam, and Minneapolis, owning the same rights at the opposite end, will be the controlling factors in determining who will benefit from the power. The government proposes that the cities build a power plant and use the water in consideration of their raising the locks and dam to a suitable height above the present level. This work will cost $250,000. Action has been taken by both cities and they will unite in requesting the legislature to pass a bill permitting them to incur the expense proposed by the government, build a plant and become owners of the power. The energy developed will be sufficient to light public buildings and parks in both cities, and will introduce in both cities a competitive factor in municipal lighting and power contracts.

WEBB SAYS CHARGE IS INFAMOUS LIE

Does Not Choke and Strike Colored Girl,

TO GET HER BACK TO THE GIRLS' HOME

Only Uses Such Force as Is Necessary To Overcome Her Struggles. The Matter of Charge Against New Superintendent of the Girls' Industrial Home.

Columbus, O., July 28.—Charges that Superintendent S. D. Webb, of the Delaware Girl's Industrial school, brutally beat and choked Grace E. Nuby, a colored girl inmate, in forcing her to return to the home, Tuesday evening, were flatly denied by the new superintendent this morning in a telephone explanation to the governor's office.

The charges were made by Harry Maddox, a substantial farmer, living near the institution, with whom the girl has made her home since February. He called at the office of Prosecuting Attorney Fred McAllister, in Delaware, this morning, to prefer charges of assault and battery against Webb, and stated that he will vigorously prosecute the case and lay the facts before Governor Harmon.

Superintendent Webb's statement that the charges are maliciously untrue, are substantiated by State Senator J. M. Thompson, of Mount Gilead, who was at the home Tuesday evening when Superintendent Webb returned with the girl, and who heard her side of the case.

According to Mr. Maddox, the superintendent, accompanied by Mr. Vance, employe of the home, arrived in a buggy to take the girl away. She ran through the back door, and when Webb caught her, she was choked until her tongue protruded. He also struck her and pulled her hair, finally dragging her by main force and lifting her into the buggy.

"It is a lie," Superintendent Webb said in answer. "Since I have been in charge—twelve days—we have been recalling all girls not properly released. I offered to turn her over to Mr Maddox in the legal way, but he refused. When I called for her, she fought like a young animal, but I only used necessary force, and did not choke or strike her."

MOTHER AND SON HURLED TO DEATH

When Former Attempts To Save Latter from a Train.

Champaign, Ills., July 28.—In an attempt to save her two-year-old son, Emmett, from being run over by a fast westbound Big Four train here today, Mrs. Richard Alexander and the boy were hurled to instant death.

The little fellow with his brother had gone to a grocery store and both children were running to meet their mother, not heeding warnings to stay back. The mother succeeded in getting one boy across the track in safety when the train struck her and the other child.

PRESIDENT TAFT PUTS FOOT DOWN

rates. He has even had the vice president of the United States running as messenger boy to the White House, when it became evident that President Taft was not going to stand for the proposed enormous increase.

Through the favor of the house conferees, Littauer has actually been given access to the conference room whenever the glove schedule has been under consideration, although this privilege has been denied to other manufacturers or importers. Only yesterday, when the conference committee was in the last throes of its labors, Littauer obtained admission to put in a final word in behalf of his industry. The representatives of a large Chicago importing and retailing firm made such a fuss that the committee finally gave them a hearing.

Littauer's Services.

In explanation of the remarkable influence wielded by the former New York congressman, it is stated that he is credited with having secured the necessary number of votes to pass the bill which raised the salaries of members of congress from $5,000 to $7,500 a year. He also came to the assistance of his former colleagues in the fight over the house rules which opened with the present session and made the election of Speaker Cannon sure. That carried with it Representative Payne's reappointment as chairman of the ways and means committee. Then, too, it is claimed he was largely responsible for the nomination of Mr. Sherman as vice president. That there is some foundation for these claims is shown by the energetic way in which these officials have been standing by him in his glove fight.

President Taft, however, is credited with having declared, in effect, that he did not mind having a particular schedule arranged in behalf of a single state, or even in behalf of a single senator, but he did object to having it fixed to suit the views and interests of a single manufacturer.

The president put his foot down, and Littauer lost.

LAD FALLS INTO A THRESHING MACHINE

Right Hand Torn Off and Body Is Badly Cut.

North Baltimore, O., July 29.—Falling from a load of wheat to an automatic feeder on a threshing machine, Harry, the eleven-year-old son, of C. F. Hackett of near Hannansburg, north of here, was carried to the mouth of the separator where his right hand was torn off.

The revolving knives which are used to cut the bands on the wheat slashed the lad's body terribly. He was pulled out by an attendant just as he was being dragged into the interior of the thresher. It is believed the boy cannot live. His mother is almost wild with grief.

JEFFRIES PUTS UP HIS FORFEIT TODAY

Posts $5,000 with Sporting Editor of Evening World.

SEVEN CONDITIONS FOR COMING MATCH

The Most Important Is That Each Fighter Must Put Up a $10,000 Forfeit and That This Forfeit Is To Go to the Winner of the Fight as a Side Bet.

New York, July 28.—James J. Jeffries, still claiming to be "champion heavyweight of the world," this afternoon posted with Robert Edgren, sporting editor of the New York Evening World five $1,000 bills to act as a portion of the forfeit he posts to bind his fight with Jack Johnson for the heavyweight championship of the world.

In posting this forfeit of $5,000, Jeffries today gave out seven conditions under which he will fight Johnson. They are:

1—That Jeffries will defend his title as heavyweight champion.

2—That they are to fight before the club offering the largest purse.

3—That the fight is to be from twenty to 100 rounds.

4—That when final articles are signed he will post another $5,000.

5—That Johnson must post a similar sum—$10,000 in all—and this sum, when posted shall act as a side bet, the entire sum to be taken by the winner of the fight.

6—The entire sum, when posted, is to be turned over to some reputable stakeholder, preferably John P. Clark, of San Francisco.

7—That Sam Berger, Jeffries' side partner, is to remain in America to receive bids from the fight clubs offering the largest sums for the battle.

Jeffries declares he is in splendid condition and that he is now ready to defend his title. He will sail on August 5 to take a three-weeks "cure" at Carlsbad, after which he will return to America to train for the fight with the black fighter.

The important part of Jeffries' defi to Johnson is the demand for the posting of a $10,000 forfeit by both fighters, which is to act as a side bet. Jeffries' confidence in himself is proven by this demand.

Tennessean Drowned.

Knoxville, Tenn., July 29.—James H. Walker, twenty-five, of Knoxville, was drowned in Little river near Kinzel Springs while saving the life of Mrs. F. D. Christian, of Sidney, Ohio. They were members of a camping party and while in bathing got beyond their depth. Mrs. Christian is prostrated at the home of M. A. M. Armstrong here, where she is visiting.

American travelers abroad, upon returning home, are reporting with greater frequency that they have been advised by American consular representatives to save their money and buy at home.

There are $15,000,000 worth of buttons made in this country every year, yet lots of men use nails to connect their suspenders with their trousers.

SHOOTS SELF THROUGH HEAD

Conscious When Found but Does Not Explain.

Bullet Destroys Both Eyes and Inflicts Wound from Which He Dies This Morning—Had Just Resumed His Duties as President After a Long Vacation Which Is Rendered Necessary by Nervous Breakdown.

New York, July 29. — Standing in the center of his room on the third floor of the New York Athletic club, Harry C. Pulliam, president of the National League of Baseball Clubs, attempted to commit suicide by firing a bullet into his head. It went in at the right temple and came out several inches away on the left side of his head. The bullet destroyed the right eye and passed through the upper part of the left.

It inflicted a wound from which he died at 7:40 o'clock this morning. Although he was conscious for some time after the shooting, he did not explain his rash act.

Mr. Pulliam was discovered lying on the floor by a bellboy, who summoned medical assistance.

Mr. Pulliam, although still conscious and able to speak, appeared to be too confused to answer the physician's questions coherently. The wounds were carefully dressed, but the physician had little hopes of saving Mr. Pulliam's life.

Coroner P. N. Shrady, who arrived about half an hour after the shooting, assisted Dr. Higgins in attending to the wounded man's needs. Both of them attempted to get some explanation of the baseball president's attempt to kill himself, but he continued too dazed to give intelligent answers.

Harry C. Pulliam had only recently resumed the reins of the National league after an absence from duty for several months. Nervous trouble due to his unceasing labor in the interest of the national game was given as the cause of Mr. Pulliam's absence.

to save the remaining troops.

Under orders from General Marinas, the beleaguered garrison has given up all attempt to hold the captured outposts, and is making no more of their fatal sorties in the hope of driving back the Moors.

Blockade Runner Taken.

A Spanish gunboat today captured a blockade runner, manned by 130 of the Kabyles tribesmen. The ship was packed with thousands of the latest improved army rifles and hundreds of thousands of rounds of ammunition, which were being rushed to the Moors around Melilla, who, because of their victories, are receiving many recruits.

The Moors are using dum-dum bullets which cause terrible wounds. These bullets have been barred by civilized countries, and the Spaniards in retaliation are nicking their steel jacketed bullets, making them just as brutal.

Four rifle regiments of seasoned troops were embarked today from Algeciras under orders to rush with all possible speed to the relief of Melilla. All the coast garrisons and coast artillery batteries are being taken away from the vicinity of Gibraltar and proceeding, on any available ship to Melilla. But for the heavy guns of the Spaniards, the city would have fallen already, and the war department is rushing more artillery and ammunition to the garrison.

ONE MAN KILLED; SEVERAL INJURED

When Lake Shore Electric Car Leaves the Rails.

Cleveland, July 29.—One man was killed and several were seriously injured this morning when the Lake Shore electric car leaving Lorain westbound shortly after midnight left the rails at a drawbridge reverse curve under the Nickel Plate railroad and crashed into a heavy stone abutment supporting the overhead bridge.

Motorman Howe, of Lorain, was instantly killed, being crushed between the partition and the abutment when the vestibule was shattered.

Chris Jacobs, conductor, of Lorain; Ralph Osborn, of Elyria; H. C. Ries, of Vermillion; Earl Stiwald, son of the mayor of Amherst; Earl Nielson, of Linwood, and a man named Goodrow, of Lorain, were injured. Osborn was most severely hurt, his body and head being badly cut and bruised and one arm broken. Besides, it is thought he suffered internal injuries. The injured were taken to St. Joseph's hospital in Lorain on a special car.

The wrecked car was fifteen minutes late leaving Lorain, and it is supposed the motorman was trying to make up the lost time. It is believed from the manner in which the car was shattered against the abutment that it took the curve at a high rate of speed.

For Killing Child Wife.

Scranton, Pa., July 29.—Nicholas De Mazio was executed in the county jail at 10 o'clock this morning for the murder of his child wife at Old Forge, on July 7, 1908. He killed her because she left him after learning that he had another wife in Italy.

Return to Work.

Reno, Nev., July 29.—The miners at the Lucky Boy mine returned to work today after having remained out of the mine all night for fear of an earthquake disaster. Two slight shocks spread terror through the Lucky Boy camp and not one of the night shift could be induced to enter the mine.

PIKE SALE.

The Pike Commissioners of the Holland Free Turnpike road will receive sealed bids at the County Surveyor's office, Marion, Ohio, until 12 o'clock noon on Saturday, 7th day of August, 1909, for grading and gravelling of said Free Turnpike road located in Marion and Big Island townships, Marion county, Ohio, according to specifications, plat profile and cross-section, which are on file and may be seen in the office of the County Surveyor.

Bids will be received for the road as an entirety. The successful bidder or bidders will be required to execute a contract and give a good bond, to the satisfaction of the Pike Commissioners for fifty per cent. of the estimated cost, conditioned for the faithful performance of the bid and contract, and said bond must not have less than two sureties, one of whom must be a resident of said Marion county.

Bidders must accompany their bid with one hundred dollars cash, or a certified check for that amount on some bank in said Marion county, which will be forfeited by the successful bidder or bidders in case he or they fails to enter into bond and contract within five (5) days from date of sale.

The Pike Commissioners reserve the right to reject any or all bids.

CUMMINS, IOWA AND THE ABUSED CONSUMER

One of the most quoted tariff reformers in Washington is Senator Cumins, of Iowa. This is one of the things Senator Cummins is there for. He likes publicity. He was one of the inventors of the Iowa idea, which is a cross between protection and a tariff for revenue only, and that idea was promoted among the Iowa farmers for Mr. Cummins' political advancement. If the student of tariff tendencies and conditions wants to get the drift of things, let him reflect on Cummins and his progressive leadership, along with his location. Iowa is, in many respects, the grand best state in the union. Agriculturally it is a marvel. It is good to look upon. It has the smallest percentage of illiteracy of any state in the union. It is threaded in every direction with the steel highways of transportation. It may be rich in ores and coal, but as yet these are undeveloped. It has no manufacturing worth the mention. Manufacturing is developing, some day Iowa will be a great hive of industry as well as an agricultural marvel, but for the present Iowa is a great garden, prospering beyond all belief through the industry of the states lying east of her. Iowa is the beneficiary of markets, without a thought of what made the markets or made them accessible to her wonderful farms. Her people know, of course, of manufacturing shops and toiling men, who must be fed, and have a vague knowledge that these shops and men make the demand for wheat and corn and wool and cattle, but Iowa takes all that as a matter of course. There is no halting to figure out the reason why. No economic policy is supposed to be responsible. To such a people, blessed without reasoning as to source, Senator Cummings taught the Iowa idea of reduced tariffs and reduced prices on the things they had to buy, and it sounded good to them. Nobody stopped to argue that the prices which were making Iowa rich were fixed by the American workingman's capacity for buying. They never thought about him. They wanted things cheaper, without figuring on ultimate results. So Cummins and his Iowa idea won, and similar politicians in the agricultural West took up the same idea to win for themselves. Kansas, with nothing to growl about except bursting granaries and banks overflowing with farmers' money, took up the cry, resolved to be progressive or "bust." The movement grew formidable enough to impress ambitious politicians to the east. There has been enough outcry in behalf of the ultimate consumer to flood the universe with sympathy. Honest protectionists, who believed the policy that had triumphed, again and again, the one safe to cling to, are branded as the agents of greed and the supporters of oppression. There has been appeal to envy and the promptings of prejudice, and amid it all, many have lost sight of the great problems of industry in world competition. It has become the cry of the consumer, not by him but for him, instead of the question of wages. The farmer has seen his prices soar and values mount higher and higher, thus making the real increase in the cost of living, and yet, after the Iowa idea, without appreciation or gratitude, he clamors to reduce the price of the things he buys. Verily the protective tariff is the most beneficent policy and the mightiest agency for revealing local selfishness that we have ever encountered. We do not disparage Iowa. The union has no state so grand. But Iowa is essentially agricultural and is reveling in high prices and agricultural prosperity. What Iowa needs is not a lot of trumped-up sympathy for consumers, but a little consideration for her industrial neighbors. If the country wants the prices of 1895-6, let Iowa and Kansas and Nebraska lead on. The consumer got things cheaply enough then—and farms, too. But he hadn't the stuff to get things. Think it over.

We don't know, of course, but we would be willing to bet that a fair proportion of the "How To Keep Cool in Summer" articles and pees in the newspapers are written by fellows working away sans shirts under the glare of electric lights and in the whiz of electric fans.

The local roasting ears are in that previous, tasteless stage of the callow youth who knows twice as much as his dad. But they will be worth picking ten days from now.

THE PASSING SNAKE STORY OF THE HARVEST TIME

Certainly old conditions are passing away. The Star has not had a snake story from Scott or North Claridon township in a half dozen years or more, that is, none worth reciting. It used to be that wheat, hay and oats harvests were enlivened by snake stories that would make a healthy growth of hair stand on end. They were no creations of brewery or distillery product, either. Thirty years ago the plains from the Olentangy to the Scioto had a full quota of rattlesnakes. Over north and west of Caledonia it was no uncommon thing for farmers binding sheaves in the wake of the cradle or old-style reaper to garner a rattler with his sheave, and the enlivening spectacle of healthy and poisonous snakes dropping from the elevated fork of hay, in the field, was not at all uncommon. The snake stories of harvest time afforded the drug store entertainment at Caledonia in the seventies. Fifteen years ago the rattlers were still on the job. The Star used to poke fun at the late John M. Garberson about the rattlers he talked of but did not see. Being a man of deeds, as well as words, Mr. Garberson dropped into the Star office one day with a triumphant smile on his face and a covered box in his arms, and there was an odor to disturb sensitive nerves. With some kindly remark about truth being eternal Mr. Garberson deposited his box and departed in triumph, for investigation and accompanying rattles gave proof of five very live and very ugly rattlesnakes that he had garnered on his own harvest fields. The eminent and affable Rodney Diegle was then a Marionite, and with a boosting thought for his greatest amusement enterprise on earth he relieved the Star office of its worrying burden, but the truth about the rattlesnakes of North Claridon township was well established.

But there has been a lull in the reptile business ever since. Maybe Mr. Garberson brought us the last of their kind, but more likely they have gradually yielded to the processes of extinction. At any rate we hear nothing of them any more. Not even the bootlegging that disturbs our peace has been equal to producing a counterfeit story. It is just as well, but the old conditions are passed away.

CINCINNATI MAYOR PASSES TO HIS REWARD

It is with great sorrow that we chronicle the death of Colonel Leopold Markbreit at Cincinnati Tuesday night, for we recognize in this event the passing of a hero and the loss of one of the most courtly, accomplished gentlemen it has been our good fortune to know.

Colonel Markbreit was born in Vienna, Austria, in 1842. His parents belonged to the group of continental patriots who failed in their efforts to bring about a complete revolution in 1848 but who did so much to advance the cause of liberty. The family fled to the United States and joined relatives in Cincinnati, where young Leopold grew to manhood. He read law and became the law partner of Rutherford B. Hayes, an association which ended when both the young lawyers went into the army in the civil war, where both won honors. Markbreit served as captain in the Twenty-Eighth Ohio and as adjutant general on the staff of General Crook. He was several times wounded and finally was captured and confined in Libby prison, where he endured awful suffering for many months.

After the war he returned to Cincinnati and resumed the practice of law, abandoning that later for the editorial chair of the Cincinnati Volksblatt, which, under his direction, became the most influential German newspaper in the central states.

Colonel Markbreit was appointed United States minister to Bolivia by President Grant and served with distinguished efficiency in other positions in the federal service. For the past eighteen months he has been mayor of Cincinnati.

There has not been a moment since his release from Libby that he has not suffered intensely from the effects of his wounds and privations, but his brave, cheerful spirit made him always courteous and sympathetic, the most genial of friends, the most considerate of all.

He was a scholar of ripe attainments, a patriot who loved his adopted country, an optimist who loved his fellow-men and could find the good hidden away in even the most unpromising. No knightlier man has gone from us in this new century.

In some of the cartoons about the only way to distinguish Bwana Tumbo from the hippopotamuses is by his eyeglasses.

MODESTY AND CLOTHING AND SUMMER FANCIES

The Minneapolis minister who attacked undue exposure of person on the part of fair femininity in that city, adding point-duews to his remarks by displaying snapshot pictures taken on the streets the day before, has given a touch of vaudeville to the pulpit, and exhibited great valor of a useless kind, but otherwise has accomplished very little. One would think a trained and experienced pastor would come somewhere near understanding woman's way, but the Minneapolis dominie doesn't. Nor does any sage of the newspaper craft, for that matter, but the Star, in its orbit, mateought the dash of feminine vanity. It is oft denied, but still exists. Some forms are tolerable and are to be seen in church. Other forms are worse, but men ought to be reluctant to criticize, so long as they belong to the neck-twisting crowd that encourages the unseemly display.

Just what display of the feminine figure belongs to decency is not to be lightly written. Locality and custom have much to do with it. Over in Hawaii a man's eye may fall more or less unobstructed on the complete array of dusky divinity, and there is not a flutter. Up in Minneapolis prettily stockinged ankles and Dutch necks stirred a pastor to invsigh against indecency. It reminds us that some kinds of sin, at least, are a matter of locality.

But our humble observation leads to this conviction—no unseemly displays are shocking that are not attractive, and very few are made except by women who are shapely and handsome, and know it. There's where the weakness of the Minneapolis attack grows evident. The handsome woman, who knows it, is never going to hide her light under a bushel measure; not a hide. Envious women may rave, dear, good old souls may be awfully shocked and say so, the Minneapolis minister may inveigh and offer his photographs, but that touch of vanity that Eve displayed when no man on earth but Adam was there to admire, will continue to make appeal to admiring men. It is one of the unalterable inclinations of many of the gentler sex.

A good many years ago we heard a Methodist minister assail smoking, and he emphasized his opposition by saying "If God intended man to smoke, he would have created him with a suitable chimney." We are not commending that logic, but by the same argument we might say if God intended men and women to wear clothes he would have created them with suitable apparel. The Creator did close to that very thing. If Mr. Darwin has the right line of argument. The point we are getting at is this—does not our civilization rear mistaken standards of modesty and decency? Is not the clothing of the human body overdone? Humanity could more comfortably go barefooted, regardless of climate. We once saw a Florida cracker who had put no shoes on his feet in six years, and his efforts to resume footwear were as painful a thing as going to a "party" in number seven shoes on a number nine foot. Nature had grown him the very toughest of soles a half an inch thick. Why shouldn't humanity go bare-legged, in even so variable a climate as this?

The Star isn't trying to start a clothing reform—the business office, with its partiality to advertising wouldn't admit of such a thing. But the Minneapolis minister with his picture show has set us to thinking. Surely we should be more comfortable, especially in summer, if we dressed less, probably less subject to disease in winter, and modesty would be adjusted to the new standards and still remain a most admirable attribute. More, we should escape all the July temptations in the shop windows like "Waists, Half Off," "Skirts Cut in Half," "A Big Cut in Trousers," "Lingerie Greatly Reduced" and the like.

Think only of yourself and others will forget you.

SCIENTIFIC KNOWLEDGE MAKES APPLES PAY

The latest bulletin issued by the Ohio Agricultural Experiment station tells of that pleasing experience of John A. Stokes, of Sandusky county, who last year gathered 1,650 barrels of apples from 534 trees in three orchards of four acres each. He sold them for $7,460, netting $5,500 on his crop, or nearly $1,500 per acre. So far as land or climate was concerned, Mr. Stokes had no exceptional advantages. But he did not merely plant his trees and leave the result to nature and the bugs. He "farmed" his orchards as carefully as he did his corn or wheat. He kept the ground free from grass or weeds. He saw that the trees were properly trimmed and sprayed at the right times and with the right sort of fluid. He protected the blossoms and the fruit and saw that it was carefully picked and packed. His loss from wormy apples varied from one to twenty-four per cent, largely as the trees were young or old. In some unsprayed sections his loss ran up to forty-two per cent. But he did this in Ohio; that's the point. Men have sacrificed their property in this state and gone elsewhere—to California and the semi-tropics—to raise fruit, when the same methods necessary there for success bring results like that of Mr. Stokes with a magnificent market right at his door. There is profitable employment for man and land of all kinds in the development and scientific pursuit of horticulture in Ohio.

There are republics and republics. Up here we wouldn't notice anybody yelling for Bryan during the heat of a political campaign. We're used to it possibly in the colonels case, but no matter whose name might be used, it wouldn't even attract attention. Yet down in Mexico yelling for their favorite caused a number of the anti-administration crowd to be placed into jail.

If the run of marine officers is anything like any of those connected with the shooting of Lieutenant Sutton we don't blame the navy officers for not wanting them aboardship nor censure former-President Roosevelt for ordering them removed.

Cupid is going to kidnap Eddie Cudahy this time. Curious, isn't it? It seems but a year or two ago when Pat Crowe did the job.

Nobody will accuse the Prospect branch of the police judiciary of being unduly prejudiced in behalf of bootlegging.

No Pauper Immigration.

The country will watch with interest the outcome of the effort that is being made in New York to test the constitutionality of the clause in the immigration law which requires an immigrant to have at least $25 in money in his possession before being permitted to land. This clause was inserted in the law for two reasons—first, to shut out contract labor, and second to prevent the immigrant from becoming at once a charge on public charity.

The limit is a very low one, and to take it off would bring back the old condition, when thousands of immigrants were annually dumped into the country without the means to procure themselves a full meal. To enforce it may sometimes work a hardship, as in the case of a young woman deported a few days ago who had a wealthy uncle in this country willing to receive and take care of her. In that case the authorities might have given the young woman time to correspond with her relative, but that one case does not prove the law to be a bad one, any more than a single swallow proves that summer has come. Our great seaport cities, such as New York, Boston, Philadelphia and New Orleans annually receive many thousands of immigrants who cling to the cities, overstocking the market for labor, and filling up the ranks of the dissatisfied, who become socialists and anarchists.

This country should not be made the dumping ground for those who are without means to sustain themselves until they can find employment. To require them to have so small a sum of money as $25 is not unreasonable. The United States should not be made a great charitable organization to take care of the poor of Europe as well as its own. With the utmost economy $25 will not provide sustenance for more than a few days, and to seek and obtain employment in a strange city already filled with the unemployed is more likely to require months than days. There are sections where work can be found, but to reach such sections from any of our ports costs money. It may sound well from the lips of a Fourth of July orator to talk about the United States being an asylum for the poor and oppressed of all the nations of the earth, but if the bars were lowered still further the country would be filled with paupers and undesirables.—Washington Post.

INAUGURATION DATE.

The ease and celerity with which both house of congress have passed the proposed income tax amendment to the constitution suggests that there ought to be no difficulty in taking similar action in regard to the long-discussed and universally approved proposal to change the date of inauguration. The houses have plenty of time while they are waiting for the action of the conference committee, and the passage of such a resolution would not violate the agreement which has been entered into at least tacitly, in regard to legislation. Congress can do nothing in the closing hours which will win for it wider approval than to set the machinery in motion to bring about this long-desired and much needed change. The legislatures of the states can consider it at the same time that the other amendment is up, and there is no doubt of their approval. Nobody objects to it and every one wants it. Let us not have another long list of inauguration victims in 1912. It has been often demonstrated that the people want to come to Washington to see their chief magistrate installed, and they are surely entitled to have their wishes respected as to when it shall take place and to be relieved from the risks and discomforts which have almost uniformly attended those occasions.—Washington Post.

DISGRACEFUL SCENE OVER WOMAN'S BODY

Meeting of Doctors in Pleasant Hill Cemetery.

MRS. JOHN CRAMER'S BODY IS EXHUMED

An Examination Is Held in the Open Air—Dr. Smith Calls Dr. Taylor a Liar While the Brain of Woman Is Being Removed by Dr. Lower—A Verdict Coming.

A disgraceful scene was enacted at the quaint old Pleasant Hill burial ground, two miles northwest of Big Island, Tuesday afternoon, when the body of Mrs. John Cramer was exhumed from a grave, partially filled by water, and doctors quarreled over the body as it lay on an undertaker's coo ing-board.

Coroner W. H. Hinklin ordered the woman taken from her grave to perform a second autopsy. He tried to hire several men residing in the community of the Pleasant Hill church to exhume the body, but none in that section was willing to undertake the task. The coroner then employed Undertaker Charles E. Curtis, who drove to the cemetery, Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Coroner Hinklin and Drs. H. J. Lower and C. G. Smith, who made the first postmortem examination, were to be at the grave at 2 o'clock.

The undertaker and his assistants had just arrived at the country graveyard when Drs J. B. Taylor, Dana O. Weeks, A. M. Crane and F. L. Hedges arrived in two automobiles. The grave was opened and the straps were adjusted to raise the casket as soon as the coroner came. At 3 o'clock a farmer's daughter informed the waiting party that Dr. Hinklin at Marion wanted to talk to one of the doctors who came in the red automobile. Dr. Taylor and Undertaker Curtis went to the farm-house. The undertaker informed the coroner that he had been waiting for him an hour, whereupon Dr. Hinklin said he was to have gone to the cemetery with Drs. Lower and Smith in their automobile. "They missed me, but I'll come right out," he said.

A few minutes later Drs. Lower and Smith arrived in their scarlet-colored machine. They had had some tire trouble on the way, they said, and were delayed half an hour or more.

The doctors, who have been in a bitter newspaper wrangle for a week or more, laughed and joked and told stories until Dr. Hinklin drove up at 4:30 o'clock. The coroner and Drs. Lower and Smith, accompanied by a reporter for the Star, walked to the open grave located on the side of a hill a few rods distant from the road. Drs. Taylor, Crane, Weeks and Hedges remained behind. It was suggested that perhaps the doctors at the cemetery gate were awaiting an invitation. Dr. Smith hurried back. "Doctors, are you waiting for an invitation to come in?" he asked pleasantly.

"We did not wait for an invitation to attend the first autopsy, and I guess we don't have to wait on an invitation from you to attend this one," replied Dr. Taylor, with some heat. "No, we don't need any invitation from you."

That was the first lively tilt. Hot words were exchanged by both doctors, in the course of which Dr. Taylor remarked that he knew "as much and more, too," than Dr. Smith and "his preceptor," meaning by preceptor Dr. Lower.

It was 5 o'clock when the casket was lifted from the grave which contained four or five inches of water. The lifting required the combined strength of seven men. As the white casket was placed beside the grave, one of the doctors caught sight of the lid-plate, which read "At Rest." "That is sadly inappropriate in this case," he remarked.

Coroner Hinklin was asked if the husband of the dead woman had been informed of the disinterment.

"No, I guess not," Dr. Hinklin replied.

"Do any of the relatives know of it?" was another question, to which the coroner said that he had told the woman's mother.

Not a relative or a friend was present.

Some little discussion followed as to where the autopsy should be performed

"It would show more respect if we would take the body to the crown of the hill where we would not be in such plain view of the road," said Dr. Lower.

Six men carried the white casket beneath a cedar tree on top of the little hill, where Undertaker Curtis removed the lid. The corpse, although buried more than a week, was found to be in a splendid state of preservation. The odor was scarcely noticeable.

Mrs Cramer wore a pretty blue silk dress, with white trimmings about the neck and wrists. Her hands were crossed and in one she clutched a faded flower that had been placed there by some loved one. Even the hard-crusted doctors, accustomed as they are to scenes of death, were touched.

A robin red breast perched for a minute on a tombstone near by and flew away. The loud hum of a reaping machine in a large oats field to the west floated in requiem across the graves. To the east, a short distance, through a vista of trees, could be seen a little party of farmer folk gazing curiously toward the cemetery.

Gently the body was taken from the casket and laid on the cooling-board. Immediately Dr. Lower, at the direction of Coroner Hinklin, began the operation to remove the brain. As the operation proceeded the other doctors stood about in a semi-circle and talked with one another in undertones.

Dr. Lower plainly showed his nervousness and once he cut himself on the knuckle of the forefinger of the left hand. He poured embalming fluid on the wound and continued with the operation, assisted by Dr. Smith. Skillfully, Dr. Lower removed the top of the skull and exposed the brain. "This is an odd place, gentlemen, to hold this, but I will do the best I can," he said.

Slowly the trained surgeon's knife dissected the brain tisue. As he cut in twain a nerve he would call the attention of the doctors to what he was doing.

"I want you to see everything, gentlemen," was about all Dr. Lower would say. He was too busy to talk much. Finally the brain was removed and placed on the grass. Then something happened.

"Dr. Taylor, I'd like to ask you what this is?" asked Dr. Smith, who held a tiny substance in a pair of pincers. Dr. Taylor, who was at the outer edge of the little group, came forward. He declined to say what the substance was.

"I knew you didn't know," said Dr. Smith. "Dr. Lower told me what it was. You said you knew more than I and my preceptor put together. Now, Dr. Taylor, tell me what this is."

Dr. Taylor still declined to tell and then followed a jangle, during which Dr. Smith called Dr. Taylor a liar. Two or three times Dr. Lower was heard to say "Shut up."

"It's not necessary to tell what it is," cried Dr. Taylor. "It was not necessary to hold this examination. This ought to have been done when you held the first autopsy, then this poor little girl here would not be subject to such a horrible thing as is now going on."

"Dr. Smith, do you make your question general?" asked Dr. Crane.

"No, Dr. Crane," replied Smith, "for I know you would tell me in a second.

The tiny substance held by Dr. Smith might have been the posterior part of the medulla oblongata, that part of the brain connecting with the spinal cord commonly known as the bulb of the spinal cord, or it might have been a posterior zygapophysis, or, in other words, it might have been mere brain marrow. None of the doctors said what it was. Afterward, however, Dr. Lower declared that it had nothing to do with the cause of the woman's death.

In the covering of the brain a blood clot or two were found. Coroner Hinklin wrapped a part of the covering in a piece of paper and put it in his satchel. Dr. Lower said that the blod clots had nothing to do with the cause of death, that such a condition was natural following death.

After the brain had been minutely dissected, Coroner Hinklin said he was satisfied. Dr. Lower placed the macerated brain back into the skull, replaced the top and drew the scalp back into place. Again the body was put into the casket and carried back to the open grave. Again it was lowered into six feet of earth as the sun was sinking to rest in a bed of golden splendor.

In an interview, Coroner Hinklin said that some pathology had been found in the brain. "I am perfectly satisfied and will make my report, Wednesday," he said.

"Nothing was found in the brain," said Dr Lower. "I did not expect to find anything. In fact, nothing has been found in the chemical test made before or by this examination to show what caused Mrs. Cramer's death. The history of the case is the only thing that can be depended upon. Mrs. Cramer was subject to attacks from a disease that caused the pupils of her eye to contract, and this is what caused her death. I think the coroner's verdict will be to that effect."

Coroner Hinklin declined to indicate what his verdict would be.

Wednesday, Coroner Hinklin declared that he would not be able to render a verdict for two or three days, as he desired to take additional testimony.

MISS NANCY L. LEWIS HOSTESS TO COMPANY

Farewell Is Given for Mrs. Lowry S. Langley.

EVENING IS PASSED IN PLEASANT MANNER

Guest of Honor Contributes Vocal Selections—The Company Lingers Until a Late Hour in the Enjoyment of Social Pleasures—Notes Gathered in Social Circles.

Miss Nancy L. Lewis, of No. 327 south Main street, entertained the choir of the First Presbyterian church, Tuesday evening, in honor of Mrs. Lowry S. Langley who will leave Marion this week for Middletown, where Mr. Langley has accepted a position as business manager of the leading daily newspaper there, and a large printing establishment in connection therewith. The evening was very enjoyably spent in singing by the choir, interspersed with several selections by the guest of honor. Refreshments were served and the company tarried until a late hour.

Mrs. Langley came to Marion, in October 1906, and excepting a year of that time, has been the solo soprano of the Presbyterian choir, and director for the past year and a half. She is the fortunate possessor of a rich and powerful voice of great range and flexibility. She is soon to enter the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music for a year of study and culture. Her friends predict for her a brilliant future.

As a token of the esteem in which she is held the members of the choir, at the reception given by Miss Lewis, presented her an elegant copper chafing dish.

Indignant Mother's Retort.

A Flushing (N. Y.) clergyman, pastor of a popular church there, received as a caller at his parsonage the other day a young matron carrying in her arms a chubby faced youngster.

"I want the baby christened," the mother said.

After the ceremony the clergyman started to write out the baptismal certificate required by the board of health. Forgetting for the moment the date of the month, he remarked to the mother: "This is the 9th, isn't it?"

"No, indeed, sir," replied the young matron indignantly. "It's only the third."

Nothing causes a young widow to sit up and take notice quicker than the discovery that another widow is on the trail of the man she has spotted for No. 2.—Chicago News.

EDINGTON MYERS IN CRITICAL CONDITION

He Drinks Carbolic Acid and Is Taken to Hospital.

THE FOURTH ATTEMPT WITHIN PAST YEAR

Myers Is Drunk When Te Takes the Acid on North Main Street, Thursday Night—Wife Tells the Story of Husband's Trouble—Dry Territory Looked to for Relief.

Edington Myers, aged twenty-six years, and residing on Commercial street, is in a critical condition at the Central Emergency hospital, as the result of an attempt upon his own life, about 11 o'clock Thursday night. He drank carbolic acid. This was the fourth attempt Myers has made to end his life in less than a year.

Myers moved here with his wife about two months ago, from Columbus. He secured work at the Marion Steam Shovel shops and worked steadily up to Wednesday afternoon. The man seemed to be despondent, and, according to the statement of his wife, was drinking heavily. Wednesday evening, when he threw things from the house. When she started to leave the house, he locked the door and threatened to kill her if she left. Thursday morning, he asked her if she would move back to Columbus, and when she replied that she would, the household belongings were packed for storage. Myers came up street in the afternoon, to make arrangements for having the furniture hauled, and he and his wife were to leave in the evening for Columbus.

When Myers did not show up at home in the evening, his wife became alarmed and came up street in search for him. In less than fifteen minutes after Myers had taken the deadly drug, his wife learned of his act and went to the hospital where her husband had been taken.

Myers' rash attempt was made in front of the store of the Kling Hardware company. Christian Preuninger, an employe at the hardware store, was sitting in front of a grocery next door, waiting for a companion. Myers walked up and leaned against a roll of wire, staring at Preuninger. Myers said to Preuninger, "Come here kid," and Preuninger, believing him drunk, paid no attention to the request. Myers staggered back a few steps from the wire. Reaching in his pocket he pulled out a bottle, and, after taking a drink, fell against the window and to the pavement.

Preuninger had seen the act of the man, but believing he was taking whisky, did not interfere. When he fell, Preuninger rushed to him, and picking Myers up, smelled the acid. He laid Myers out and called to Officer Cusic. By this time, a number of persons had assembled, and picking up the victim they ran with him to the hospital. Drs. J. Wilson McMurray and D. O. Weeks had been called and both reached the hospital a few minutes after Myers. An examination was made of the man and the indications were that he had not taken a large quantity of acid. The bottle which contained two ounces of acid, bore the label of Farquar Brothers of Bucyrus. Myers was given a hypodermic injection and several antidotes. After partially recovering, and making a request that he be given morphine, he lapsed into an unconscious state and had not regained consciousness, this morning. Myers' lips, chin, neck and breast were badly burned.

Mrs. Myers, who remained at the hospital with her husband, stated that his first attempt to take his life was made last Thanksgiving in the same manner. He later made a second attempt by taking iodine, and, in May, again tried to take his life by drinking carbolic acid. She stated that after his last attempt he was in bed six weeks and was unconscious a greater part of the time. Mrs. Myers says that her husband has had some worry over paying his rent, and this probably caused him to drink The four attempts on his life were made when he was under the influence of liquor.

Mrs. Myers stated that her object in moving to Marion was to get into dry territory, as it was hard for her husband to stay away from drink. They formerly resided on west Broad street, in Columbus. Mr. and Mrs Scott Myers, parents of the unfortunate man, reside on Central avenue.

ALBERT KREISEL TAKES HIS LIFE

Albert Kreisel, a well-known resident of Marseilles, escaped from the Antonio hospital at Kenton, Wednesday morning, and committed suicide on the Forest road, a mile and one-half north on Kenton. Temporarily insane from illness, Kreisel placed a thirty-two caliber revolver to his head and fired. In a note found in his pocket, he asked to be buried in the Kenton cemetery without a tombstone on his grave. Another note to his son, Frank, bade farewell to him "and the rest."

The body was found by Henry Burnside, who drives an express wagon. A mask covered the face and the right hand still held the revolver to his temple.

COMPANY RECORD IN CAMP PERRY SHOOTING

Corporal Clay G. Howery Qualifies for August Shoot.

THOMAS M'MURRAY MAKES FINE RECORD

Young Man Is Not Enlisted, but Is Admitted to Contests for Medals and Wins Two—May Be Placed on State Rifle Team by Special Arrangement with Governor.

The Fourth regiment, Ohio National guards, returned from Camp Perry, Tuesday night, after a week's camp. The members of D company arrived home in fine fettle, and all of them proud of the scores they had made.

Captain E. O. Richardson made the highest score of his company in the marksman course. Corporal Clay G. Howery made the highest score in the sharpshooters' course and was detailed for the regimental team to shoot in August, when he will be permitted to qualify in the expert riflemen's course. The remainder of the company could not qualify.

Following are the scores by points of the Marion men:

Sharpshooters—Corporal Clay M. Howery, 127; Coporal John W. Roseberry, 123; Sergeant J. M. Anderson, 120.

Marksmen—Captain E. O. Richardson, 106; Sergeant A. A. Meisse, 103; Private B. H. Griffith, 103; Private R. P. Parish, 102; Corporal E. E. Tweddle, 102; Lieutenant E. J. McAninch, 100; Private J. T. Porter, 100; Sergeant E. A. Davis, 99; Private C. D. Bender, 99; Private D. R. Scores, 99; Private Walter Opper, 99; Private J. J. Rowland, 99; Sergeant H. B. Creekbaum, 99; Cook M. L. Edsell, 99; Sergeant Fred Preininger, 98.

Thomas McMurray accompanied the company to Camp Perry and rendered much valuable service to those appearing on the firing line by timely instruction and capable coaching. The young man is not quite seventeen years of age, but has for some time been regarded one of the best rifle shots in the state.

Although he is not an enlisted man, he was admitted to the contests for medals, and his work was remarkable indeed. Out of a possible fifty he made a score of forty-eight, at 500 yards; forty-five, at 600 yards; thirty-seven, at 1,000 yards; thirty-four, in rapid fire at 200 yards; thirty-seven, in slow fire at 200 yards, and eighty-four out of a possible 100 on the skirmish line. The rapid-fire and skirmish-line work, the latter over uncertain distances and at moving targets, is the best of the record, although the scores at each target are well up with the work of the expert riflemen.

The long-range target work was so good that on the 800-yard range it will only be necessary for him to make a score of eighteen out of a possible fifty to qualify as an expert rifleman. The 800-yard range remains to be shot over.

As the result of his work Mr. McMurray won a medal for marksmanship and a sharpshooter's medal.

By a special arrangement with Governor Harmon, an effort will be made to enlist the young man, and, in case he is accepted, he will be placed on the state rifle team, one of the most highly coveted honors of the expert rifleman.

FAIRGROUND IS SCENE OF SERIOUS ACCIDENT

James Webb Is Injured in a Collision.

THE TAX COLLECTION MADE AT RICHWOOD

The Largest Collection on Record for June—Ladies of Christian Church Enjoy a Very Pleasant Affair—Big Barn on Hamilton Farm Is Burned—Richwood Notes.

Richwood, July 30.—[Special.]—A bad accident occurred on Monday afternoon on the fairground race course in which James Webb sustained a badly sprained ankle, wrist and knee, and was severely bruised all over the body. Mr. Webb was working his pacing horse, Dr. Smith, and a collision occurred with E Staley, who was driving his trotter, Maggie Markin. The latter horse frightened at a blanket on another horse and after jumping into the Webb sulky and throwing its occupant to the ground she threw her own driver and ran almost three miles around the track before she was stopped. Mr. Staley suffered no injury but his sulky was demolished. Mr. Webb was taken to the office of Drs. W. B. and H. C. Duke, where his injuries were attended to. He will be unable to drive his horse during the races fair week.

Miss Bessie Baker spent Sunday and Monday with relatives in Columbus and was accompanied home Monday night by her cousin, Miss Ruth Lechler, who will remain here until after the fair.

Robert Smith, mail carrier on rural route, No. 5, is enjoying a vacation of fifteen days. His work will be done by Ray L. Jordan.

Emery Cahill, who was employed by County Treasurer J. J. Scott to collect taxes for northern Union county, in Richwood, closed the books, Saturday, after having made the largest collection record for June. The collection amounted to $21,771.37. Previous collections for June average about $19,000. The books were open from July 12 to July 24 and the largest collection for a single day was made July 23, the day before the books were closed, the amount being $3,325.74. The smallest collection amounted to $751.03, which was made July 20.

L. C. Beem was chosen, Sunday, by the congregation of the M. P. church, to represent them at the annual conference of the denomination to be held at Sabina, August 23-28, inclusive. David Neal was chosen as alternate. The pastor, Rev. M. R. Stover and family will attend and may be accompanied by other members of the congregation.

What would probably have been the starting of an epidemic of diphtheria in Richwood was prevented by the prompt work of the board of health in quarantining the residence of John T. Eagon about ten days ago. Mr. and Mrs. Eagon and their four children had been visiting relatives in Delaware county and while there Myrtle L. Eagon, their eldest daughter, aged thirten years, became quite ill of diphtheria. A Delaware physician administered anti-toxin and the family returned to Richwood. The child has now entirely recovered and the family was released from quarantine Monday.

The barking of a dog aroused Malchus Stamats and family from slumber, Thursday night, and upon investigation they discovered that their summer-kitchen was on fire. They hastily informed their neighbors and by hard work the blaze was prevented from spreading to the house, the kitchen being detached from the main building. Mr. Stamats had just finished remodeling his residence and was fortunate in saving it from partial or total destruction. It is thought that he blaze originated in the flue.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M Fisher and children, of Owens, spent Saturday night and Sunday with the former's parents, Mr and Mrs L D Fisher, and with Mrs. Fisher's mother, Mrs Pierce, who moved to Richwood last week from Marion.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Lenox spent Sunday with relatives in Kenton, making the trip in their automobile.

The ladies of the Christian church held a very enjoyable lawn fete Saturday evening on the Gazette lawn. The attendance was good and a nice sum of money was netted for their church.

The large horse barn on the Hamilton farm, one mile northwest of Richwood, was totally destroyed by fire Monday morning, between 1 and 2 o'clock. It is supposed that the blaze was caused by spontaneous combustion. The barn contained forty tons of new hay, a wagon, pony cart, all the harness, install machinery and other farm paraphernalia, all of which was lost. There were no horses or stock in the structure at the time of the fire. The farm is managed by M. A Bell and is the summer home of S A. Hoskins and family and Miss Marion Hamilton, of Wapakoneta all of whom are here at present. The blaze was seen in Richwood and Fire Chief G. S Collier, and Firemen Charles Adams, Clyde Cushman and William Snyder hastened to the farm in an automobile and assisted in saving the house and other buildings. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

Mrs. Verna Campbell and little son Ross have moved here from Columbus and will reside with the former's mother Mrs. S. E. Phinney, of north Franklin street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Irwin and Mr. and Mrs. T C. Myers and children, of DeGraff were guests Sunday, of Grover W. Worden and family. They made the trip here in Mr Myers' touring car. They were accompanied by Miss Delia Rexer and Mr. Guy Felger, also of DeGraff who spent the day with Mr and Mrs. R R Gill.

Miss Alpha Phillips is visiting friends and attending the Chautauqua at Marysville this week.

Miss Iona Breece, of Wapakoneta, is the guest of Mrs S A Hoskins and Miss Marion Hamilton, at the Hamilton farm, north of Richwood.

G. Y. Arthur has begun preparing for the erection of a modern dwelling on the lot he purchased recently on the corner of Bomford and Fulton streets. This will do away with the gravel pit which has disfigured the corner for two or three years past and will be a great improvement to the streets on which the lot is situated.

Mr and Mrs. M. C. Wolgamot entertained the following relatives Sunday at their home on south Franklin street: Mrs Anna Maize and Miss Clara Maize, Dr. and Mrs Z B Houghton and little son, of Marion; Mr and Mrs. William Baldorf, of Columbus; Mr and Mrs. E F Fissel, of Richwood.

Mr and Mrs L. H. Sigler and little son, of Dayton, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Bolenbaugh, of east Bargrove street.

B. F. Carmean and family are moving their household goods to Marysville this week, where the former has again engaged in the dry goods business. Mr. Carmean will retain his store in Richwood

Miss Mary Jones spent Saturday and Sunday with her mother in Marion.

Mrs. Martha Maize returned home Sunday from a visit of several weeks with relatives in St. Paris.

Leo Fisher, of Marion, spent Saturday night and Sunday with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Fisher and other relatives here.

Miss Ruth Jolliff is spending the week with Miss Lucille Wildermooth, of Columbus.

Mrs. Charles Allen, of LaRue was the guest Friday and Saturday, of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schertzer.

There are twelve running horses at the fairground race course, besides a large number of pacers and trotters. The races next week promise to surpass in interest any ever held in Union county. A number of shows have arrived and the fairground is fast being filled up.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Peet and daughters are visiting relatives in Akron and Cleveland.

Mrs. J. B. Simons and daughter, Miss Mae Simons, of Sidney, New York, have been guests of the former's son, A. B. Simons and family, during the past week, coming here from Clinton, Iowa, where they visited relatives. Miss Simons left today for Mt. Pleasant, Pennsylvania, to spend a few days.

Dr. James Cutler and F. H. Thornhill attended the funeral of the late George W. Court, which was held at Marysville Tuesday afternoon.

HARRY THAW AND HIS MOTHER GOING TO WHITE PLAINS COURT

From the hour that William Travers Jerome stepped into the Thaw sanity inquiry at White Plains he took virtual charge of the state's end of the case. Jerome's contention is that Thaw is the victim of prenatal conditions that have rendered him a dangerous person all his life. His further contention is that Thaw's apparent condition now is a studied one, calculated to carefully conceal the real condition of his mind. At various times during the inquiry Jerome and Thaw talked pleasantly to each other and more than once shook hands cordially. Thaw, however, has very little liking for Jerome and makes no secret of the fact that he thinks the district attorney of New York went out of his official duty when he went to Westchester county to follow up the case. This photograph shows Harry Thaw and his mother on the way to court.

HUNGARIAN APPEARS BEFORE THE MAYOR

He Is Found Guilty of Assault on Foreman Lang.

JOHN MISKO IS HELD AT THE CITY PRISON

His Countrymen Are Hustling To Secure the Amount of His Fine and the Costs of Prosecution—The Cause of the Trouble in Local Shops—Police Court Notes.

John Misko, the Hungarian arrested at the shops of the American Malleable & Castings company, Wednesday morning, for making an assault on the foreman, William C Lang, was given a hearing in the mayor's court, Thursday. In the Star's account of the trouble, published Wednesday, it was stated that Misko had the trouble with Manager C. L. LaMarche. This was an error, caused through the misunderstanding of the police and reporter. Mr. LaMarche was out of the city when the trouble occurred.

At the hearing Thursday, six witnesses testified for Lang and six for Misko. All of Misko's witnesses were Hungarians who quit their positions at the shop shortly before and after the trouble occurred. From the evidence introduced, it was plainly evident that Misko was at fault and that he was the aggressor in the trouble. The mayor found him guilty as charged in the affidavit filed by Lang, and he was fined five dollars and the costs in the case and sentenced to stand committed until the amount is paid. The fine and costs amounted to $12.50, and Misko not having the money was remanded to a cell in the prison, while his countrymen went out to raise the amount.

Lang proved at the hearing that Misko was not a moulder, contrary to the claims of the latter. He further showed that Misko and his countrymen were trying to run the shop, and, although Lang has only been in charge a week, they have taken a dislike to him because they can not have their way. As the result of the trouble, about a dozen of the Hungarians have quit their jobs at the shop.

What She Wanted.

Mrs Nourich (on music store)—I want a piece of music for my little girl, who is learning to play the piano.

Clerk—Yes, ma'am. Here is "The Maiden's Prayer" for 35 cents. How would that suit?

Mrs Nourich—Oh, she's further advanced than that. Why, last week she played a piece that cost 50 cents. Haven't you something for about 75 cents?—Chicago News

In recognition of the growing importance of the subject of public health and preventive medicine Harvard university recently announced the establishment of a department in its medical school exclusively devoted to those subjects and the election of Dr. Milton J. Rosenau of Washington as professor of hygiene and preventive medicine and head of the new department. Dr. Rosenau will begin his service at Harvard with the opening of the next college year.

Too True!

There is a rare bit of pathos in the letter written by the late Dr. Edward Everett Hale to the Tyngsboro, (Mass.) centennial committee in the latter part of March regretting his inability to attend the celebration. He wrote, "I have another engagement, which I cannot cancel, for the end of June."

Most people are willing to do their duty—as they see it.

TAFT TO MAKE A TRIP DOWN MISSISSI

President Taft Will Be the Guest St. Louis.

Washington, July 29.—President Taft has accepted the invitation to visit St. Louis and go from there down the Mississippi river to New Orleans where he will attend the lakes to the gulf deep waterway convention. The date of his arrival in St. Louis will be October 26 and he will stay over night there and leave for the south on board of one of the palatial river steamers the following day.

The president's steamboat will be one of a flotilla of at least thirty vessels and in the procession it is expected there will be thirty governors of the states, the vice president, speaker of the house of representatives, and a large number of senators and representatives in congress. After making a speech before the waterways convention, the president will proceed through the Southeast, visiting Alabama, Georgia and the Carolinas on his way down the Mississippi. The president expects to stop at Memphis, Vicksburg, Natchez and possibly one or two other towns.

Representative Barthold, of Missouri, today obtained the president's acceptance of the St. Louis invitation and the designation of the date of his visit.

Let your religion make good when you will not need to worry about making others good.

TEACHERS SELECTED FOR THE HIGH SCHOOL

Important Meeting of the Board of Education.

MARION MEN ASK FOR THE POSITIONS

A. F. Lantzer, of Near Pittsburg, and S. C. Diver, of Detroit, Are Named for Places—A Star Chamber Session of the School Board Held Tuesday Evening.

After a bitter and long-continued wrangle the board of education, at an adjourned meeting held at the High school building, Tuesday evening, elected two High school teachers and two grade teachers. A. F. Lantzer, of near Pittsburg Pennsylvania, was elected to teach mathematics to succeed K. H. Marshall, the new High school principal, and S. C. Diver, of Detroit, was chosen head of the commercial department to succeed C. E. Berry, resigned. The grade teachers elected were Misses Lulu Keller and Cora Zachman.

Temporary Clerk H. Edmond Hill called the roll at 8:06 o'clock. Members W. B. Spaulding, George B. Christian, Jr., M. B. Dickerson and F. E. Guthery were present. Following the allowing of bills, Chairman Dickerson, of the buildings and grounds committee, reported that an insurance inspector had inspected the school-buildings and was well pleased with conditions here. Mr. Dickerson said the inspector informed him that there would be a readjustment of rates in Marion soon, and that the rates on the school-buildings would be lowered as a result of the unusually good fire-proof conditions.

Clerk Hill read a communication from the chief inspector of factories and workshops calling attention to the fact that plans for all public buildings must be submitted to the state bureau for its approval.

"How about our two-room frame at the David's Street building?" asked President Spaulding.

"Oh, that will be all right," said Member Dickerson. He smiled and added: "But let us go on. We ought to have forty more commercial desks for the High school and thirty-six student chairs."

The buildings and grounds committee was authorized to purchase the needed desks and chairs.

A motion was carried to pay half the expense for an evening speaker for the joint city and county teachers' institute to be held the last week in August. Several speakers are being considered, among them George Vincent and J. Adam Bede.

Nearly all of the board members expressed a preference to hear W. G. Harding, of this city, deliver the address.

President Spaulding called on Superintendent H. L. Frank for a report on teachers, when Member Guthery made a motion that the board go into executive session. Member Christian smiled and seconded the motion. Member Guthery wanted to know what the reporters were smiling about as they left the room. It was then 8:45 o'clock, from which time on the members were in star chamber session until after 11 o'clock. Even when the votes were taken on teachers the reporters were barred.

Knowing that a division of opinion existed among the five members present, Superintendent Frank said that he would nominate for teacher of mathematics any one on whom four members could agree. Among the several applicants for the place was Emerson Parks, a graduate of the Marion High school, and Member Hill was for the Marion man. Superintendent Frank, while he said he would like to nominate a Marion county man, felt that Mr. Parks was too inexperienced and that his election would violate one of the rules of school board requiring the applicant to have at least two years' experience.

A long discussion followed and finally Superintendent Frank nominated A. F. Lantzer, of Pennsylvania, who is thirty years of age and married. To the superintendent's surprise all the members voted for him. Mr. Lantzer's present address is Madison, Wisconsin, where he is attending school.

For commercial teacher Mr. Frank again said that he would nominate any one the board desired. "If four of you can't agree on any applicant, then I shall nominate," he said.

A Marion county man also sought this position. Calvonce Davis wanted the job and Member Hill was inclined to favor him. Other members of the board thought he was too inexperienced. Superintendent Frank finally nominated S. C. Diver, of Detroit. The vote was taken and Member Hill and Spaulding voted no. The motion was lost.

A discussion of other applicants took place and Superintendent Frank expressed his willingness to let the matter be carried over. The board members were becoming tired.

"If you think we really ought to elect Diver I'll vote for him," said Spaulding in capitulation. Another vote was taken and Diver was elected. He, too, is a young man and married. He is a graduate of Mount Union college.

The salaries of the two newly-elected High school teachers is $900 a year.

JANITOR FATZLER IS GIVEN BIG SURPRISE

Catches Man Prowling in School Rooms at Night.

THINKS HE SEES GHOST AT FIRST

Fellow Is Walking About in His Stockinged Feet and Is Perfectly Cool and Collected When Questioned as to His Presence in Building—Quite a Mystery.

Fred Fatzler, janitor at the Olney Avenue school-building, had an experience with a "ghost" that proved to be a bold man in his stockinged feet, Tuesday night.

Janitor Fatzler went to the school-building about 9 o'clock. He admired the beautiful half moon and whistled tunefully. He was still whistling when he turned the key in one of the side doors and entered the dark building with his lantern, which cast but a dim circle about him. As the janitor treaded rapidly down the hall near the principal's room, a shadowy form appeared in the doorway of the principal's room and walked toward Fatzler. For a minute the janitor felt the cold sweat beading on his forehead and his hair rising perpendicularly.

"What the devil are you doing here?" cried the janitor. His voice resounded in the big empty rooms.

"What the devil are you doing here this time of night?" demanded the figure, then Fatzler knew a man and not an apparition was talking.

"I'll show you what I am doing here," said the janitor, and he backed to the door, opened it and locked it. The man in his stockinged feet laughed softly at the janitor.

"He was the coolest fellow I ever saw," said Janitor Fatzler later to P. S. Wilson, superintendent of buildings and grounds, to whom he reported his experience. The strange man had fled when Janitor Fatzler returned to the school-building.

"What the fellow was doing is a mystery to us," declared Mr. Wilson.

MONTANALAND IS OPENED TO SETTLERS

Subject to Settlement About the Middle of November.

ABOUT 213,000 ACRES IN DOMAIN

Land Is Preserved from the Alleged Water-Power Trust by the Last Administration — Is Included in Roosevelt Conservation Projects and Is Valuable.

Washington, July 28.—More than 213,000 acres of Montana land withdrawn from the public domain by the Roosevelt administration, to keep it from being grabbed by the alleged water power trust, and in conformity with Roosevelt's conservation projects, were yesterday again thrown open to entry by the interior department and will be subject to settlement about the middle of November.

Of this area, 2,742 acres is a restoration of lands which the interior department on May 29, 1909 withdrew as possible water sites, as a result of the tremendous protest by Secretary Ballinger's original program of turning over the power sites which Garfield, his predecessor had carefully reserved for the people.

The other and restored lands, 195,000 acres formerly withdrawn, in connection with the power site restoration project, 14,000 acres formerly withdrawn under the Massoth shelf project, 2,000 acres formerly withdrawn in connection with the Sun River project.

Fifteen thousand acres, formerly removed under the Buford-Trenton project, North Dakota was also restored to entry today.

When it comes to settling up the score there is nothing more expensive than the wedding present you got.

And you have no doubt observed that passenger trains invariably get to the station five minutes late.

HE SEEKS TO HAVE A DECREE MODIFIED

W. D. McKisson Files a Petition in Court.

MAN COMPLAINS OF WIFE'S ACTIONS

Says He Is Driven Away When He Applies for His Children for a Season in Keeping with the Orders of the Court—Some Common Pleas Court Notes.

William D. McKisson, through Attorneys Crissinger & Guthery, filed an application in the common pleas court, Thursday, seeking a modification of a decree rendered by Judge B. G. Young in July, 1905, when he dismissed McKisson's petition for a divorce from Rebecca E. McKisson, gave the wife and mother custody of their two children and ordered that the plaintiff pay eight dollars a month alimony. By this same decree McKisson was given the privilege of visiting the children once a month and of having them in his custody during school vacations twice a year. In his application, McKisson recites the number of times he has gone to the present home of his wife to get possession of the children for the time specified in the decree. On practically every occasion he has been driven away, he claims. The first time Mrs. McKisson, he says, threatened to use a club on him. Another time his wife's brother, John Beacher, and W. D. Miller, a hired hand interfered with him in his attempt to get the children.

The children's mother, the applicant says, has taught his own children to despise him so that they do not want to accompany him. Once, he says, his nine-year-old son got a shotgun and tried to kill him when he went to his former's wife home, near Perrysville, Ashland county.

With his application for a modification of the decree, in which he asks custody of the children and relief from the payment of alimony, McKisson also filed a motion to have the court cite John Bearcher for contempt of court, in interfering with the father when he tried to get possession of his children.

The McKissons were married December 27, 1897, and the husband brought suit for divorce August 26, 1903. After the petition was dismissed, Mrs. McKisson brought suit in Ashland county and was granted a decree of divorce by Judge Campbell. The order of Judge Young with regard to the custody of the children and alimony was allowed to stand.

In the suit of George A. Ruth against Emma Ferrin, F. E. Guthery, guardian of Caroline Ada, an insane person, has filed an answer and cross-petition, setting up a general denial and asking that his ward's one-third interest in the estate be protected. In the answer and cross-petition of Pauline Seiter, she sets up an interest of two-fifths in the same estate.

A motion to secure the costs in the suit of John M. Gardner and Bert Kelly, partners, against the Layton Oil & Gas company, has been filed in the common pleas court by John B. Layton through Attorneys Copeland & Bartram. Motions to dismiss the action on account of lack of jurisdiction have also been filed in the same suit by R. B., J. B. and H. D. Layton, defendants.

In the partition suit of John G. Morgenthaler against Jacob F. Morgenthaler, the defendant has filed a cross-petition, in which he sets up his claim and asks that the premises described in the petition be sold.

Judge B. G. Young has approved the order of sale of the chattels of the Marion Preserving company and discharged the receiver, Fred L. Carhart.

In his final report filed in the common pleas court Friday morning, Receiver Carhart states that he has sold the company's chattels for the total sum of $548.75.

A motion to set aside service and quash summons on R. E. Jones in the suit of John M. Gardner and Bert Kelly against the Layton Oil & Gas company, was filed in the common pleas court last Friday, by Attorney Charles J. Pretzman, of Columbus.

C. L. Van Inwagen brought suit in the common pleas court Saturday to recover judgment for $79.60 from M. L. Sapp and for nursery stock. The Marion Savings, Building & Loan company and H. C. King are named as parties defendant.

ALFRED KORTE FOUND GUILTY OF CHARGES

Is Fined for the Illegal Sale of Whisky.

TRIAL IS HELD IN MAYOR HUFF'S COURT

Korte Is Fined $150 and the Costs of Prosecution—Will Carry the Matter to the Common Pleas Court. Testimony Adduced on Both Sides of the Proceeding.

Alfred Korte, charged by Wilbert E. Stillwell with selling intoxicating liquors in violation of the Rose county option law, had his trial before Mayor Huff, at Prospect, Tuesday afternoon. The trial lasted from 1 o'clock until about 7 o'clock, and, at the conclusion of the testimony, the major rendered a verdict of guilty against the defendant and fined him $150 and the costs in the case. The motion for a new trial was overruled, and August 3 was the date set for the filing of a bill of exceptions on which to take the case to the common pleas court.

The prosecution was represented by Attorneys J. Thompson and J. H. Clark, L. E. Myers handling the defendant's side. W. E. Stillwell and J. C. Bennett were the two important witnesses for the prosecution. They testified that, July 5, they purchased a bottle of whisky from Bartender Heflinger, who at the time was tending bar at Korte's place. According to the two men the sale was made about the hour of 1 o'clock p. m. A bottle of whisky, alleged to have been bought by the men, was offered in evidence. Frank Wilhelm was another witness called by the prosecution, his testimony being unimportant. Ellis Landon was called to testify in regard to seeing a government license in Korte's place, but on the stand he stated that he did not remember seeing such a license.

Korte, Frank Smith, George Abbott, Bernard Heflinger and Oscar McElhaney offered testimony in behalf of the defendant. In their testimony, they endeavored to prove that neither Korte nor Heflinger were at Korte's place at the time and date mentioned in the affidavit. The story of the witnesses agreed in almost every detail, and they further testified that Stillwell and Bennett were not at the place at the time mentioned.

GENERAL HUMIDITY SOMETHING FIERCE

The Temperature of Wednesday and Thursday.

"The oppresive heat of the past forty-eight hours has not been due to the temperature so much as to the general humidity," said Dr. Raffensperger, the official weatherman, Thursday. The temperature at noon, was eighty-four and Wednesday it was eighty-nine.

"The genral humidity Wednesday night and next morning was round about ninety," said Dr. Raffensperger. "You see, that's pretty high and that is why we are all suffering from oppresive heat. The average humidity is from forty-five to fifty per cent and when it gets to ninety per cent., it is getting fierce. One hundred per cent., you know, is solid water."

The rain Thursday and the lowering clouds had a tendency to cool the atmosphere and afford some relief to suffering humanity.

JANET ENSMINGER IS BADLY INJURED

Cuts Her Right Hand on a Pane of Window Glass.

Janet, a fourteen-year-old daughter of Fred Ensminger, residing north of the city, met with a serious accident about 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The girl was in the act of putting down a window, in which there was a broken pane of glass. In some manner she struck her right hand against the edge of the glass with considerable force, cutting a deep gash across the back of the hand and severing the tendons of the two middle fingers. The wounded girl was hurriedly brought to this city, and taken to the office of Dr. C. T. Wiant. Dr. J. G. Seiter was called and administered the anaesthetic, after which the injury was given the proper surgical attention.

LIGHTNING KILLS A TEAM OF HORSES

C. A. Monnette Loses Team Valued at $500.

A team of horses belonging to C. A. Monnette and valued at $500, was killed by lightning during the storm between 1 and 2 o'clock Thursday. Mr. Monnette had been making hay just east of the residence of E. B. Dyer on Mt. Vernon avenue and the horses was being used to haul the hay to the barn. When the storm came up the driver of the horses led them to a tree and took shelter in a tool-shed. A team of mules was hitched to the rear of the wagon drawn by the horses. Lightning struck the tree and the horses dropped dead. The mules were unhurt.

LATHAM GOES INTO THE SEA

Fourth Attempt To Cross Channel Ends in Failure

WHEN HE IS NEAR HIS COVETED GOAL

Only Two Miles from Dover When Airship Dives.

Is Picked Up by Warship and Taken to Dover—Conditions Are Adverse—Heavy Rainfall During Greater Part of Trip—His Attempt the Third He Makes Today—Count De Lambert Also Fails.

Dover, July 27.—Hubert Latham, the French aviator, today made a second unsuccessful effort to fly across the English channel, this time attempting to go as far as London. He fell into the channel two miles from Dover, but was picked up by a British warship and brought safely to port.

Latham has been heart-broken because Bleriot made the first trip across the channel, and his flight today was foolhardy. He started in a light rain which turned into a heavy downpour before he was half way across the channel. Despite this, the daring Frenchman insisted on making the trip.

Latham started from Sangatte, on a high cliff near Calais. He was warned that the weather was too unfavorable for him to make the attempt, but he declined to accept the warning. The air was misty. Latham, however, gave orders for the warships to string out across the channel to pick him up in the event he fell.

60,000 See the Start.

In spite of the rain there were 60,000 persons around the place when Latham sent his machine along at a high rate of speed and then soared high into the air, easily clearing the telegraph wires strung along the cliff.

There were wild cheers as the aviator advanced at lightning speed over the short stretch of land and then over the sea. He made rapid time and the monoplane seemed to be making a marvelously successful flight.

On the cliffs at Dover a hundred thousand persons were straining their eyes through the mist, looking for the approach of the aviator.

Suddenly the machine broke through the mist, flying straight and fast. There were wild cheers as Latham bore down toward the white cliffs, still about five miles out at sea. On he came, with a tremendous outburst of speed and soaring very high in the air, apparently in an endeavor to pass over the cliffs and continue on toward London.

Falls Rapidly.

Then it was noticed that the speed of the monoplane had stopped. Like a wounded bird, Latham's machine began falling rapidly, plunging into the sea about two miles outside the breakwater, after a flight of nearly twenty miles.

A whole fleet of yachts, warships and pleasure boats were outside the harbor watching the flight, and they rushed toward the spot where Latham had fallen. A British warship was nearest and was soon at the aviator's side.

Latham was picked up, absolutely unhurt and rushed into Dover, where in spite of his failure, he was given a tremendous ovation for his courage in starting under such adverse weather conditions.

So sure was Latham that he would make the flight that he had sent his automobile over on a boat this morning and his chauffeur was waiting at the top of the cliff to follow Latham on the road to London in the event he succeeded in crossing the channel and decided to continue overland.

Two Previous Attempts.

Calais, July 27.—Hubert Latham and his aeroplane met with a second mishap at an early hour today while Latham was testing the machine preparatory to a second attempt to cross the English channel. A sudden gust of wind bore the aeroplane to the ground with such force that it was slightly damaged.

Five minutes later Latham again mounted in the aeroplane and in descending after a few minutes of successful flight, the machine was again damaged by the buckling of the running wheel. None of the injuries to the machine are serious and Latham announced that he would attempt to sail the channel this afternoon if the weather conditions are favorable.

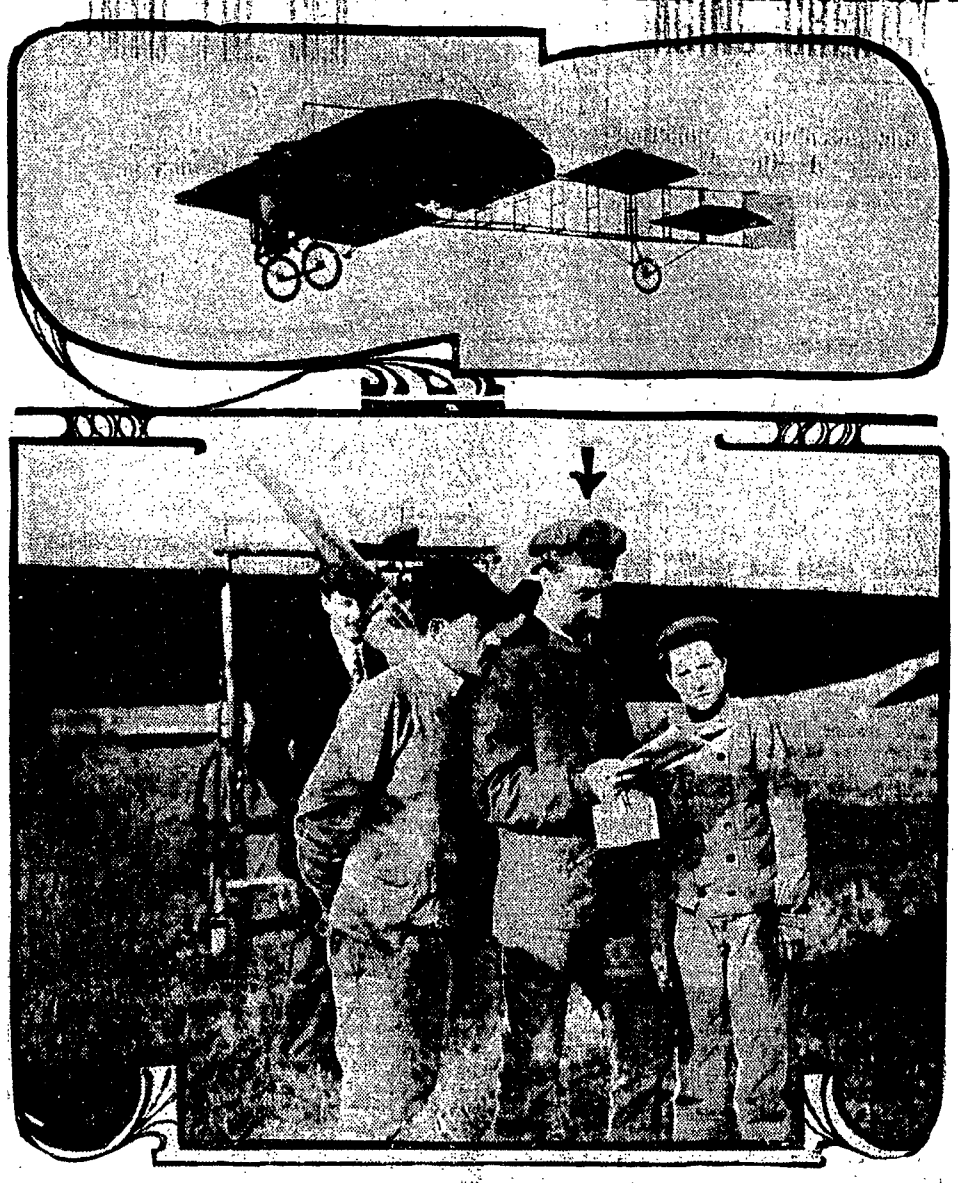
Latham was uninjured. The machine is the same one in which Latham tried last week to cross the channel, but which fell into the water about nine miles out, owing to the failure of the motor.

Latham is clearly piqued that he was not the first to cross the channel in an aeroplane, and he intimated today that he would try to freshen up his aeronautic laurels by not only crossing the channel, but keeping right on to London if everything went well with his machine. He is confident he can make the longer journey, and in anticipation of the attempt, motor cars are being posted throughout Kent, through which he must pass, to render aid to the aeronaut in case of accident.

Makes Bad Start.

Calais, July 27.—Count De Lambert attempted to cross the English channel today in a Wright aeroplane, but he got a bad start and the machine struck the ground before even the water's edge was reached. The machine was damaged to such an extent that the count will probably wait until tomorrow before again attempting a flight.

BLERIOT, WHO HAS OUTDONE LATHAM IN DARING ENGLISH CHANNEL FLIGHT



The keenest rivalry existed between M. Bleriot and Hubert Latham from the time they completed their flying machines, and each after various flights turned attention to the English channel, the feat of crossing which has been the ambition of daring swimmers and aeronants of all times Latham knew that Bleriot and possibly the Count de Lambert would sooner or later make the attempt, and he stole a march on them, starting from Calais, France, on July 19 and making a remarkable flight of ten miles before the steering gear of his machinehe came fouled and he fell into the water. Neither Latham nor the monoplane was injured. The aviator was sitting in his machine calmly smoking a cigaret when he was picked up by a passing ship. Bleriot then announced that he would try to cross the treacherous strip of water and hurried to Calais, hoping to make the flight before Latham or Lambert could be ready. Latham, however, arrived there a few hours later, and there was spirited betting on both sides of the channel as to which would start first and which would come the nearest to a successful flight. Bleriot's machine is the smallest practical flying machine ever built. It is of the same type as Latham's and is propelled by a tiny but powerful motor. The driver's seat is behind the wings, and the machine has a speed of forty miles an hour. In the accompanying illustration Bleriot is indicated by an arrow. Bleriot made the trip under most unfavorable conditions.

HE TOMAHAWKS HIS YOUNG WIFE

Fanning Waylays Her on Lonely Country Road.

WRITES A LETTER TELLING OF CRIME

Then Blows Out His Brains in Police Station.

Crime Is the Result of Drink—His Fondness for Liquor Ends Romance in Which He Weds the Reigning Belle of Westport—Life of Babe Is Spared by Father. Crime Is Spectacular and Weird.

New Bedford, Mass., July 26.—Waylaying his beautiful wife on a lonely country road and striking her down with an old Indian tomahawk, Robert M. Fanning, of Westport, fled to his home, wrote a startling letter to the chief of police at New Bedford, in which he blessed his dead wife, drove to New Bedford, delivered the letter in the central police station, and then in the presence of three police officers, blew out his brains, dying almost instantly.

The crime was spectacular and wierd. Fanning literally hacked his wife to death with the tomahawk, which he had dug from the grave of an old Indian chief near here.

Fanning's crime was caused by drink.

Five years ago Fanning, a man in moderate circumstances, met Tina Hall, a beautiful daughter of George Hall, the wealthiest man in Westport, enjoying an income of $15,000 a year.

Mrs. Fanning was a reigning beauty. For two years they lived happily. Then Fanning began to drink and there were frequent quarrels. The birth of a baby girl failed to heal the breach.

Sunday the couple had a violent quarrel and Mrs. Fanning, in alarm, fled to the home of George Tripp, a miller, half a mile distant. She left Tripp's house at 8:30 o'clock last night to return to her own home. Fanning waylaid her on the west side of Lyon's brook and beat her to death with the tomahawk, hiding her body in the bushes where it was found today, horribly mangled.

Fanning then returned to his own home, where he wrote the following wierd letter, addressed to the chief of police at New Bedford:

Fanning's Letter.

"To Whom It May Concern: I am very, very sorry for what has occurred, and the police can judge for themselves if I was not too hasty, and likewise my wife, God bless her. My baby is still living by this time, God bless her, and I hope she will never know what happened to her dead father and mother. I loved my child better than myself. May God give me his blessings and to my child everlasting good will. I have had a good deal to put up with, and the end is near.

"Trusting my baby will have the best of care, as she is one of the best babies that ever lived. It is hard to leave such a happy child, but my God, I must.

"Oh, God, I wish I could live to comfort my child; she has everything to live for. I hope she will benefit by it, as there is enough for her to be wealthy. I would like to have my baby join us but as cruel as I am, I have no heart for such. My wife's body lays on the west side of Lyon's brook, about fifty feet to the south of the bushes. Please give it your immediate attention and remove the same as soon as possible. At my request please bury us both together. Trusting you will do your duty, I remain,

"Yours very truly,

"Robert M. Fanning."

Adds Postscript.

"P. S.—Dont' fail to look for my wife's body and remove same as soon as possible. Oh, my God, what have I done * * * for baby—be sure and put my baby in good hands. My folks will take her as I wish, which is my last wish. Hoping my baby will be looked after as I know my folks will attend to it, good-by, pa and ma, brothers and sisters, and to all my friends. God bless you all and not forgetting my own flesh and blood, my baby. Mrs. Murray is a kind woman and I must not forget her. God bless her. I am sorry for what I have done. Please give my ring and belongings to my brother, Will."

Fanning then entered his automobile and drove to Parker's garage in this city where he left his car and walked to the police station. He was greatly excited when he walked up to Police Lieutenant Comstock's desk, shortly after 1:30 o'clock this morning. He steadied himself sufficiently to ask Lieutenant Comstock to read the letter. The officer persued a part of the contents and then turned to Fanning: "What do you want me to do about this?"

Fanning laconically answered: "Just this," and drew a revolver, the muzzle of which he placed in his mouth. Lieutenants Comstock and Wing and a private policeman rushed toward him, but before they could reach him he had pulled the trigger and sent a bullet into his brain, dying instantly.

Greek Flag Hoisted.

Canea, Crete, July 27.—Following yesterday's evacuation of Crete by the troops of the four protecting powers, the Greek flag was today hoisted over the Cretan militia barracks here and was enthusiastically received by the populace who mingled their cheers with hoots for Turkey.

A GIRL TAKES HER OWN LIFE

In Preference To Taking That of Another.

FOUND DEAD IN A FOREST CITY PARK

Thirty-Two Caliber Revolver Beside Her.

Mother Gives Out the Information That the Girl Is Forced To Kill Herself or Follow the Instructions of an Anarchistic Society of Which She Is Evidently a Member—Coroner Investigating the Case.

Cleveland, July 26.—Relatives of Rebecca Bosechek, eighteen, found dead in Gordon park, Sunday morning, with a bullet hole in her right temple, says she died as the result of a death-drawing held by an anarchist society. By lot she was chosen to slay or die, they assert. She took the latter alternative.

The girl's body was found in a clump of bushes near the east drive in Gordon park. The right hand clutched a thirty-two caliber revolvel.

Two girls went to the home of Mrs. H. Goldberg early Sunday morning and asked for Rebecca. "She is not here; we don't know where she is," Mrs. Goldberg says she told them.

"Then we want the books we loaned her," said one. Mrs. Goldberg said the books and newspaper clippings had disappeared. "We looked for them Sunday, but couldn't find them," she says.

"The society forced her to kill some one marked out, or herself," Mrs. Goldberg said. "Rebecca decided to kill herself."

Deputy Coroner Droege is investigating.

A PARSON SNAPS ANKLES AND BUSTS

To Demonstrate the Tendency Toward Display of Figures.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 26.—Prosecutions are threatened today as the result of the action of Rev. G. L. Morrill, a local minister, in flashing upon a screen during a sermon photographs of the ankles of some of the prominent women of Minneapolis.

The photographs were used to illustrate a lecture by the minister on "The Lewd and Nude," and the twenty-five pictures were intended to show how far some Minneapolis women go in their endeavor to display their figures to advantage. The preacher showed pictures of dainty ankles and of women in low neck gowns and followed these with pictures of several nude paintings, comparing the latter with the former.

Rev. Mr. Morrill says he took all of his photographs last Saturday on Nicholette avenue, Minneapolis' fashionable street.

VALUABLE FIND MADE BY CHICKEN

Scratches Up Jewelry Valued at Eleven Thousand Dollars.

Asbury Park, N. J., July 27.—All because a chicken scratched under his porch yesterday, William M. Skinner, of Lakewood, recovered $11,000 worth of jewelry looted from his home last April.

Charles Goldstein saw something bright and shining where the chicken persisted in scratching up the dirt under the porch of Skinner's home. Upon investigating, the jewelry was found.

Skinner declares the night of the robbery was blustery and he believes the robber hid the jewelry under the porch intending to call for it when the storm had blown over.

QUINTETS BORN TO A NEW JERSEY WOMAN

All of Them Die Within Quarter of an Hour.

New York, July 26.—Mrs. Thomas Renwick, thirty-three, of Newark, New Jersey, gave birth to five children at her home last night. Four of the babies, two boys and two girls, were well formed, but the fifth was undeveloped. All, however, died within a quarter of an hour. Mrs. Renwick is none the worse for the ordeal. She is the mother of three other children.

FRIGHTFUL DEATH TAKES ENGINEER

His Engine Turns Turtle Near Ottawa Beach.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 26.—Death in frightful form overtook Engineer Michael Powers, of the Pere Marquette railroad early this morning when the engine turned turtle about two miles east of Ottawa Beach, imprisoning him in the cab where his life was crushed out. The fireman Joseph Wise, leaped from the engine, escaping with minor injuries.

The train consisted of a baggage car and three coaches and was known as the business man's special, on its way to the beach to bring resorters back to the city, and contained no passengers. The officials state that the train was going at its customary speed, and are inclined to lay the accident to the softness of the track in that locality.

For Breach of Promise.

New York, July 27.—The hearing of the bill of particulars of Anna Bertha Grunspan, who is suing William English Walling, the noted Chicago Socialist, for $100,000 breach of promise, will come up today before Supreme Court Justice Brady.

GAMBLING JOINT RUN BY URESSKY

In the Fortress of Sts. Peter and Paul.

IT IS RAIDED BY RUSSIAN POLICE

While Game for Monster Stakes Is Going On.

Colonel Uressky, Counted One of Russia's Bravest Soldiers, at First Shows Fight, but When He Notes He Is in Line with Guns of Invaders He Surrenders—Will Be Court-Martialed.

St. Petersburg, July 27.—Colonel Uressky, counted one of Russia's bravest soldiers, turns out also to be one of Russia's shrewdest gamblers, and he is today facing a court-martial as a result of sensational disclosures that followed a raid on his rooms in Fortress Sts. Peter and Paul.

The tip to the authorities that the colonel was "entertaining" his friends by taking the limit off, came from a young woman, whose name is not divulged, who alleged that she had been cheated out of a large sum of money in a game in the colonel's rooms. Her evidence was so strong that the commandant ordered troops to raid Uressky's apartment.

The place was broken into and a group of well-known autocrats were found around the card table playing for mammoth stakes. The colonel and his guests at first showed fight and revolvers were drawn, only to be lowered when other soldiers appeared in the doorways with leveled guns.

Evidence given the authorities by some of those arrested indicates that the colonel's rooms in the fortress were really the biggest "gambling joint" in St. Petersburg. For several years it has been the meeting place of a lot of high-rollers and it is estimated that millions of roubles have changed hands there. The authorities wondered how Uressky maintained himself in such splendid style, but were told he had inherited a fortune.

ROBBERS LOOT NILES POSTOFFICE

Get $125 in Cash and $600 in Stamps and Escape.

Niles, O., July 26.—Robbers broke into the Niles postoffice early today, looted the safe and escaped with $125 in cash and $600 in stamps.

In their haste to escape, the men dropped a mail sack, into which they had packed $3,000 in sheet stamps and stamp books. They also overlooked $65 in the rear of the cash drawer.

Federal officers have found no clew to the thieves, who entered by breaking in a rear door. There was no combination on the outside of the safe, and they had no difficulty in reaching the compartment in which the stamps were stored. The robbers disdained to carry away 141 pennies.

Postmaster E. F. DeCarmo, whose term expires this week, discovered the theft.

A good story is better than solid facts—from a literary point of view.

CZAR OF RUSSIA AGING GREATLY

He Looks Twenty Years Older Than He Is.

LINES SHOW IN FACE OF CZARINA

Their Appearance Startles Their German Friends.

The Czar Is Rapidly Turning Gray, His Face Appears Careworn and Is Seamed with Many Lines—Empress Seems To Be Broken Down in Health—Both Are Guests of Prince Henry of Prussia.

Kiel, July 27.—The Czar of Russia and the Czarina arrived at Heimelmark castle, near here today, to be the guests of Prince Henry of Prussia until tomorrow evening.

Troops swarm around the castle, and elaborate preparations to protect the Czar have been made. No one not duly authorized is allowed within a mile of the castle.

The rapid aging appearance of both the Czar and Czarina startled those who saw them today. Nicholas' face appeared careworn and was seamed with heavy lines. His hair is becoming gray and he looks twenty years older than his actual years. The empress seemed to be broken down in health. She expressed her pleasure at the peaceful atmosphere about the castle, and remarked that it was so different in Russia.

Socialists are planning to meet here tomorrow to protest against the Czar's visit, but the Czar will not know anything of their action, as both he and the Czarina are remaining in seclusion.

To Protect Czar.

Cherbourg, July 27.—Hundreds of police agents and detectives have arrived at Cherbourg today to prepare for the visit of the Czar on Saturday. They are keeping an eye on the anarchists that have swarmed to the city and assert they can easily protect the Czar.

There is keen disappointment among the anarchists at the change in arrangements whereby the Czar will not come ashore. They had planned a counter demonstration. The anarchists are seeking revenge by scattering broadcast the alleged revolutionary speeches of Aristide Briand, the new premier, whom they count almost as their comrade and who with President Fallieres will receive the Czar aboard a French battleship.

TWO TRAGEDIES OF THE SEA REPORTED

Woman Jumps Overboard and Man Hangs Himself.

New York, July 27.—Two tragedies of the sea are reported by vessels which entered New York today. Both were suicides.

The officers of the steamer, Hellig Olaf, which arrived from Copenhagen, reported that on the morning of July 15, Mrs. Augusta Naandress left her cabin, where she was traveling with her sister. She was not seen again, and it is believed she threw herself overboard.

The French barque, France Naurie, which arrived from Marseilles, reported that on July 25 a seaman, named Guilla, hanged himself in the forecastle. His body was buried at sea.

$100,000 FIRE LOSS AT PROUTS NECK

Jocelyn House at Old Orchard Beach Destroyed.

Portland Me., July 27.—Fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, early today caused the loss of $100,000 at Prouts Neck, a fashionable summer resort near Old Orchard Beach.

The flames started in the Jocelyn House, and driven by a brisk breeze, soon spread to the hotel stables and two summer cottages nearby and a garage.

A shift of the wind prevented the further spread of the flames.

A HERO DROWNS IN TWO FEET OF WATER

Given Gold Medal for Heroism in Slocum Disaster.

New York, July 26.—Lawrence Halleran, who was awarded a gold medal for his daring in saving sixteen lives when the General Slocum burned, fell from a train on the Jamaica bay trestle, near Goose creek, yesterday, and was drowned in two feet of water.

LANDS IN DOVER WITHOUT NOTICE

FLIES ACROSS THE ENGLISH CHANNEL

Outdistances a Fleet Torpedo Boat Destroyer.

Gale Blowing at Time and People Do Not Expect the Foreigner Who Drops Unceremoniously into Their Midst—The Daring Aviator Describes Voyage from Calais to the Port on the Other Side.

Dover, July 26.—Not only Dover, but all England, was surprised by the unexpected arrival on British soil of Louis Bleriot the French aviator, who crossed the English channel in an aeroplane under weather conditions that were highly unfavorable. The townspeople of Dover, who for three weeks have been on the alert for the signal announcing that one of the flying men had started, were caught napping. A gale was blowing and the weather forecasts promised a strong wind and squalls. Hence the operators of the sirens on the steamers, which it had been arranged should blow when the flyer started, were absent from their posts. Only a few persons received the wireless warning of Bleriot's ascent.

M. Bleriot describes his remarkable voyage in the following language:

"I arose at 3 o'clock and went to the aeroplane shed. Finding everything in order on the trial spin, I decided to make the flight. The French torpedo-boat destroyer which was in attendance was signalled and it put out about four miles. Then I raised in the air and pointed directly at Dover. After 10 minutes I was out of sight of land and had left the warship well behind. For a few minutes I could not see either coast, nor any boat. I tried to keep at an average height of 250 feet. I might easily have gone higher, but it would have served no purpose. This was about the right height, I thought, to clear the Dover cliffs safely.

Sees Friends Wave Flags.

"The machine dropped toward the water several times. I put on more petrol once. The first objects I saw were ships off the English coast, then I observed Deal, and I discovered that the wind, which was southwest, was carrying me thither. I veered to the southward to Dover Castle, and then saw friends flourishing a flag in a valley suitable for landing. I made two circles while lessening the speed and then dived down, but I came in contact with the ground sooner than I expected. Both the machine and myself were badly shaken up. A few persons quickly assembled and I was helped out, as my injured foot was painful. I am exceedingly glad to be here."

M. Bleriot's friends took him quickly in an automobile to the old Lord Warden hotel, by the pier, from which mail boats depart. In the meantime his wife arrived on the destroyer. She embraced him weeping, but they were soon sitting at breakfast, the center of a proud gathering of French people. The mayor and other Dover officials called early and welcomed M. Bleriot in the name of the city and nation as the pioneer of international flight.

Papers Are Aroused.

London, July 26.—The London newspapers publish editorials on Bleriot's feat. A new point brought out is its striking appeal to the imagination of Englishmen that Great Britain's insular strength is no longer unchallenged, that the aeroplane is not a toy, but a possible instrument of warfare which must be taken into account by soldiers and statesmen, and that it was the one thing needed to wake up the English people to the importance of the science of aviation.

To Arouse British Aviators.

London, July 26.—Baron De Forest has offered a prize of $20,000 to the first British aeronaut to cross the channel in a British built aeroplane in record time.

London Greets Bleriot.

London, July 26.—London gave a tremendous welcome to Louis Bleriot, the French aeronaut who crossed the English channel in his monoplane, Sunday morning, when 500,000 people met him at the station and another half million cheered him on his way to the Savoy hotel, where the daring aeronaut was the guest of honor at a luncheon. Hundreds of notable figures in England joined in the vast throng and submitted to all sorts of inconveniences, just to get a glimpse of the aviator who in thirty minutes accomplished a feat that has immortalized his name; a feat that is history-making.

Bleriot was completely overcome by the intensity of enthusiasm and the wild display in his honor. He declared that the honors shown him compensated him a hundredfold for the fortune that he had spent in mastering the science of aviation.

The Daily Mail's £5,000 prize was formally turned over to Bleriot when he reached the Savoy hotel. The presentation speech was made by Lord Northcliffe, amid scenes which for enthusiasm had seldom been equalled.

The only thing that tinctured the enthusiasm with a note of regret was the realization that the honor was being bestowed upon a foreigner, whereas all England had hoped that a native son would be the first to achieve this aeronautic goal.

Aeronauts Honored.

Paris, July 26.—France is not so wildly excited over the aerial triumph of one of her sons, Louis Bleriot, in sailing over the English channel, in an aeroplane, as to forget the achievements of other "conquerors of the air" and today Wilbur and Orville Wright and Henri Farnan were made chevaliers in the Legion of Honor.

The decoration of the Wright brothers with this signal honor in recognition of their record-breaking flights at Le Mans and Pau, has been long under contemplation, and the bestowal of the rank today was the occasion of much felicitation.

Hart O. Berg, the business manager of the Wright brothers, and Santos Dumont, one of the pioneers in French aviation, were promoted to officers of the Legion.

BOTH THE CASHIER AND MONEY GONE

Doors of a Hoosier Bank Are Closed Temporarily.

Tipton, Ind., July 26.—The First National bank of Tipton has been temporarily closed pending a thorough investigation into the bank's books and accounts of Noah B. Marker, the assistant cashier who has disappeared. The officials of the bank declare that the first investigation shows a shortage of $56,000 besides a loss of the amount of money that was on hand at the time the bank closed Saturday night.

The bank is one of the largest in Indiana. It is capitalized at $1,000,000. The directors met at 10 o'clock this morning and decided to close the doors temporarily. The depositors are amply secured against loss. The examiner visited the bank last Friday, and it was then apparent that some person had embezzled a large sum of money.

Marker had no bad habits as far as any one here knows. He has a wife and two children, to whom he has always been devoted. He was prominent in social and lodge circles.

STRIKE AT BUTLER IS ENDED TODAY

Two Thousand Men Go Back to Work This Morning.

Butler, Pa., July 26.—The strike at the Standard Steel Car company plant ended this morning. When the whistle blew at 7 o'clock more than 2,000 men were inside the plant ready to begin work. The strikers returned without any agreement for the adjustment of differences. Seven of the strike leaders were discharged. Officials of the company state that in the future preference will be given to American workmen.

Twelve Miners Killed.

CHRISTIAN C. JOHNSON

Christian Johnson, alias Madson, who is serving a seven-year sentence in the San Quentin prison, in California, for bigamy, probably never will regain his liberty if the plan of his many wives is carried out. The women who were duped by Johnson have formed a "wife trust" to be known under some such name as the United Association of Wives of Christian Johnson, and their purpose is to keep prosecuting Johnson as often as his prison terms expire. Mrs. Josephine Henninger, of Oakland, California, is the prime mover and founder of the corporation.

DETAILS OF THE BANK'S LOOTING

By Assistant Cashier, Noah R. Marker,

ARE GIVEN OUT FOR PUBLICATION TODAY

Empties Cash Box and Leaves on Trolley.

Tells His Wife He Is Leaving Tipton for a Day's Visit with Relatives in Indianapolis—Leaves Note for His Brother Saying He Is Going Forever and Taking Enough To Pay Expenses.

Tipton, Ind., July 27.—Noah R. Marker, assistant cashier of the First National bank of this city, one of the old financial institutions in northern Indiana, has disappeared, taking with him between $50,000 and $60,000, which was all the cash in the vaults at the time of his departure.

Marker, after sweeping together the money, set the time lock on the safe and left the city on a traction car for Indianapolis, telling his wife that he should spend a day with his father and mother in Indianapolis. Nothing more has been heard from him here. Marker left a note on the desk of his brother, William Marker, cashier of the bank, saying that he had gone forever and that he had taken "enough money to pay his expenses."

The fact that he had emptied the cash box of nearly $60,000 was not known until the time lock gave admittance to the vault. Whether or not Marker had previously taken money from the bank's funds and had covered up the defalcations by making false entries in the books, can not be known until the arrival of a national bank examiner.

Will Examine Accounts.

The directors of the bank decided to suspend the bank's operations until the examiner should have taken charge of the books. They posted on the front of the bank building a placard reading: "N. R. Marker, assistant cashier of this bank, has absconded with all its cash. The treasury department at Washington has been notified and the bank will remain closed awaiting the department's instructions."

The bank has been involved in litigation for the possession of $40,000 of Cuyahoga county, Ohio, bonds. The bank's president, E. W. Shirk, was notified by his attorneys in Lima, O., that they had obtained by replevin suit these securities, which had been held by the Farmers' and Citizens' Live Stock Insurance company of Lima, O., and had given bond for them for double their value.

The resources of the First National bank amount to $1,100,000. Its capital is $100,000. Deposits amount to $845,771.

Bank Examiner in Charge.

Tipton, Ind., July 27.—National Bank Examiner Frazer today assumed temporary control of the First National bank, whose directors claim to have discovered a cash shortage of approximately $50,000 since the alleged disappearance of Noah R. Marker, assistant cashier.

William Marker, cashier of the bank, and brother of the assistant cashier, told the bank examiner he believed his brother would return in a few days.

"He has been worrying about letting those bonds get out of his hands," he said, "until he is mentally unbalanced. He hardly ate or slept for ten days before he left."

The bonds referred to, it is supposed, are those of Cuyahoga county, Ohio, which were recovered from the Farmers' and Citizens' Livestock Insurance company of Lima, Ohio, by replevin. The insurance company held these securities under a bond double their value. They had been turned over to the insurance company, it is said, by Noah Marker for examination. The original owners, having demanded the return of the securities, Noah Marker is alleged to have borrowed $40,000 from an Indianapolis bank, effecting a settlement, although there is no record of this loan.

William Marker, the cashier, is at a loss to understand the method by which the $50,000 in silver was abstracted from the vaults of the bank.

"The amount of silver," Marker said, "was far more than one man could carry and I am unable to explain how it was taken from the bank."

The time lock having been set for 9 o'clock Monday morning, the officials of the bank were kept in ignorance of the amount of missing funds until that hour.

Bank Examiner Frazer at once began his examination of the assets of the bank and until the conclusion of the investigation, President Shirk says he will not know the exact condition of the institution.

"I do not know what the bank's condition is, but if there are any losses, they will be paid," he said confidently.

MRS. SCHNEIDER, WHO UNDERTAKES 1,200 MILE WALK IN FOURTY-FIVE DAYS

Mrs. H. C. Schneider, a pretty young woman residing in St. Louis, has announced that she will attempt to win some of the laurels of Edward Payson Weston by walking from here to boston. Mrs. Schneider has a local reputation as a pedestrian, but has never attempted so long a walk before. She hopes to make the journey in forty-five days. As the distance is something more than 1,200 miles, she will have to cover more than twenty-five miles each day to accomplish the feat.

AN AERONAUT HAS RUN OF BAD LUCK

Balloon Catches Fire Last Week, This Week Catches on Wire.

New York, July 27.—"I suppose I'll get killed some day, but I love the business and I'm going to keep it up," is the declaration made today on a hospital bed by John Halbert, a daring aeronaut, who, last night, was dashed from his balloon onto a lot of live wires and then thrown into the street with a broken arm and broken leg.

Last week Halbert's balloon caught fire while he was in the air and he fell 100 feet into Newark bay, from which he was saved.

Halbert made another ascent last night, air currents carrying the balloon over Jersey City. The air cooled the gas in his balloon and he came down rapidly. The basket of his balloon caught on a live wire and tilted over, throwing Halbert to the ground thirty feet below, directly in the path of an automobile. The automobile stopped, picked him up and carried him to St. Francis hospital, in Jersey City.

MISS MABEL HOWARD FORSAKES FOOTLIGHTS

An Actress Enters Convent and Will Take Veil.

New York, July 27.—Miss Mabel Howard has forsaken the footlights and entered a convent. She is now serving her novitiate and in a short time will take the veil. She has entered the Convent of the Religious of Our Lady of Charity of the Good Shepard of Angers, Ninetieth street, New York. Her determination to enter the church came after an illness of three years ago, which forced her to retire for a time from the stage.

Miss Howard has appeared with Richard Mansfield, in Cyrano De Bergerac, and as Madam Dufrane, in Zaza, with Mrs. Leslie Carter. She played the leads in the Heart of Maryland, with Gillette in Sherlock Holmes and later in repertoire with Otis Skinner and Ada Rehan. Her latest engagement was with Ezra Kendall.

Rearrested at Pen Gates.

Columbus, O., July 27.—Lebbeus H. Wagner was released from the penitentiary on completion of a seven-year term for forgery and was arrested at the prison gate by Sheriff Deffenbaugh of Fairfield county who took him to Lancaster, where there are 26 indictments hanging over his head for alleged shady financial transactions. Wagner is an attorney and was employed as a teacher in the prison school.

SIX KILLED IN WABASH WRECK

Passenger Train Plunges into Missouri River.

THREE OTHERS FATALLY HURT

Women Sacrifice Skirts To Make Bandages.

Mt. Vernon Man Is Mentioned Among the Seriously Injured, While Several Ohioans Are More or Less Bruised and Battered. Mail Clerks Have Escapes Bordering on Miraculous.

Kansas City, July 26.—As the result of the wreck of Wabash passenger train No. 4 when it plunged into the Missouri river, 30 miles east of here, six persons are dead and possibly others seriously injured.

The dead: Charles Flowers, engineer, Kansas City; Louis Bond, fireman, Moberly, Mo.; Harry Eckert, baggageman, St. Louis; Daniel, two-year-old son of E. T. King, Eldon, Mo.; Charles Anthony, laborer, Jesse Oldham, laborer.

Seriously injured: Frank Gardner, Mt. Verron, O.; Mrs. S. S. Hackett, Orrick, Mo.; Miss Irene Boston, Orrick, Mo. Among those not seriously injured were Peter Wau, Cleveland, O.; Jacob Steinfeldt, Cleveland, O., and Mrs. C. Trupp, Dayton, O.

Mail Clerks Escape.

Eight mail clerks were saved only by the fact that the roof of their car was torn off and allowed them to get out on top of the car and swim for the shore. None escaped injury.

In the Des Moines sleeper E. T. King was holding his little son when the crash came. The child was instantly killed and Mr. King was unconscious when found.

Dr. Turner Lohveck, a woman physician of St. Louis, was the heroine of the wreck, according to railroad officials and passengers. In 30 minutes she gave temporary treatment to 27 injured persons. Several women passengers assisted her in preparing bandages.

"It seemed to me every woman there tore up her skirts for dressings," said Dr. Lohveck. "Clothing was freely given by the uninjured and many emptied their baggage of wearing apparel. The eight mail clerks refused treatment until all the passengers were attended to."

CARRIED OVER TO SEPTEMBER TERM

Are the Cases of the Chicago Police Officials.

Chicago, July 27.—There will be no immediate trial of the police officials and others indicted by the present grand jury in connection with alleged grafting for the protection of vice.

When Police Inspector McCann, now under ten indictments charging malfeasance in office and accepting of bribes, was arraigned today, it was agreed to continue his case until September 7. McCann pleaded not guilty as did Detective Jerry Griffin. McCann's confidential man, who is also under indictment on charges of accepting money from resort keepers. Griffin's case and those of others indicted were all put over to the September term.

When the names of Louis and Julius Frank, West Side saloonkeepers, were called in court today, State's Attorney Wayman requested that their names be stricken from the call. This confirmed earlier reports that these men had been promised immunity from prosecution in return for their promise to turn state's evidence in the case against McGann.

SPINO'S HOME IS DYNAMITED

And Spino and His Young Bride Are Instantly Killed.

Columbus, O., July 26.—Four suspects are under arrest in connection with dynamiting of the home of Pasqualla Spino, west of the city, when Spino and his young bride of four months were instantly killed and the house wrecked.

Included in the list of suspects is Tony Andrania, whose wife is said recently to have quarreled with Mrs. Spino and a former suitor of the latter. Andrania, according to the police, told the mother of the dead young woman a week ago that she soon would be wearing mourning for her daughter.

RESCUE PASSENGERS FROM SINKING BOAT

Packet, Tacoma, Hits Obstruction Near Gallipolis.

Gallipolis, O., July 26.—The packet steamer Tacoma was towed from the middle of the Ohio river with a big hole stove in her side and water pouring in. The steamer sank shortly after the passengers had been taken off. The boat, which plies in the passenger trade between Charleston and Cincinnati, collided with an obstruction near Proctorsville, which disabled her. Among the passengers, all of whom landed safely, were 35 persons composing an excursion party from Cincinnati.

The Tacoma is valued at $35,000, and is owned by the Green line of Cincinnati. The boat will be raised.

Five Killed, Four Wounded.

Tokyo, July 26.—News has just been received of a gunpowder explosion aboard the battleship, Asahi, Sunday, in which five men were killed and four wounded. The explosion took place during target practice. An effort was made to suppress the news. The cause of the explosion has not yet been made public. The government has ordered an investigation.

But for love's blindness no man would ever admit that women were angels.

AMERICAN WOMAN REPORTED ENGAGED TO ITALIAN DUKE

COUNTESS SPOTTISWOOD-MACKIN

The Countess Spottiswood-Mackin, who was Sarah Britton, a St Louis belle, is again reported engaged. This time the story comes from Rome, where it is said the countess soon will become the bride of the Duke of Delmonte-Marigliano. Sallie Britton's father was James Britton, once mayor of St. Louis. She was married to James S. Mackin, a New York state senator, and upon his death went abroad, where she has spent much of her time since. She was ennobled by Pope Leo XIII, for her charities in the Roman Catholic church and became a well known figure in Paris, London and Rome. Her book, "A Society Woman on Two Continents," attracted attention.

MEXICANS MOB DIAZ ORATORS

Americans Injured in Riots at Guadalajara.

Opponents of the President March Through Streets Shouting "Down with Diaz" and "We Want Reyes." American Hotel Where Speakers Stopped Is Assailed and the Barroom Is Looted.

Mexico City, July 27.—As the result of political riots in the city of Guadalajara over 200 arrests have been made, a score of persons are more or less seriously injured, including two Americans, and two are dead. The riots started when a mob broke up a meeting in Delgado theater, called in the interest of Porfiro Diaz, the president, and Ramon Corral, vice president, for re-election. The orators were stoned in the streetcars, carriages and automobiles in which they rode, and these were partially wrecked.

The Hotel Garcia, operated by an American, was stormed because the Diaz orators had stopped there. Every window was broken and the bar, office and barber shop looted. W. Hinton, one of the Americans wounded, was a guest at the hotel, and just before it was stoned he is said to have stepped to a balcony and fired his revolver in the air in an attempt to disperse the crowd. Murphy, the other American injured, was cut by a policeman's saber.

Mobs Parade Streets.

Mobs paraded the streets crying "Down with Diaz," "We want Reyes." In one section a barricade was erected and many shots were exchanged. Six foot and two mounted police were wounded. The other casualties are not known. All the plate-glass windows in the downtown section were smashed.

The Diaz orators were escorted to the railway station by a cordon of mounted police and the Tenth regiment of infantry. Luis Rojas, a prominent Diaz adherent and a well-known lawyer, was badly wounded.

Reyes Is Grieved.

Monterey, Mexico, July 27.—General Bernardo Reyes, governor of this state, today expressed deep regret over the political rioting which occurred at Guadalajara, in which one or more persons were killed and some property destroyed. He reiterated that he is not seeking the office of vice president and that the campaign is being carried on in his behalf without his directions or authorization.

THE CLAIRVOYANT LOCATES THE BODY

Of Little Boy Who Is Thrown into Canal by Companions.

Trenton, N. J., July 27.—Following the dictations of a clairvoyant in a trance, the police, heading a searching party, have discovered the body of seven-year-old James Cryne at the bottom of the Delaware and Raritan canal, into which he had been thrown by companions, who, after realizing the enormity of their crime, fled leaving the boy to his fate.

The police had given up the search. It was only the persistence of the clairvoyant that forced them last night to continue to drag the waters of the canal until they came upon the lad's body.

Acting upon the confession of youth, the police have arrested several young boys who are alleged to have had a hand in the killing.

Will Contain a Pleasing Spice of Danger.

IT VERY LIKELY WILL BE POPULAR

Great Speed Will Appeal to the Keen Sportsman—The New Grounds at Hempstead a Boon to the Daring Sailors of the Air—The Different Styles of Airships.

Now that the Aero club of America is having its grounds on Hempstead plains put in condidtion air sailing promises to become an organized sport within a short time. With a stretch of more than 1,000 acres of country at his command the aeronaut cannot complain of a lack of space over which to sail his aircraft. The grounds are said to be ideal for the purpose, and plans are being made for the erection of sheds.

The first machine to be tried on the grounds will be the Curtiss aeroplane, recently purchased by the Aeronautic society. This machine was exhibited at Morris park. The field at Morris park proved unsuitable for long distance flights, and it is hoped under more favorable conditions a record may be established with the new machine. A. M. Herring, who is putting the finishing touches on his aeroplane, will make his trials there within the next few weeks.

As a proof that a genuine interest is being taken in aeronautics from a sportsman's point of view two members of the club have purchased aeroplanes. Russell A. Alger of Detroit was the first to contract for a Wright machine and A. P. Warner bought one of the Herring-Curtiss type. Both machines will probably be tested on the Long Island grounds. The indications are that aeroplaning will become a sport long before the machines can be relied upon for practical use.

Glenn H. Curtiss, the inventor, is an enthusiast in the belief that the aeroplane will find rapid favor with the keen sportsman. "The lightning express rate of speed," said Mr. Curtiss, "affords a spice of danger that appeals to the sportsman. Men will go in for aeroplaning as they do for automobile speeding. Of course the use of the aeroplane will be confined to the country, as in its present state of development it could not with safety sail over skyscrapers.

"It is a mistake to think that a man must have a scientific knowledge of air currents in order to learn to ride it. Any one who has activity enough to balance on a motorcycle can learn the control of a machine. The beginner should start by flying close to the ground and should not attempt to make a turn before he has made twelve or fifteen flights. After he becomes familiar with the machine it does not require that steady attention and the aviator may study the effect of the surfaces on the air.

"After he has got perfect control of the apparatus he may go in for conquering height. The sensation of rising and falling is interesting. The height experienced from an aeroplane is unlike that felt in looking down from a tall building; there is not that dizzy feeling or desire to jump. As the machine ascends there is a sensation that the earth is dropping away from you, and in descending that the earth is coming toward you. The varying sensations will appeal to the novice who is always ready for a new experience. The hope of conquering the air lies in making the aeroplane popular for sport. I believe the coming year will see many aeroplanes in use for this purpose."

While the strenuous sportsman may go in for aeroplaning there are those who still find enjoyment in the spherical drifting balloon. Alan R. Hawley, a director of the club and a baloon enthusiast, has suggested that members of the club who do not own large racing balloons buy small spherical baloons of 10,000 cubic feet capacity with sufficient power to lift one man and carry the necessary ballast. These pigmy air craft, he says, would afford capital sport for short distance point to point races. A particularly advantageous feature is that the silk gas bag can be folded and tucked way in a suit case and the entire apparatus can be transported from place to place on an automobile.

The cost of such a balloon is about $200. The matter of inflating such a balloon would be simple, as any one with a country home could easily have his own hydrogen plant. Mrs. Carl E. Myers has used such a balloon on many short pleasure trips. A large number of the club members already own the balloon of 77,000 cubic feet, but the cost of these big balloons, which ranges from $1,100 to $3,000, keeps them a toy of the man of means and leisure. Each time one of these balloons is inflated it represents a cost of about $80, and then there is the expense of shipping it to a suitable place for good gas facilities.

Unfortunately New York is too near the seacoast for good ballooning. Generally speaking, it isn't safe to make an ascension near the seacoast unless the wind is blowing inland. The sea is one great menace to ballooning, because unless you keep very near the earth it is possible that a shift of wind may carry the balloon out where a dry land descent cannot be made. It is for that reason that inland points like North Adams, Pittsfield, Springfield, Massachusetts; Indianapolis, St. Louis and Milwaukee have been selected for inflating stations when the large balloons are to be used. The longest time one of these balloons has remained in the air is seventy-three hours, the wining balloon in the international race of 1908 establishing this record. The contraction and expansion regulated by the air conditions in which a balloon travels have much to do with the length of the time it stays aloft and the distance it is capable of traveling.

It may be interesting to the ground man to know how food is prepared on one of these aerial voyages. As any sort of flame would be dangerous on account of the gas bag slacked lime is used for heating the coffee and warming the canned goods or cooking eggs. Two tin vessels are used. One is filled with water and the canned goods placed inside of this. Thermo bottles are used as well. Those given to this mode of aerial sport believe it supersedes all others, as when you start on such a journey there is an uncertainty as to destination that makes it particularly attractive.

Among the members of the Aero club that own these large balloons are A. Holland Forbes, Clifford B. Harmon, N. H. Arnold, Thomas S. Baldwin, Charles Glidden, Carl Myers, Leo Stevens J. H. Wade, A. H. Morgan, J. C. McCoy, John Berry, Carl Fisher and G. S. Bumbaugh.

The pleasures and advantages of the dirigible, which is sort of half way between the buoyant spherical and the aeroplane, are not to be overlooked. The dirigible travels at a speed undreamed of in the drifting balloon and yet can be regulated at the will of the pilot.

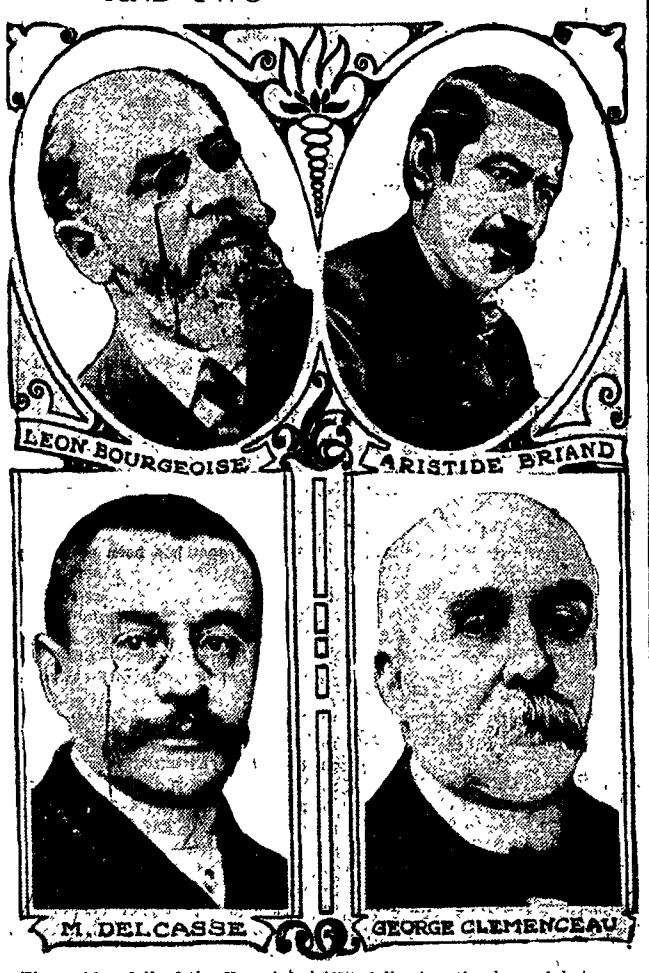
Unfortunately this country has not produced a dirigible that will carry more than two passengers and it has not been equipped as a pleasure craft as it has on the other side, where dirigibles have been built to carry eight or ten persons. Some time ago a member of the Aero club had plans drawn for a four passenger machine, but later the idea was abandoned. There is talk that a large dirigible is to be built by Captain Baldwin, but the plans are immature.

The control that can be maintained over the motor balloon makes it of practical value to the sportsman. The motor balloon may even become a craft of the hunter, for at a distance of 200 feet he can easily sight his game. It also has the advantage of being able to land in the most inaccessible places, as nature has peculiarly provided these harbors.

About two years ago Augustus Post, secretary of the Aero club, viewed a football game between the University of Louisiana and the University of Mississippi from a dirigible. Mr. Post described the position as excellent for the coach. He moved up and down the field just as the men did, and it would have been easy to sail between the goals. It is possible to witness either an automobile race or a horse race in this way.

The cost of a two passenger dirigible is from $4,000 to $6,000, and then there is the additional cost of inflation, which makes it an expensive luxury only to be enjoyed by those of ample means.—New York Sun.

RETIRING PREMIER, HIS SUCCESSOR AND TWO OTHERS CONSIDERED



The sudden fall of the French cabinet following the long debate over the naval scandals was so unexpected that the political world was at sea as to who will be Clemenceau's successor as premier. The name of Léon Bourgeoise, former premier and former minister of foreign affairs, was most frequently mentioned, but his age and health were against him. M. Poincare, former minister of finance; M. Millerand, former minister of commerce; M. Pichon, minister of foreign affairs; M. Barthou, minister of public works; M. Delcasse and Henri Brisson were also mentioned; but M. Briand, the minister of justice, was finally chosen.

RETAIL MERCHANTS' ANNUAL EXCURSION

The Big Outing Will Be Enjoyed August 10.

ARRANGEMENTS TO ENTERTAIN CROWD

Practically All the Places of Business in the City Will Be Closed While the Proprietors and Employes Pass Day in Pleasure and Recreation. Special Attractions.

The date of the retail merchants' excursion to Cedar Point has been definitely decided for Tuesday, August 10. While August 11 or 12 was preferred by the committee, the Pennsylvania Railroad company could not provide for the crowds on those dates, and the Marion Steam Shovel company has agreed, as a special favor to the merchants, to pay their employes at noon, August 9, thus overcoming the objections of closing all places of business on a regular shop payday.

More than 150 merchants have already signed the closing agreement, and it is expected that all offices, etc., will be included, thus making an outing for all the business interests of the city.

Special attractions are being planned at Cedar Point, and the committee is busy getting out advertising matter inviting the public generally to join the merchants in their annual outing.

CONFIRMED PROOF

Residents of Marion Cannot Doubt What Has Been Twice Proved.

In gratitude for complete relief from aches and pains of bad backs—from distressing kidney ills—thousands have publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of Marion, who so testified years ago, now say their cures were permanent. This testimony doubly proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills to Marion kidney sufferers.

Mrs. H. Rice, 231 Lincoln Ave., Marion, Ohio, says: "I hold a very favorable opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills, having used them in my family with beneficial results. Some ten or twelve years ago, we first procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Schmidt & Co's pharmacy and they proved to be a genuine kidney medicine, living up to all the claims made for them. At that time I freely gave a statement for publication recommending Doan's Kidney Pills and now I can say that lapse of time has not changed my opinion of them. I willingly give this excellent kidney medicine my re-endorsement."

MEDICAL MARVELS AMONG THE CHINESE

SOME OF CUSTOMS OF CHINAMAN

He Visits His Barber Every Week for a Thorough Overhauling—Some Reasons Why Blindness Is So Common Throughout China—A Study of Manners and Habits.

It is the custom for a Chinaman to visit his barber every week to have a general overhauling. First, the head and face are shaved; second, the ears are scraped and cleansed with a small brush made of duck's hair; third, the upper and lower eyelids are scraped with a dull edged knife, all granulations being smoothed away, and then an application is made with a duck's hair brush of salt solution.

This is the reason, says a writer in the Medical Record, why you will find so much blindness in China. They take no antiseptic measures whatever. All instruments are held in the operator's mouth during the process of operation.

Finally the patient's back is massaged, and after paying a fee of three cents and no tip he leaves the shop, feeling clean outside, but now must consult his regular physician.

After going through the usual examination, which is a form of military inspection, the doctor diagnoses the case and treats it unless a devil happens to jump down the patient's throat. If this has happened the doctor can do the patient no good until he promises to set off 100 firecrackers and to make a daily visit to the joss house. This done he receives the usual pills for those vacated by the devil.

These pills may consist of spotted rhinoceros horn, said to be a wonderful cure for intestinal troubles. The spotted rhinoceros horns come from southern China, and in the market at Singapore a single specimen will bring $25.

Tiger bones when ground to a powder and mixed with Chinese wine make a great blood tonic which is used by all classes of Chinamen in northern China. The recipe is held by a firm in Shanghai that has become very wealthy by the sale of this tonic.

Old deer horns are boiled down to make the medicinal glue which binds the fifty ingredients composing the average Chinese pills. As in these you may get anything from a pinch of gunpowder to powdered cobra tail dust, it is not the fault of Wong-Yik-Chee if just the right kind of specific escapes the patient.

Equal in medicinal efficacy to the above are three high-grade tiger remedies, the eyeball, liver and blood. As may be imagined tiger eyeball, the genuine article, can be prescribed for only the exceedingly wealthy Chinese Similarly the liver when dried and reduced to a powder is worth its weight in gold all over China. Tiger blood when evaporated to a solid at a temperature of 110 degrees and taken as a powder is believed by Asiatics to transform a caravan into a hero.

After the patient has made the rounds of the barber and traveling physician he now looks up his dentist, whom he will find on any street corner in all large cities. You are greatly impressed by the seriousness of this gentleman, who is always reading and thinking of his collection of some 2,000 teeth on a table and a few bottles of some secret drugs which upon inquiries a Chinese interpreter told a visitor contained the moisture of the inner side of an old coffin which was collected after being buried some ten years. A dentist in China is called a "boxer" by all Chinamen, for he is supposed to have great strength in his arms and hands, and also great magic power.

A VERY EXCITING ACCIDENT SATURDAY

Mr. and Mrs. William Staley in a Runaway.

A horse driven by William Staley, a farmer living six miles west of the city, frightened at an automobile from the Cap Drake transfer and livery barns at Center and Prospect streets, Sunday morning at 8 o'clock, and dashing against a water plug overturned the buggy. Only Mr. Staley's strength and presence of mind saved his wife from being dragged to possible death beneath the buggy top, under which she was pinned.

As the buggy toppled over, Mr. Staley managed to leap to the pavement, but Mrs Staley was caught underneath. With all his might Mr. Staley clung to the lines and kept the horse from running until people came to the rescue of his wife, who escaped injury.

CHOLERA INFANTUM CAUSE OF DEATH

Infant of Mr. and Mrs. William Moran Dies.

James Aloysius, aged eleven months, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Moran, residing at Silver and Monroe streets, died of cholera infantum at the family residence, Friday night of last week.

MRS. CHARLES SAITER IS GIVEN SENTENCE

Appears Before the Mayor Friday Evening.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF LENIENCY FOR WOMAN

Merchants Who Suffer Loss Are Willing To Have Penalty Made Light. Fined and Workhouse Sentence Is Suspended—Some Notes Gathered in the Local Police Court.

Mrs. Charles Saiter, of Waterloo street, who was arrested, Tuesday afternoon, on a charge of shoplifting and confessed to taking articles at five stores during the afternoon, appeared before the mayor, Friday evening, to have sentence passed on her.

As leniency was recommended for the woman by those who filed the affidavits against her, she was fined one dollar and the costs on each of the three charges, preferred by J. P. Ludwig, D. B. Goodsell and C. M. Landon. The total of the fines and costs amounted to $6.30. She was also given a workhouse sentence of thirty days which was suspended pending her good behavior. The husband of the woman settled for the goods taken at the three places, the other two merchants taking back the articles stolen from them.

BLACK HAND LEADER ELUDES THE OFFICERS

Jumps Bond of $5,000 and Makes Departure.

A Black Hand leader, whose name is withheld by Inspectors Oldfield and Hutches, who made the raids on the Lima place in this city, has jumped his bond and disappeared. Seaports are now being watched to prevent the Italian from returning to his "Sunny Italy." The missing fugitive's bond was $5,000, it is said. Inspectors are on his trail and secret service agents, who were told to shadow him say he has disappeared as completely as if the earth had opened and swallowed him. How he eluded the officers, the latter refuse to say.

CHARLES SPURGEON DIES IN ARKANSAS

The Deceased Is a Former Resident of Marion.

Mrs. Edward Miller, of east Fairground street, received a telegram, Friday evening, informing her of the death of her uncle, Charles Spurgeon, fifty-four years old, a former Marion resident, who left here twenty years ago and located at Little Rock, Arkansas. For years, he had been oreman in a big planing mill there. He died of paralysis. The funeral was held at Little Rock, Sunday afternoon.

Misses Kate and Dora Spurgeon, of this city, and Mrs. Wallace Smith, of Morral, are sisters of the deceased.

THE REAL INTENTION OF THE LEGISLATURE

The Opinion of City Solicitor Boyd Is Adverse to That of Attorney General Denman—The Safety Board Should Not Be Disposed of at Once. Some Things Possible.

City Solicitor Elmer T. Boyd, contrary to the opinion of Attorney General U. G. Denman, has advised Mayor Louis Scherff against naming a director of public safety, under the new Paine law, August 1.

"I have suggested to the mayor that the present board of safety and board of public service hold over until January 1," said City Solicitor Boyd. He holds with City Solicitor Marshall, of Columbus, that the legislature, which passed the Paine act, intended to put it in force, August 1, 1909, insofar as its provisions affect the conducting of the fall election, but not in any way changing the tenure of office or the duties of the directors of public service until their terms have expired. He continued: "I cannot interpret the law to mean anything more than that it abolishes the board of public service, January 1, 1910, and to prevent the public servers' successors from being elected at the next November election it stipulated that the act go into effect, August 1, 1909, except as to their tenure of office, and I believe the supreme court will so decide. At any rate, I am not alone in my contention."

Solicitor Boyd is of the opinion that if the board of safety is legislated out of existence, August 1, the result will be that Mayor Scherff can discharge every member of the police and fire department, with no chance for appeal on the part of those discharged, as there would be no board of commission to examine new applicants or certify eligible persons for appointment, a consequence which was far from the intention of the legislature, he thinks.

DETECTIVE DRAKE IN INDIANAPOLIS

Missing Anti-Saloon League Officer Is Located.

W. B. Drake, an Anti-Saloon league detective, who has been missing since Monday, is in Indianapolis. His father, E. B. Drake, also a detective for the league, went to Indianapolis to induce his son to return to Ohio, but the father returned without him. The elder Drake claims that his son went to the Indiana capital to obtain a position as salesman for a machinery house. He emphatically denied the report that his son had been under the influence of liquor or that he had absented himself to keep away from the mayor's court at Upper Sandusky, while the cases in which he was a witness were being tried.

AHMED MIRZA, THE BOY OF TWELVE, WHO NOW RULES LAND OF PERSIA

Ahmed Mirza, who has been declared shah of Persia under a regency, is twelve years of age and was officially designated heir apparent when his father ascended the throne. Mohammed Ali, the deposed shah, took refuge in the Russian legation when the insurgent, or Nationalist, troops entered Teheran. His dethronement is the direct result of his tyranny over the people of Persia. On many occasions he has promised them the constitution, but each time broke his promise When the Moslem hierarchy excommunicated him and declared the war a holy one, his enemies gathered strength, and his supporters weakened and opened negotiations for peace.

FLIES ACROSS THE ENGLISH CHANNEL

Outdistances a Fleet Torpedo Boat Destroyer.

Gale Blowing at Time and People Do Not Expect the Foreigner Who Drops Unceremoniously into Their Midst—The Daring Aviator Describes Voyage from Calais to the Port on the Other Side.

Dover, July 26.—Not only Dover, but all England, was surprised by the unexpected arrival on British soil of Louis Bleriot the French aviator, who crossed the English channel in an aeroplane under weather conditions that were highly unfavorable. The townspeople of Dover, who for three weeks have been on the alert for the signal announcing that one of the flying men had started, were caught napping. A gale was blowing and the weather forecasts promised a strong wind and squalls. Hence the operators of the sirens on the steamers, which it had been arranged should blow when the flyer started, were absent from their posts. Only a few persons received the wireless warning of Bleriot's ascent.

M. Bleriot describes his remarkable voyage in the following language:

"I arose at 3 o'clock and went to the aeroplane shed. Finding everything in order on the trial spin, I decided to make the flight. The French torpedo-boat destroyer which was in attendance was signalled and it put out about four miles. Then I raised in the air and pointed directly at Dover. After 10 minutes I was out of sight of land and had left the warship well behind. For a few minutes I could not see either coast, nor any boat. I tried to keep at an average height of 250 feet. I might easily have gone higher, but it would have served no purpose. This was about the right height, I thought, to clear the Dover cliffs safely.

Sees Friends Wave Flags.

"The machine dropped toward the water several times. I put on more petrol once. The first objects I saw were ships off the English coast, then I observed Deal, and I discovered that the wind, which was southwest, was carrying me thither. I veered to the southward to Dover Castle, and then saw friends flourishing a flag in a valley suitable for landing. I made two circles while lessening the speed and then dived down, but I came in contact with the ground sooner than I expected. Both the machine and myself were badly shaken up. A few persons quickly assembled and I was helped out, as my injured foot was painful. I am exceedingly glad to be here."

M. Bleriot's friends took him quickly in an automobile to the old Lord Warden hotel, by the pier, from which mail boats depart. In the meantime his wife arrived on the destroyer. She embraced him weeping, but they were soon sitting at breakfast, the center of a proud gathering of French people. The mayor and other Dover officials called early and welcomed M. Bleriot in the name of the city and nation as the pioneer of international flight.

Papers Are Aroused.

London, July 26.—The London newspapers publish editorials on Bleriot's feat. A new point brought out is its striking appeal to the imagination of Englishmen that Great Britain's insular strength is no longer unchallenged, that the aeroplane is not a toy, but a possible instrument of warfare which must be taken into account by soldiers and statesmen, and that it was the one thing needed to wake up the English people to the importance of the science of aviation.

To Arouse British Aviators.

London, July 26.—Baron De Forest has offered a prize of $20,000 to the first British aeronaut to cross the channel in a British built aeroplane in record time

London Greets Bleriot.

London, July 26.—London gave a tremendous welcome to Louis Bleriot, the French aeronaut who crossed the English channel in his monoplane, Sunday morning, when 500,000 people met him at the station and another half million cheered him on his way to the Savoy hotel, where the daring aeronaut was the guest of honor at a luncheon. Hundreds of notable figures in England joined in the vast throng and submitted to all sorts of inconveniences, just to get a glimpse of the aviator who in thirty minutes accomplished a feat that has immortalized his name; a feat that is history-making.

Bleriot was completely overcome by the intensity of enthusiasm and the wild display in his honor. He declared that the honors shown him compensated him a hundredfold for the fortune that he had spent in mastering the science of aviation.

The Daily Mail's £5,000 prize was formally turned over to Bleriot when he reached the Savoy hotel. The presentation speech was made by Lord Northcliffe, amid scenes which for enthusiasm had seldom been equalled.

The only thing that tinctured the enthusiasm with a note of regret was the realization that the honor was being bestowed upon a foreigner, whereas all England had hoped that a native son would be the first to achieve this aeronautic goal.

Aeronauts Honored.

Paris, July 26.—France is not so wildly excited over the aerial triumph of one of her sons, Louis Bleriot, in sailing over the English channel, in an aeroplane, as to forget the achievements of other "conquerors of the air" and today Wilbur and Orville Wright and Henri Farman were made chevaliers in the Legion of Honor.

The decoration of the Wright brothers with this signal honor in recognition of their record-breaking flights at Le Mans and Pau, has been long under contemplation, and the bestowal of the rank today was the occasion of much felicitation.

Hart O. Berg, the business manager of the Wright brothers, and Santos Dumont, one of the pioneers in French aviation, were promoted to officers of the Legion.

BOTH THE CASHIER AND MONEY GONE

Tipton, Ind., July 26.—The First National bank of Tipton has been temporarily closed pending a thorough investigation into the bank's books and accounts of Noah B. Marker, the assistant cashier who has disappeared. The officials of the bank declare that the first investigation shows a shortage of $50,000 besides a loss of the amount of money that was on hand at the time the bank closed Saturday night.

The bank is one of the largest in Indiana. It is capitalized at $1,000,000. The directors met at 10 o'clock this morning and decided to close the doors temporarily. The depositors are amply secured against loss. The examiner visited the bank last Friday, and it was then apparent that some person had embezzled a large sum of money.

Marker had no bad habits as far as any one here knows. He has a wife and two children, to whom he has always been devoted. He was prominent in social and lodge circles.

STRIKE AT BUTLER IS ENDED TODAY

Two Thousand Men Go Back to Work This Morning.

Butler, Pa., July 26.—The strike at the Standard Steel Car company plant ended this morning. When the whistle blew at 7 o'clock more than 2,000 men were inside the plant ready to begin work. The strikers returned without any agreement for the adjustment of differences. Seven of the strike leaders were discharged. Officials of the company state that in the future preference will be given to American workmen.

Twelve Miners Killed.

CHRISTIAN C. JOHNSON

Christian Johnson, alias Madson, who is serving a seven-year sentence in the San Quentin prison, in California, for bigamy, probably never will regain his liberty if the plan of his many wives is carried out. The women who were duped by Johnson have formed a "wife trust" to be known under some such name as the United Association of Wives of Christian Johnson, and their purpose is to keep prosecuting Johnson as often as his prison terms expire. Mrs. Josephine Henninger, of Oakland, California, is the prime mover and founder of the corporation.

DETAILS OF THE BANK'S LOOTING

ARE GIVEN OUT FOR PUBLICATION TODAY

Tells His Wife He Is Leaving Tipton for a Day's Visit with Relatives in Indianapolis—Leaves Note for His Brother Saying He Is Going Forever and Taking Enough To Pay Expenses.

Tipton, Ind., July 27.—Noah R. Marker, assistant cashier of the First National bank of this city, one of the old financial institutions in northern Indiana, has disappeared, taking with him between $50,000 and $60,000, which was all the cash in the vaults at the time of his departure.

Marker, after sweeping together the money, set the time lock on the safe and left the city on a traction car for Indianapolis, telling his wife that he should spend a day with his father and mother in Indianapolis. Nothing more has been heard from him here. Marker left a note on the desk of his brother, William Marker, cashier of the bank, saying that he had gone forever and that he had taken "enough money to pay his expenses."

The fact that he had emptied the cash box of nearly $60,000 was not known until the time lock gave admittance to the vault. Whether or not Marker had previously taken money from the bank's funds and had covered up the defalcations by making false entries in the books, can not be known until the arrival of a national bank examiner.

Will Examine Accounts.

The directors of the bank decided to suspend the bank's operations until the examiner should have taken charge of the books. They posted on the front of the bank building a placard reading: "N. R. Marker, assistant cashier of this bank, has absconded with all its cash. The treasury department at Washington has been notified and the bank will remain closed awaiting the department's instructions."

The bank has been involved in litigation for the possession of $40,000 of Cuyahoga county, Ohio, bonds. The bank's president, E. W. Shirk, was notified by his attorneys in Lima, O., that they had obtained by replevin suit these securities, which had been held by the Farmers' and Citizens' Live Stock Insurance company of Lima, O., and had given bond for them for double their value.

The resources of the First National bank amount to $1,100,000. Its capital is $100,000. Deposits amount to $845,771.

Bank Examiner in Charge.

Tipton, Ind., July 27.—National Bank Examiner Frazer today assumed temporary control of the First National bank, whose directors claim to have discovered a cash shortage of approximately $50,000 since the alleged disappearance of Noah R. Marker, assistant cashier.

William Marker, cashier of the bank, and brother of the assistant cashier, told the bank examiner he believed his brother would return in a few days.

"He has been worrying about letting those bonds get out of his hands," he said, "until he is mentally unbalanced. He hardly ate or slept for ten days before he left."

The bonds referred to, it is supposed, are those of Cuyahoga county, Ohio, which were recovered from the Farmers' and Citizens' Livestock Insurance company of Lima, Ohio, by replevin. The insurance company held these securities under a bond double their value. They had been turned over to the insurance company, it is said, by Noah Marker for examination. The original owners, having demanded the return of the securities, Noah Marker is alleged to have borrowed $40,000 from an Indianapolis bank, effecting a settlement, although there is no record of this loan.

William Marker, the cashier, is at a loss to understand the method by which the $50,000 in silver was abstracted from the vaults of the bank.

"The amount of silver," Marker said, "was far more than one man could carry and I am unable to explain how it was taken from the bank."

The time lock having been set for 9 o'clock Monday morning, the officials of the bank were kept in ignorance of the amount of missing funds until that hour.

Bank Examiner Frazer at once began his examination of the assets of the bank and until the conclusion of the investigation, President Shirk says he will not know the exact condition of the institution.

"I do not know what the bank's condition is, but if there are any losses, they will be paid," he said confidently.

MRS. SCHNEIDER, WHO UNDERTAKES 1,200 MILE WALK IN FOURTY-FIVE DAYS

Mrs. H. C. Schneider, a pretty young woman residing in St. Louis, has announced that she will attempt to win some of the laurels of Edward Payson Weston by walking from here to Boston. Mrs. Schneider has a local reputation as a pedestrian, but has never attempted so long a walk before. She hopes to make the journey in forty-five days. As the distance is something more than 1,200 miles, she will have to cover more than twenty-five miles each day to accomplish the feat.

AN AERONAUT HAS RUN OF BAD LUCK

Balloon Catches Fire Last Week, This Week Catches on Wire.

New York, July 27.—"I suppose I'll get killed some day, but I love the business and I'm going to keep it up," is the declaration made today on a hospital bed by John Halbert, a daring aeronaut, who, last night, was dashed from his balloon onto a lot of live wires and then thrown into the street with a broken arm and broken leg.

Last week Halbert's balloon caught fire while he was in the air and he fell 100 feet into Newark bay, from which he was saved.

Halbert made another ascent last night, air currents carrying the balloon over Jersey City. The air cooled the gas in his balloon and he came down rapidly. The basket of his balloon caught on a live wire and tilted over, throwing Halbert to the ground thirty feet below, directly in the path of an automobile. The automobile stopped, picked him up and carried him to St. Francis hospital, in Jersey City.

MISS MABEL HOWARD FORSAKES FOOTLIGHTS

An Actress Enters Convent and Will Take Veil.

New York, July 27.—Miss Mabel Howard has forsaken the footlights and entered a convent. She is now serving her novitiate and in a short time will take the veil. She has entered the Convent of the Religious of Our Lady of Charity of the Good Shepard of Angers, Ninetieth street, New York. Her determination to enter the church came after an illness of three years ago, which forced her to retire for a time from the stage.

Miss Howard has appeared with Richard Mansfield, in Cyrano De Bergerac and as Madame Dufrane in Zaza, with Mr. Leslie Carter. She played the leads in the Heart of Maryland, which Gillette in Sherlock Holmes and later in repertoire with Otis Skinner and Ada Rehan. Her latest engagement was with Ezra Kendall.

Rearrested at Pen Gates.

Columbus, O., July 27.—Lebbeus H. Wagner was released from the penitentiary on completion of a seven-year term for forgery and was arrested at the prison gate by Sheriff Deffenbaugh of Fairfield county who took him to Lancaster, where there are 26 indictments hanging over his head for alleged shady financial transactions. Wagner is an attorney and was employed as a teacher in the prison school.

SIX KILLED IN WABASH WRECK

Passenger Train Plunges into Missouri River.

THREE OTHERS FATALLY HURT

Women Sacrifice Skirts To Make Bandages.

Mt. Vernon Man Is Mentioned Among the Seriously Injured, While Several Ohioans Are More or Less Bruised and Battered. Mail Clerks Have Escapes Bordering on Miraculous.

Kansas City, July 26.—As the result of the wreck of Wabash passenger train No. 4 when it plunged into the Missouri river, 30 miles east of here, six persons are dead and possibly others seriously injured.

The dead: Charles Flowers, engineer, Kansas City; Louis Bond, fireman, Moberly, Mo.; Harry Eckert, baggageman, St. Louis; Daniel, two-year-old son of E. T. King, Eldon, Mo., Charles Anthony, laborer, Jesse Oldham, laborer.

Seriously injured: Frank Gardner, Mt. Vernon, O.; Mrs. S. S. Hackett, Orrick, Mo.; Miss Irene Boston, Orrick, Mo. Among those not seriously injured were Peter Wau, Cleveland, O.; Jacob Stemfeldt, Cleveland, O., and Mrs. C. Trupp, Dayton, O.

Mail Clerks Escape.

Eight mail clerks were saved only by the fact that the roof of their car was torn off and allowed them to get out on top of the car and swim for the shore. None escaped injury.

In the Des Moines sleeper E. T. King was holding his little son when the crash came. The child was instantly killed and Mr. King was unconscious when found.

Dr. Turner Lohveck, a woman physician of St. Louis, was the heroine of the wreck, according to railroad officials and passengers. In 30 minutes she gave temporary treatment to 27 injured persons. Several women passengers assisted her in preparing bandages.

"It seemed to me every woman there tore up her skirts for dressings," said Dr. Lohveck. "Clothing was freely given by the uninjured and many emptied their baggage of wearing apparel. The eight mail clerks refused treatment until all the passengers were attended to."

Are the Cases of the Chicago Police Officials.

Chicago, July 27.—There will be no immediate trial of the police officials and others indicted by the present grand jury in connection with alleged grafting for the protection of vice.

When Police Inspector McCann, now under ten indictments charging malfeasance in office and accepting of bribes, was arraigned today, it was agreed to continue his case until September 7. McCann pleaded not guilty, as did Detective Jerry Griffin, McCann's confidential man, who is also under indictment on charges of accepting money from resort keepers. Griffin's case and those of others indicted were all put over to the September term.

When the names of Louis and Julius Frank, West Side saloonkeepers, were called in court today, State's Attorney Wayman requested that their names be stricken from the call. This confirmed earlier reports that these men had been promised immunity from prosecution in return for their promise to turn state's evidence in the case against McCann.

SPINO'S HOME IS DYNAMITED

And Spino and His Young Bride Are Instantly Killed.

Columbus, O., July 26.—Four suspects are under arrest in connection with dynamiting of the home of Pasqualla Spino, west of the city, when Spino and his young bride of four months were instantly killed and the house wrecked.

Included in the list of suspects is Tony Andrania, whose wife is said recently to have quarreled with Mrs. Spino and a former suitor of the latter. Andrania, according to the police, told the mother of the dead young woman a week ago that she soon would be wearing mourning for her daughter.

RESCUE PASSENGERS FROM SINKING BOAT

Packet, Tacoma, Hits Obstruction Near Gallipolis.

Gallipolis, O., July 26.—The packet steamer Tacoma was towed from the middle of the Ohio river with a big hole stove in her side and water pouring in. The steamer sank shortly after the passengers had been taken off. The boat, which plies in the passenger trade between Charleston and Cincinnati, collided with an obstruction near Proctorsville, which disabled her. Among the passengers, all of whom landed safely, were 35 persons composing an excursion party from Cincinnati.

Five Killed, Four Wounded.

Tokyo, July 26.—News has just been received of a gunpowder explosion aboard the battleship, Asahi, Sunday, in which five men were killed and four wounded. The explosion took place during target practice. An effort was made to suppress the news. The cause of the explosion has not yet been made public. The government has ordered an investigation.

But for love's blindness no man would ever admit that women were angels.

AMERICAN WOMAN REPORTED ENGAGED TO ITALIAN DUKE

COUNTESS SPOTTISWOOD-MACKIN

The Countess Spottiswood-Mackin, who was Sarah Britton, a St Louis belle, is again reported engaged. This time the story comes from Rome, where it is said the countess soon will become the bride of the Duke of Delmonte-Marigliano. Sallie Britton's father was James Britton, once mayor of St. Louis. She was married to James S. Mackin, a New York state senator, and upon his death went abroad, where she has spent much of her time since. She was ennobled by Pope Leo XIII. for her charities in the Roman Catholic church and became a well known figure in Paris, London and Rome. Her book, "A Society Woman on Two Continents," attracted attention.

MEXICANS MOB DIAZ ORATORS

Americans Injured in Riots at Guadalajara.

Opponents of the President March Through Streets Shouting "Down with Diaz" and "We Want Reyes." American Hotel Where Speakers Stopped Is Assailed and the Barroom Is Looted.

Mexico City, July 27.—As the result of political riots in the city of Guadalajara over 200 arrests have been made, a score of persons are more or less seriously injured, including two Americans, and two are dead. The riots started when a mob broke up a meeting in Delgado theater, called in the interest of Porfiro Diaz, the president, and Ramon Corral, vice president, for re-election. The orators were stoned in the streetcars, carriages and automobiles in which they rode, and these were partially wrecked.

The Hotel Garcia, operated by an American, was stormed because the Diaz orators had stopped there. Every window was broken and the bar, office and barber shop looted. W. Hinton, one of the Americans wounded, was a guest at the hotel, and just before it was stoned he is said to have stepped to a balcony and fired his revolver in the air in an attempt to disperse the crowd. Murphy, the other American injured, was cut by a policeman's saber.

PRESIDENT DIAZ.

Whose Path to Re-election Is Being Strewn With Stones by Mobs.

Mobs Parade Streets.

Mobs paraded the streets crying "Down with Diaz," "We want Reyes." In one section a barricade was erected and many shots were exchanged. Six foot and two mounted police were wounded. The other casualties are not known. All the plate-glass windows in the downtown section were smashed.

The Diaz orators were escorted to the railway station by a cordon of mounted police and the Tenth regiment of infantry. Luis Rojas, a prominent Diaz adherent and a well-known lawyer, was badly wounded.

Reyes Is Grieved.

Monterey, Mexico, July 27.—General Bernardo Reyes, governor of this state, today expressed deep regret over the political rioting which occurred at Guadlajara, in which one or more persons were killed and some property destroyed. He reiterated that he is not seeking the office of vice president and that the campaign is being carried on in his behalf without his directions or authorization.

Of Little Boy Who Is Thrown into Canal by Companions.

Trenton, N. J., July 27.—Following the dictations of a clairvoyant in a trance, the police, heading a searching party, have discovered the body of seven-year-old James Cryne at the bottom of the Delaware and Rafitan canal, into which he had been thrown by companions, who, after realizing the enormity of their crime, fled, leaving the boy to his fate.

The police had given up the search. It was only the persistence of the clairvoyant that forced them last night to continue to drag the waters of the canal until they came upon the lad's body.

Acting upon the confession of a youth, the police have arrested seven young boys who are alleged to have had a hand in the killing.

Will Contain a Pleasing Spice of Danger.

IT VERY LIKELY WILL BE POPULAR

Now that the Aero club of America is having its grounds on Hempstead plains put in condidition air sailing promises to become an organized sport within a short time. With a stretch of more than 1,000 acres of country at his command the aeronaut cannot complain of a lack of space over which to sail his aircraft. The grounds are said to be ideal for the purpose, and plans are being made for the erection of sheds.

The first machine to be tried on the grounds will be the Curtiss aeroplane, recently purchased by the Aeronautic society. This machine was exhibited at Morris park. The field at Morris park proved unsuitable for long distance flights, and it is hoped under more favorable conditions a record may be established with the new machine. A. M Herring, who is putting the finishing touches on his aeroplane, will make his trials there within the next few weeks.

As a proof that a genuine interest is being taken in aeronautics from a sportsman's point of view two members of the club have purchased aeroplanes. Russell A Alger of Detroit was the first to contract for a Wright machine and A. P. Warner bought one of the Herring-Curtiss type. Both machines will probably be tested on the Long Island grounds. The indications are that aeroplaning will become a sport long before the machines can be relied upon for practical use.

Glenn H. Curtiss, the inventor, is an enthusiast in the belief that the aeroplane will find rapid favor with the keen sportsman. "The lightning express rate of speed," said Mr. Curtiss, "affords a spice of danger that appeals to the sportsman. Men will go in for aeroplaning as they do for automobile speeding. Of course the use of the aeroplane will be confined to the country, as in its present state of development it could not with safety sail over skyscrapers.

"It is a mistake to think that a man must have a scientific knowledge of air currents in order to learn to ride it. Any one who has activity enough to balance on a motorcycle can learn the control of a machine. The beginner should start by flying close to the ground and should not attempt to make a turn before he has made twelve or fifteen flights. After he becomes familiar with the machine it does not require that steady attention and the aviator may study the effect of the surfaces on the air.

"After he has got perfect control of the apparatus he may go in for conquering height. The sensation of rising and falling is interesting. The height experienced from an aeroplane is unlike that felt in looking down from a tall building; there is not that dizzy feeling or desire to jump. As the machine ascends there is a sensation that the earth is dropping away from you, and in descending that the earth is coming toward you. The varying sensations will appeal to the novice who is always ready for a new experience. The hope of conquering the air lies in making the aeroplane popular for sport. I believe the coming year will see many aeroplanes in use for this purpose."

While the strenuous sportsman may go in for aeroplaning there are those who still find enjoyment in the spherical drifting balloon. Alan R. Hawley, a director of the club and a baloon enthusiast, has suggested that members of the club who do not own large racing balloons buy small spherical baloons of 10,000 cubic feet capacity with sufficient power to lift one man and carry the necessary ballast. These pigmy air craft, he says, would afford capital sport for short distance point to point races. A particularly advantageous feature is that the silk gas bag can be folded and tucked way in a suit case and the entire apparatus can be transported from place to place on an automobile.

The cost of such a balloon is about $200. The matter of inflating such a balloon would be simple, as any one with a country home could easily have his own hydrogen plant. Mrs. Carl E. Myers has used such a balloon on many short pleasure trips. A large number of the club members already own the balloon of 77,000 cubic feet, but the cost of these big balloons, which ranges from $1,100 to $3,000, keeps them a toy of the man of means and leisure. Each time one of these balloons is inflated it represents a cost of about $80, and then there is the expense of shipping it to a suitable place for good gas facilities.

Unfortunately New York is too near the seacoast for good ballooning. Generally speaking, it isn't safe to make an ascension near the seacoast unless the wind is blowing inland. The sea is one great menace to ballooning, because unless you keep very near the earth it is possible that a shift of wind may carry the balloon out where a dry land descent cannot be made. It is for that reason that inland points like North Adams, Pittsfield, Springfield, Massachusetts; Indianapolis, St. Louis and Milwaukee have been selected for inflating stations when the large balloons are to be used. The longest time one of these balloons has remained in the air is seventy-three hours, the wining balloon in the international race of 1908 establishing this record. The contraction and expansion regulated by the air conditions in which a balloon travels have much to do with the length of the time it stays aloft and the distance it is capable of traveling.

It may be interesting to the ground man to know how food is prepared on one of these aerial voyages. As any sort of flame would be dangerous on account of the gas bag slacked lime is used for heating the coffee and warming the canned goods or cooking eggs. Two tin vessels are used. One is filled with water and the canned goods placed inside of this. Thermo bottles are used as well. Those given to this mode of aerial sport believe it supersedes all others, as when you start on such a journey there is an uncertainty as to destination that makes it particularly attractive.

Among the members of the Aero club that own these large balloons are A. Holland Forbes, Clifford B. Harmon, N. H. Arnold, Thomas S. Baldwin, Charles Glidden, Carl Myers, Leo S evens J. H. Wade, A. H. Morgan, J C. McCoy, John Berry, Carl Fisher and G. S. Bumbaugh.

The pleasures and advantages of the dirigible, which is sort of half way between the buoyant spherical and the aeroplane, are not to be overlooked. The dirigible travels at a speed undreamed of in the drifting balloon and yet can be regulated at the will of the pilot.

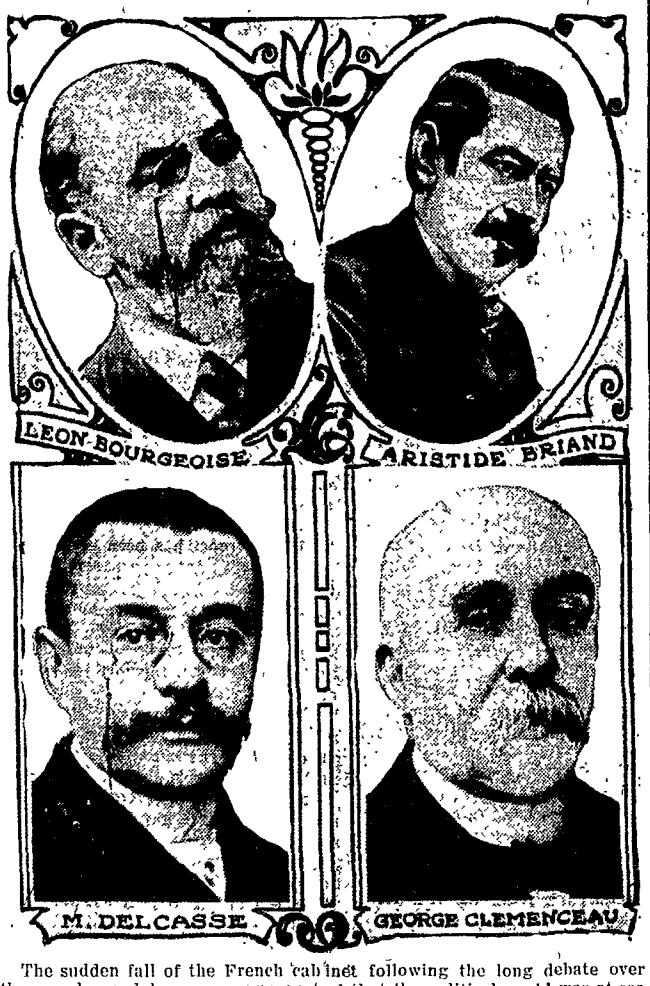
Unfortunately this country has not produced a dirigible that will carry more than two passengers and it has not been equipped as a pleasure craft as it has on the other side, where dirigibles have been built to carry eight or ten persons Some time ago a member of the Aero club had plans drawn for a four passenger machine, but later the idea was abandoned. There is talk that a large dirigible is to be built by Captain Baldwin, but the plans are immature.

The control that can be maintained over the motor balloon makes it of practical value to the sportsman. The motor balloon may even become a craft of the hunter, for at a distance of 200 feet he can easily sight his game. It also has the advantage of being able to land in the most inaccessible places, as nature has peculiarly provided these harbors.

About two years ago Augustus Post, secretary of the Aero club, viewed a football game between the University of Louisiana and the University of Mississippi from a dirigible. Mr. Post described the position as excellent for the coach. He moved up and down the field just as the men did, and it would have been easy to sail between the goals. It is possible to witness either an automobile race or a horse race in this way.

The cost of a two passenger dirigible is from $1,000 to $6,000, and then there is the additional cost of inflation, which makes it an expensive luxury only to be enjoyed by those of ample means.—New York Sun.

RETIRING PREMIER, HIS SUCCESSOR AND TWO OTHERS CONSIDERED



The sudden fall of the French cabinet following the long debate over the naval scandals was so unexpected that the political world was at sea as to who will be Clemenceau's successor as premier. The name of Léon Bourgeoise, former premier and former minister of foreign affairs, was most frequently mentioned, but his age and health were against him. M. Poincare, former minister of finance; M. Millerand, former minister of commerce; M. Pichon, minister of foreign affairs; M. Barthou, minister of public works; M. Delcasse and Henri Brisson were also mentioned; but M. Briand, the minister of justice, was finally chosen.

RETAIL MERCHANTS' ANNUAL EXCURSION

The Big Outing Will Be Enjoyed August 10.

Practically All the Places of Business in the City Will Be Closed While the Proprietors and Employes Pass Day in Pleasure and Recreation. Special Attractions.

The date of the retail merchants' excursion to Cedar Point has been definitely decided for Tuesday, August 10. While August 11 or 12 was preferred by the committee, the Pennsylvania Railroad company could not provide for the crowds on those dates, and the Marion Steam Shovel company has agreed, as a special favor to the merchants, to pay their employes at noon, August 9, thus overcoming the objections of closing all places of business on a regular shop payday.

More than 150 merchants have already signed the closing agreement, and it is expected that all offices, etc., will be included, thus making an outing for all the business interests of the city.

Special attractions are being planned at Cedar Point, and the committee is busy getting out advertising matter inviting the public generally to join the merchants in their annual outing.

CONFIRMED PROOF

Residents of Marion Cannot Doubt What Has Been Twice Proved.

In gratitude for complete relief from aches and pains of bad backs—from distressing kidney ills—thousands have publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of Marion, who so testified years ago, now say their cures were permanent. This testimony doubly proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills to Marion kidney sufferers.

Mrs. H. Rice, 231 Lincoln Ave., Marion, Ohio, says: "I hold a very favorable opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills, having used them in my family with beneficial results. Some ten or twelve years ago, we first procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Schmidt & Co.'s pharmacy and they proved to be a genuine kidney medicine, living up to all the claims made for them. At that time I freely gave a statement for publication recommending Doan's Kidney Pills and now I can say that lapse of time has not changed my opinion of them. I willingly give this excellent kidney medicine my re-endorsement."

MEDICAL MARVELS AMONG THE CHINESE

SOME OF CUSTOMS OF CHINAMAN

He Visits His Barber Every Week for a Thorough Overhauling—Some Reasons Why Blindness Is So Common Throughout China—A Study of Manners and Habits.

It is the custom for a Chinaman to visit his barber every week to have a general overhauling. First, the head and face are shaved; second, the ears are scraped and cleansed with a small brush made of duck's hair; third, the upper and lower eyelids are scraped with a dull edged knife, all granulations being smoothed away, and then an application is made with a duck's hair brush of salt solution.

This is the reason, says a writer in the Medical Record, why you will find so much blindness in China. They take no antiseptic measures whatever. All instruments are held in the operator's mouth during the process of operation.

Finally the patient's back is massaged, and after paying a fee of three cents and no tip he leaves the shop, feeling clean outside, but now must consult his regular physician.

After going through the usual examination, which is a form of military inspection, the doctor diagnoses the case and treats it unless a devil happens to jump down the patient's throat. If this has happened the doctor can do the patient no good until he promises to set off 100 firecrackers and to make a daily visit to the joss house. This done he receives the usual pills for those vacated by the devil.

These pills may consist of spotted rhinoceros horn, said to be a wonderful cure for intestinal troubles. The spotted rhinoceros horns come from southern China, and in the market at Singapore a single specimen will bring $25.

Tiger bones when ground to a powder and mixed with Chinese wine make a great blood tonic which is used by all classes of Chinamen in northern China. The recipe is held by a firm in Shanghai that has become very wealthy by the sale of this tonic.

Old deer horns are boiled down to make the medicinal glue which binds the fifty ingredients composing the average Chinese pills. As in these you may get anything from a pinch of gunpowder to powdered cobra tail dust, it is not the fault of Wong-Yik-Chee if just the right kind of specific escapes the patient.

Equal in medicinal efficacy to the above are three high-grade tiger remedies, the eyeball, liver and blood. As may be imagined tiger eyeball, the genuine article, can be prescribed for only the exceedingly wealthy Chinese Similarly the liver when dried and reduced to a powder is worth its weight in gold all over China. Tiger blood when evaporated to a solid at a temperature of 110 degrees and taken as a powder is believed by Asiatics to transform a caravan into a hero.

After the patient has made the rounds of the barber and traveling physician he now looks up his dentist, whom he will find on any street corner in all large cities. You are greatly impressed by the seriousness of this gentleman, who is always reading and thinking of his collection of some 2,000 teeth on a table and a few bottles of some secret drugs which upon inquiries a Chinese interpreter told a visitor contained the moisture of the inner side of an old coffin which was collected after being buried some ten years. A dentist in China is called a "boxer" by all Chinamen, for he is supposed to have great strength in his arms and hands, and also great magic power.

A VERY EXCITING ACCIDENT SATURDAY

Mr. and Mrs. William Staley in a Runaway.

A horse driven by William Staley, a farmer living six miles west of the city, frightened at an automobile from the Cap Drake transfer and livery barns at Center and Prospect streets, Sunday morning at 8 o'clock, and dashing against a water plug overturned the buggy. Only Mr. Staley's strength and presence of mind saved his wife from being dragged to possible death beneath the buggy top, under which she was pinned.

As the buggy toppled over, Mr. Staley managed to leap to the pavement, but Mrs Staley was caught underneath. With all his might Mr. Staley clung to the lines and kept the horse from running until people came to the rescue of his wife, who escaped injury.

MRS. CHARLES SAITER IS GIVEN SENTENCE

Appears Before the Mayor Friday Evening.

Merchants Who Suffer Loss Are Willing To Have Penalty Made Light, Fined and Workhouse Sentence Is Suspended—Some Notes Gathered in the Local Police Court.

Mrs. Charles Saiter, of Waterloo street, who was arrested, Tuesday afternoon, on a charge of shoplifting and confessed to taking articles at five stores during the afternoon, appeared before the mayor, Friday evening, to have sentence passed on her.

As leniency was recommended for the woman by those who filed the affidavits against her, she was fined one dollar and the costs on each of the three charges, preferred by J. P. Ludwig, D. B. Goodsell and C. M. Landon. The total of the fines and costs amounted to $6.30. She was also given a workhouse sentence of thirty days which was suspended pending her good behavior. The husband of the woman settled for the goods taken at the three places, the other two merchants taking back the articles stolen from them.

BLACK HAND LEADER ELUDES THE OFFICERS

Jumps Bond of $5,000 and Makes Departure.

A Black Hand leader, whose name is withheld by Inspectors Oldfield and Hutches, who made the raids on the Lima place in this city, has jumped his bond and disappeared. Seaports are now being watched to prevent the Italian from returning to his "Sunny Italy." The missing fugitive's bond was $5,000, it is said. Inspectors are on his trail and secret service agents, who were told to shadow him say he has disappeared as completely as if the earth had opened and swallowed him. How he eluded the officers, the latter refuse to say.

CHARLES SPURGEON DIES IN ARKANSAS

The Deceased Is a Former Resident of Marion.

Mrs. Edward Miller, of east Fairground street, received a telegram, Friday evening, informing her of the death of her uncle, Charles Spurgeon, fifty-four years old, a former Marion resident, who left here twenty years ago and located at Little Rock, Arkansas. For years, he had been oreman in a big planing mill there. He died of paralysis. The funeral was held at Little Rock, Sunday afternoon.

Misses Kate and Dora Spurgeon, of this city, and Mrs. Wallace Smith, of Morral, are sisters of the deceased.

THE REAL INTENTION OF THE LEGISLATURE

The Opinion of City Solicitor Boyd Is Adverse to That of Attorney General Denman—The Safety Board Should Not Be Disposed of at Once. Some Things Possible.

City Solicitor Elmer T. Boyd, contrary to the opinion of Attorney General U. G. Denman, has advised Mayor Louis Scherff against naming a director of public safety, under the new Paine law, August 1.

"I have suggested to the mayor that the present board of safety and board of public service hold over until January 1," said City Solicitor Boyd. He holds with City Solicitor Marshall, of Columbus, that the legislature, which passed the Paine act, intended to put it in force, August 1, 1909, insofar as its provisions affect the conducting of the fall election, but not in any way changing the tenure of office or the duties of the directors of public service until their terms have expired. He continued: "I cannot interpret the law to mean anything more than that it abolishes the board of public service, January 1, 1910, and to prevent the public servers' successors from being elected at the next November election it stipulated that the act go into effect, August 1, 1909, except as to their tenure of office, and I believe the supreme court will so decide. At any rate, I am not alone in my contention."

Solicitor Boyd is of the opinion that if the board of safety is legislated out of existence, August 1, the result will be that Mayor Scherff can discharge every member of the police and fire department, with no chance for appeal on the part of those discharged, as there would be no board of commission to examine new applicants or certify eligible persons for appointment, a consequence which was far from the intention of the legislature, he thinks.

DETECTIVE DRAKE IN INDIANAPOLIS

Missing Anti-Saloon League Officer Is Located.

W. B. Drake, an Anti-Saloon league detective, who has been missing since Monday, is in Indianapolis. His father, E. B. Drake, also a detective for the league, went to Indianapolis to induce his son to return to Ohio, but the father returned without him. The elder Drake claims that his son went to the Indiana capital to obtain a position as salesman for a machinery house. He emphatically denied the report that his son had been under the influence of liquor or that he had absented himself to keep away from the mayor's court at Upper Sandusky, while the cases in which he was a witness were being tried.

AHMED MIRZA, THE BOY OF TWELVE, WHO NOW RULES LAND OF PERSIA

Ahmed Mirza, who has been declared shah of Persia under a regency, is twelve years of age and was officially designated heir apparent when his father ascended the throne. Mohammed Ali, the deposed shah, took refuge in the Russian legation when the insurgent, or Nationalist, troops entered Teheran. His dethronement is the direct result of his tyranny over the people of Persia. On many occasions he has promised them the constitution, but each time broke his promise. When the Moslem hierarchy excommunicated him and declared the war a holy one, his enemies gathered strength, and his supporters weakened and opened negotiations for peace.

After she had taken three or four doses she seemed to have labored breathing and grew worse. Then is when they could not get me and called Dr. Taylor. I have interviewed Mr. John Cramer in regard to statements he is supposed to have made in regard to my medicine and treatment, as set forth in the issue of July 20, and he states it is a lie, every word of it and asks of me to state it. Now, I have the signature in the paper, that I have given the woman too much hyoscyamics and that my medicine I have kept in the two cupboards and labels were narcotics. Why does not Dr. Taylor state the kind of medicine he found there that I had given? He could have you believe that the capsules were as large as your finger and filled with morphine, from the way the paper states. Why did he not draw or have the urine drawn off and take the urine and all the medicine I had left there, or some one make it away from there. Then people state that the doctors took my medicine away. Why did they not turn all of the medicine and urine and everything about of the one time woman, over to the coroner or prosecuting attorney and ask for an investigation of it? Then they could not say I did it. I would have also refuse to give up the urine for analysis when called upon for a specimen of it? I wish to state to the public that my statements made in the paper, insinuating that I gave the afflicted lady an overdose of narcotics that produced the condition found in her corpse, is telling a malicious and vicious lie. Who asked for an investigation of the case first? When I heard that Mrs. Cramer was dead and that the report was going that I had given her too many hypodermics, I went to the home of John Cramer, asked for John, and they said he had gone to the undertakers. I made some inquiry about the statement and found that it was true. I returned and called on the undertaker and asked of him to do nothing more with the body in preparation it. I called on the prosecutor and he referred me to the coroner. I ordered Coroner Hinklin to go and investigate the matter at once.

Commission Here.

The commission of Henry Seiter, Democrat, elected county commissioner for a term of two years, was received by County Clerk W. W. Klinefelter, Tuesday, from the office of the secretary of state. The commission was signed by Governor Judson Harmon, Monday, July 26. Mr. Seiter's term begins in September. He will succeed his cousin, Daniel Seiter, a Republican.

Do your duty—but remember that it isn't your duty to do your friends.

Nothing is wholly bad, and whenever one is tempted to utter a jeremiad concerning a modern city it is to be remembered that even in depraved Corinth the Lord said, "I have much people in this city." Some persons go to a modern city and discover only vice. Others go and find themselves in touch with powerful quickening forces representing the highest elements in human life. Paul had no difficulty in staying himself with a community of fellow craftsmen—for his problem, like that of many another stranger going to a city, was the one of self-support—and he discovered the Jewish synagogue as a lighthouse of the one true God amid all the heathen blackness that environed it.

Paul Was a Playground.

Paul was a city man. Yet he never became wholly inured to the wickedness and the emptiness of city life. He was as greatly after frivolity of this metropolis as its vice. The city is no only the workshop of the twentieth century, but also its playground. Men and women go to the city for a "good time," fine empty and inane is much of the pleasure that is provided for these residents and visitors every thoughtful observer has remarked. There are a few things more discouraging than a night spent on New York's "Great White Way." It is not only that people are so often vulgar and wicked, but also that they are frivolous and unsatisfactory.

Our urban civilization has created artificial standards which are ludicrous. The newspapers told the other day how a certain woman testified in court—this kind of people easily find their way into court—that her social standing required her to wear at least three different dresses a day, each costing about $500, and that she never wore the same dress twice in the face of such facts one cannot wonder at the presence of sullen anarchy or rampant socialism. Consider how we have multiplied the forms and accessories of what we call "good society." The modern table is well furnished with—it has a great array of knives and forks and spoons and curious implements, until one has more pity for the state of mind which has so burdened itself with useless encumbrances of an unreal formalism than with the consternation of the country visitor who finds himself helpless

When a Leader Gets Blue.

There came a point in Paul's Corinthian experience when he grew greatly cast down. The blue devils of discouragement beset him sorely. The mood is more common among Christian workers and men who are regarded as great leaders than the public ever dreams. In the face of a great usefulness, men are tempted often to consider the worthlessness of it all. The Lord heartened Paul by a vision, giving him that old, old word of hope, "I am with thee," and assuring him that even in wicked Corinth there were many who named the Name. So it proved. Paul had to undergo persecution at the hands of the Jews and he toiled before the Roman proconsul, and he wrote himself exclusively to the Gentiles; but in spite of it all he saw great triumphs for the gospel in that wicked city, as he was driven to the Corinthian church record.

There arose a community of disciples who became very dear to the apostle, and in spite of them as also in settlements and declensions they remained a power for the kingdom. The very situation of the city enabled them to radiate their influence far and wide, just as one may find in all parts of Canada men and women who have passed through Cooke's church, Toronto; or as one may meet in all the cities of the country converts of the McAuley mission in Water street New York.

PRESIDENT MONTES OF BOLIVIA IS READY FOR WAR

ISMAEL MONTES

Bolivians are rushing by thousands to enlist for the war that they expect either with Peru or Argentina. The decision of President Alcarta, of Argentina, in submitting the boundary dispute between Peru and Bolivia aroused the Bolivians to white heat. Argentina then be one angered because of a statement that President Ismael Montes had reflecting upon Alcorta's action. Montes also has suspended the Christian centenary celebration because of the talk of war.

specifications for a considerable tonnage did not prove satisfactory, and only a part of the order will be filled. There is almost a blind famine in the east. One important company operating all of its open-hearth furnace capacity can not produce enough steel to supply its finishing mills. No large tonnage can be bought anywhere in the east, and $25 at mill is said openly to be the best figure on any eastern tonnage available. The scrap situation is also worrying the eastern steel mills. Taking advantage of the dullness incident to the Fourth of July holiday and inventory taking, several mills tried to break the old material marked last week, but without success. Mills are offering $16 for heavy melting steel, and getting very little at that figure. A most interesting development of the scrap situation is the decision of an important eastern steel producer to start some Bessemer capacity, later blowing this through a mixer with open-hearth furnaces to avoid the use of scrap. This duplex process has been used for some time in the south. Whether it will be more economical than buying scrap in the north remains to be demonstrated.—The Iron Trade Review.

HARRY W. CAMPBELL JOINS FARGO AGAIN

Will Become Special Officer of the Atlantic Department.

Harry W. Campbell, who returned from New York to join his family here Thursday night, has admitted to his friends that he is to return to his first love, in employment, and join the Wells, Fargo & Company forces the 1st of August. Mr. Campbell is to be named special officer of the Atlantic department of the Fargo, with headquarters in New York. His territory extending from the coast to the Mississippi river. The position is new to the Atlantic territory, but has been maintained in the Rocky mountain and Pacific sections for years. It is owned that important financial positions and the responsibility of Mr. Campbell is a recognition of his worth that is most gratifying to his friends, all the more notable because he is returning to the Fargo after three years' of outside association.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell and children returned to Cincinnati early this week to prepare for their removal to New York.

Testimony.

Coroner William H. Hinklin states that the statement made by Drs. H. J. Lower and C. G. Smith in connection with the death of Mrs. John Cramer, who died suddenly under mysterious circumstances Monday, was not his verdict in the case. "I will render my verdict in a few days," he said.

"How did you arrive at a verdict in view of the fact that Drs. Lower and Smith did not give a diagnosis as to the cause of her death?" the coroner was asked.

"I will have to take more testimony," Coroner Hinklin replied. He added that some testimony had already been taken, but he was not inclined to discuss the case until he rendered his verdict.

Drs. Lower and Smith were engaged by the coroner to perform the autopsy, and they reported that no evidence of narcotic poisoning had been found as a result of microscopical examination of a kidney.

THREE CASES ARE GIVEN ATTENTION

Two Farm Hands and a Cook Settle Bills.

Joseph Snyder, a farm-hand, residing near Upper Sandusky, was fined $10 and costs and sentenced to serve four months in the Columbus workhouse by Justice Charles E. Gompf, last Friday, on a charge of jumping a board bill amounting to $24. Snyder was arrested on complaint of M. H. Murphy, of west Center street. He pleaded guilty. The workhouse sentence was suspended and he was discharged to pay the bill.

Jacob Walters, another farm-hand, residing in Wyandot county, who was charged with defrauding Mr. Murphy out of a board bill for the same amount, settled.

Frank Perry, a cook, arrested at Columbus on complaint of Mrs. Della Pettigrew, of Kenton avenue, was in Justice Gompf's court, Thursday afternoon, and was released. He was charged with jumping a board bill.

OLD QUAKER MEETING HOUSE VERY UNIQUE

Architecture Is Very Simple and Severe.

DIVISION SHUTTERS AND STYLE OF PEWS

One of the Oldest Places of Worship Erected by the Quakers in New Hampshire—Has Single Story and a Very Low Attic—Burial Ground Is Also Severe.

One of the oldest Quaker meeting houses in New Hampshire stands in Unity township, a remembrance of the little colony of Friends who lived at West Unity in the early part of the last century.

The building with its single story and low attic is as simple and severe in its architecture as the "Quaker meeting" itself in its form of worship.

A few years ago there were yet a number of the old Friends who still worshipped twice every week in the little edifice, taking their rows each time "according to their goodness" and waiting in the solemn silence after the manner of the orthodox Quaker till the "spirit moved" to prayer or exhortation.

Since that time these few remaining members of the faith have died. Today Unity has taken upon itself the preservation of the building as a matter of public good and it has been kept in repair by the township.

The meeting house was built in 1820. New Hampshire winters have left their mark upon the exterior of the little building. However, the interior is the only part of the structure that has needed repairing. Inside, the basswood pews are as white and clean as they were seventy-five years ago and the walls and ceilings are as spotless as when they looked down upon the first silent gathering of Friends.

After the manner of all Quaker meeting houses the interior is divided into two sections, between which are shutterlike doors that can be lowered to form a partition between the men's section and the women's. Often the cold weather made it imperative that but one section should be used and on the very wintry evenings the meetings were held on the side where a large wood stove had been installed.

EDWARD A. SCHAMBS LEASES THE PLANT

Richwood Light, Heat & Power Company Change.

TERMS OF CONTRACT FOR NEXT FIVE YEARS

Richwood Horses Win in the Races at West Mansfield—Miss Ida Highbargin and Mr. Alonzo D. Evans United in Marriage—Notes of the Week at Richwood.

Richwood, July 27.—[Special.]—Edward A Schambs has leased the power plant of The Richwood Light, Heat & Power company, the deal having been consumated Monday night. The lease is for a period of five years, on a five per cent. basis, one of the stockholders, F. L Winter, selling his stock outright to Mr. Schambs. Previous to the leasing of the plant Mr. Schambs had begun preparations for the erection of a new plant on his lot on west Blagrove street, but the same will now be unnecessary. He has been in Pittsburg during the past week purchasing new equipment for the plant, which will be put in first class shape. Mr. Schambs built the plant here about eleven years ago, having entered into a contract with the village for furnishing street lights for a period of ten years. He later sold out and the contract was assumed by his successors, The Richwood Light, Heat & Power company. Since the expiration of the contract, November 1, 1908, the village has practically been in darkness. After several months of wrangling on the part of the council as to whether Richwood should own its own plant or make a new contract with a private party, the matter was finally adjusted by vote, the people expressing themselves in favor of the latter proposition. E. A. Schambs proving to be the lowest bidder, at the opening of bids from private companies which had been advertised for, he was accordingly awarded the contract.

W. R. Robinson left, Thursday, for Mt. Vernon, where he attended a reunion of the survivors of the battle of Atlanta, which occurred July 22, 1863. Mr. Robison participated in the battle as a member of the Twentieth regiment O. V. I. He will visit relatives several days before returning home.

Mather and daughter, Miss Gertrude, of Richwood; Mrs J. W. Sefritt and daughter, Miss Grace, of Marion, and Miss Clara Herr, of Cleveland. The affair proved very enjoyable.

George W. Kosht was called to North Baltimore, Friday, by the serious illness of his sister.

Mrs. Mary Langtaff and daughter, Mrs. J. B. McAllister, entertained the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the M. E. church, Wednesday afternoon, at their home on south Franklin street. At the close of the business meeting a very delightful social hour was spent. The guests of the society were Mrs. O. P. Lenox and Miss Helen Lenox, of Columbus, Mrs. Frederick McAllister, of Delaware, and Miss Elizabeth King, of Richwood.

Charles Sauer and son, Howard, of Ashland, visited the former's nephew, George W. Kosht and wife a few days last week.

Lewis Lake, who has been employed by the Mt. Vernon Bridge company for some time past, spent last week here with his father, John Lake, and left, Saturday, for Pittsburg, where he has accepted a position in the drafting department of the McClintock-Marshall structural company.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Beeny went to Mt. Vernon, Saturday, to attend a reunion of the Beeney family, it being fifty-one years since the family had assembled on a like occasion.

Rev. N. J. Kinney, at his home just west of Richwood, united in marriage Mrs. Emma O. Gamble and Mr. James Guy, both of Marysville, Thursday morning.

The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary society of the Baptist church held its regular monthly meeting Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. John Bell. Mrs. G. C. Fields was leader and an interesting program was rendered. The annual election of officers was held, resulting as follows: Mrs. J. E. Longstaff, president; Mrs. David Carr, secretary; Mrs C. MRS. C. H. MACKAY TAKES HELM OF EQUAL SUFFRAGE

If the equal suffrage movement does not reach aggressive and militant proportions in the United States in the next few months it will not be the fault of Mrs. Clarence H Mackay Since her return from abroad Mrs Mackay has taken up the cause in earnest and is prepared to spend a share of her large fortune to spread the propaganda of votes for women She has opened headquarters in the tower of the Metropolitan Life building, New York City, and has installed a force of clerks and secretaries to send out printed matter and start the fall campaign of the suffragists. Mrs Mackay declares it will be the most aggressive fight for suffrage since the days of Susan B Anthony.

MEMBERS OF SUTTON COURT OF INQUIRY AND WITNESSES IN ANNAPOLIS HEARING

The clearest testimony given in the early stages of the inquiry at Annapolis into the death of Lieutenant James N. Sutton, of the marine corps, was that of Lieutenants Bevans, who was officer of the guard at the marine camp on the night Sutton lost his life Lieutenant Bevans said that soon after midnight on October 12, 1907, the corporal of the guard reported to him that a fight was in progress near the entrance to the camp. He ran in that direction and found Sutton, with two revolvers, scuffling with Lieutenant Roelker. This was near Sutton's tent. Bevans ordered Sutton under arrest; but, he declares, the latter paid no attention to the order and started to where the fight had taken place. Soon Bevans heard the sound of shots and, running to the scene, found Lieutenant Adams wounded in the hand, Sutton on the ground and Lieutenant Utley and Sergeant Debart holding him down. Bevans said he reached for Sutton's right arm, there was a shot, and Sutton sank back with a bullet in his head. Bevans said Lieutenant Willing, who was officer of the day, took the revolver from Sutton's hand. Bevans was clearly of the impression that Sutton had fired the fatal shot.

This is by far the best crop that has been threshed in the county this year, so far as has been reported.

EDWARD COOK FINED IN THE POLICE COURT

Throws a Stone Through a Door at Russell Home.

HE IS ARRESTED BY OFFICER FRAME

Later Thula Russell, the Mistress of the House, Is Arrested on Complaint of Chief Cornwell—Woman Promises To Close Place and Leave the City—Police Notes.

Edward Cook made a visit to the West End, Saturday evening, and as a result became entangled in trouble, which after was the cause of his being relieved of a nice share of his money by Mayor Scherff. Cook visited the boarding house of Thula Russell, on Hoyle street. He had a quarrel with the proprietress of the house and as a result was ejected. Cook was so angered that he took revenge by throwing a stone through a screen door Officer Frame was called and placed Cook under arrest.

One of the boarders at the Russell home filed an affidavit against Cook, charging him with malicious destruction of property. Cook was arraigned before the mayor and after pleading guilty to the charge was fined $10 and the costs which amounted to $2.50. He paid the amount assessed him and was released.

Sunday afternoon, Chief Cornwell filed an affidavit in the mayor's court, charging Thula Russell with keeping a house of ill fame. The arrest of the woman is the outcome of trouble between her and Edward Cook, Saturday evening. She was notified of the charge against her and appeared before the mayor, Sunday. She pleaded guilty to the charge and the mayor gave her a thirty-days workhouse sentence, which was suspended after she ordered the nuisance abated at once. The woman promised to close her home and signified her intention of leaving the city as soon as possible.

OFFICERS SCOUT MURDER THEORY

Nor Do They Believe Missing Woman Kills Herself.

Mount Holly, N. J., July 27.—Sheriff Worrell, Deputy Sheriff Fleetwood and County Detective Parker, scout the theory that the woman registered as Mrs. Watkins, who is missing at the Metropolitan Inn at Burlington after a quarrel with a man registered as her husband was murdered, and thrown into Rose pond. They say the woman quarreled with the man with whom she went to Burlington, and that after the quarrel she went away on the train. The officers do not even believe she has committed suicide. They declare the clothing found on the banks of the pond was left there by tramps. Letters found in the room indicate that the woman was a Miss A. M. Wilson of New York.

Honorary Members.

Toledo, O., July 27.—President Taft and Secretary Charles A. Nagle of the department of commerce and labor, were elected to honorary membership in the American Fisheries society at the annual convention here today.

NAVAL OFFICER WHO WHO PRESIDES AT SUTTON INQUIRY

The second federal inquiry into the death of Lieutenant James M. Sutton, of the marine corps, who died from a gunshot wound at Annapolis in October, 1907, will be opened on July 19. Several witnesses to the shooting, including Lieutenant Robert E. Adams, with whom Sutton had a quarrel just before the shooting, have been summoned to testify. It is confidently expected in naval circles that a sensation will develop when Adams, who was recently recalled from China, is placed on the stand. Commander John Hood, U S N., will preside at the hearing

YOUNG WANAMAKER IS MARRIED TODAY

Weds Miss Violet Cruger at St. Margaret's Church.

London, July 27.—In St. Margaret's church, Westminister, shortly after noon today, Lewis Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the American merchant, was married to Miss Violet Cruger, daughter of the late Eugene Guido Cruger, of New York. Wanamaker was accompanied by Barclay Warburton, his brother-in-law, and Miss Cruger by her mother, Mrs. J. Frederick Tams. They arrived at the church in separate automobiles.

Ambassador Reid, who is a friend of the families of both, gave the bride away. A special license for the wedding was granted by the Archbishop of Canterbury. Rev. Cecil Knox performed the ceremony, the full choral service being used.

Wanamaker and his bride left on a motoring trip after the marriage. They will live in Paris, dividing their time between the French capital, America and European resorts.

PROPOSES PAYING BONUSES FOR BIRTHS

That's the Idea of Scientist To Raise Birth Rate.

Paris, July 27.—Professor Richet, of the Academy of Medicine, today took steps to have his ideas regarding the hitting of the alarmingly low birth rate in France incorporated in a bill for presentation before the assembly when it meets in October.

Dr. Richet's plan is an enlargement of the old idea of paying bonuses for the birth of children. For the first child, there would be no bonus, under his scheme. But for the second there would be a $100 bonus and a $200 bonus for each succeeding child. At present only about 750,000 births occur annually in France and Richet says the adoption of his scheme would quickly bring the number to a million and eventually far above this figure.

The cost to the government, Richet says, would be about $60,000,000 a year, and he proposed to meet this by a death tax of fifty per cent. on property left to an only child.

HAS NO TROUBLE THE SECOND TIME

Merke Drozinski Is Admitted to This Country Today.

New York, July 27.—Sixteen-year-old Merke Drozinski, who was deported eight hours after she reached New York on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, because she had no money with her, though she had very wealthy relatives in Louisville, Kentucky, who were waiting for her, returned today on the President Cleveland and is now speeding to her relatives in Kentucky. She had been on the water nearly eight weeks trying to get into America.

The little girl first arrived on June 26, but as she didn't have the necessary $25 to land, she was deported the very same day on the President Lincoln, although she told the immigration officials her wealthy Louisville uncle would send for her. She wired him and he wired her a large sum of money, but she was already on her way back to Europe.

As soon as she arrived in Hamburg she found that her uncle had cabled money there on which she was to return to the United States. She was admitted today without trouble.

IRA GRUNDEN A FREE MAN TODAY

The Indictment Against Him Is Quashed Today.

Watseka, Ills., July 27.—Ira Grunden, indicted as an accessory after the fact, for the murder of James B. Sayler at Crescent City on July 11, is now a free man The motion made by the defense to quash the indictment against him because he is related to two of the principals in the case was sustained by Judge Hoover, in the circuit court today and he was immediately released from custody.

It is the general belief that he will assist the state in the prosecution of Dr William Miller, the principal defendant.

PREFERS ACID TO SURGEON'S KNIFE

Little Girl Commits Suicide at Elmira, New York.

Elmira, N. Y., July 26.—Tortured beyond the endurance of her frail little body by physical suffering and the dread of the surgeon's knife, Florence Beckwith, a twelve-year-old child, is dead at the home of Miss Helen Ottz, a victim of carbolic acid, which she swallowed with suicidal intent.

The little girl had a disease which affected the bone of her leg and she had been operated on three times in the local hospital but without relief, and the physicians had told her she would have to undergo another operation.

The Entire Fleet.

Washington, July 26.—The navy department has decided to send the entire fleet of battleships and other war vessels now maneuvering off the Atlantic coast to New York for the Hudson-Fulton celebration. These with the war vessels to be sent by foreign countries, will mark the largest assemblage of warships in the United States in modern times.

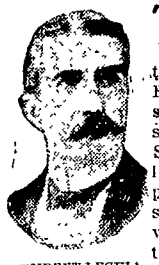
The Quarrel Of Bolivia And Peru



PRESIDENT LEGUIA.

THE territory involved in the dispute between Bolivia and Peru, which has sent the war clouds scudding above the South American landscape, comprises hundreds of square miles of very rich land at the eastern base of the Cordillera range of mountains and lying near the Acre river. This, along with other rich territory, would no doubt have been Brazilian today had not the Bolivians fought for it in the war between Brazil and Bolivia in the last generation.

As a result of that contest Brazil paid Bolivia $10,000,000. That money, large sums of which still are on deposit in New York and London, has been chiefly expended in building railroads intended to develop Bolivian commerce and increase the trade relations between Bolivia and Brazil. Already the railroad has been completed from Oruro to Viacha, and a line now is under construction from Oruro to Uyuni, which lies to the southward.

Villages and cities that owe their founding wholly to Bolivian initiative have sprung up throughout the disputed territory. Thus Bolivia has spent its money there, as well as the blood of its people. Two thousand of its soldiers were killed there in one campaign against Brazil.

Peru bases its claim to the territory on the contention that the land belonged to it by reason of certain dispositions made by Spanish kings. On the other hand, it is maintained that before the South American republics were formed and when Spanish control dominated the land in question formed a part of the territory which, with Bolivia's area today, was under the jurisdiction of the central Spanish authority that existed at Charcas, the latter now forming the present city of Sucre. Peru's territory was administered by Spanish authority from Lima, Argentina's area from Buenos Aires, Chile by the captain general then established at Santiago, and so on. So when argument was required to meet the Peruvian contention of priority of rights Bolivia advanced the claim that the territory in question always had been part of its area even during the period of rule under the Spanish kings.

The dispute over this claim was referred for arbitration to President Alcorta of the Argentine Republic, and it was when it became known that his decision was against some of the contentions of the Bolivians that feeling among the latter ran high, not only against Peru and the Peruvians, but against Argentina, its president and its minister in residence at La Paz, Senor Fonseca.

Visitors to Peru and Bolivia are apt to be much interested in the curious relics of a civilization dating far back into the past, even antedating the days of the Incas. The burial places of some of these people may still be seen, with their strange, ovenlike openings always facing the east.

One of the most picturesque of the cities and towns of Bolivia is Tiaguanuco, one of whose gates is shown in the accompanying picture. It is not a very populous place at present, but is remarkable for its ruins. Tiaguanuco is about forty miles from La Paz, the Bolivian capital, and is on the Titicaca river. La Paz is one of the highest capital cities of the world, being 12,000 feet above sea level. President Augusta B. Leguia of Peru took office last autumn. He was born in 1863, has had a wide experience in public affairs and thus far has given his country a firm and wise administration.

DR. VON BETHMANN-HOLLWEG

Successor of Prince von Bulow as Chancellor of the German Empire.

The successor of Prince von Bulow as chancellor of the German empire, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, was a college friend of the Emperor William, and they were members of the Borussia corps at Bonn. He is fifty-three years old and has Hebrew blood in his veins. His grandfather was a professor at the University of Bonn and received a patent of nobility for his learning. He was also a member of the cabinet as minister of education. The new chancellor studied law and has served as a judge, as president of the government at Bromberg and as minister of the interior. In his political principles he is a mild Conservative, but he is most particular in the application to himself of the traditional policy that the servants of the crown must be nonpartisan.

The new chancellor's speeches on social questions while minister of the interior were liberal in tone. This was particularly marked in an address in which he condemned certain aspects of morality in Berlin and defended warmly the need of the German workman of proper recreation. He has devoted himself to improving the condition of the artisan class, whereas almost all social legislation has been applied up to the present time to the working proletariat. As minister of the interior he distinguished himself by preparing an imperial insurance law and a law controlling a right of assemblage, both of which passed the reichstag. He possesses an excellent knowledge of the English language and is a student of American affairs.

GREAT GENERAL'S NAMESAKE

Lieutenant Ulysses S. Grant 3d and His Good Record.

The country is proud of the fact that Lieutenant Ulysses S. Grant 3d, one of the namesakes of the great hero of the civil war, is making a record so worthy of the family name. Lieutenant Grant, who is a son of Major General Frederick D. Grant and grandson of the General Grant of civil war fame, was recently appointed to the responsible post of superintendent of the state, war and navy departments building. The order was issued by Secretary Dickinson of the war department with the approval of Secretary Knox and Secretary Meyer, who have concurrent authority with Secretary Dickinson in directing the manner in which the affairs of the big building shall be administered. Lieutenant Grant, who is of the engineer corps, succeeds Captain J. H. Poole of the same branch of the service, who has been ordered to enter the next class of the army school of the line at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., on Aug. 15.

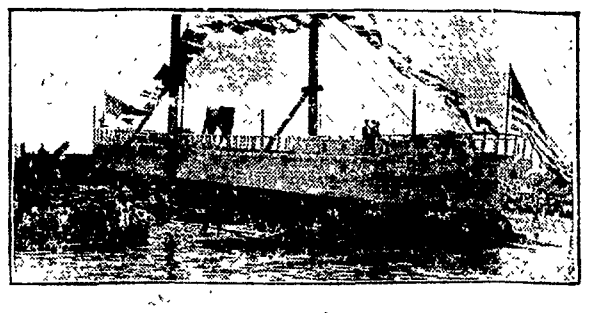
The post given to Lieutenant Grant is one eagerly sought by officers of the engineer corps, to which it belongs. It gives the incumbent opportunity to exercise a wide authority and, besides, affords him a chance to advance his interests.

Lieutenant Grant has served as one of the aids to the president. He was married not long since to a daughter of Senator Elihu Root.

Fulton's Clermont Reproduced



SEEING is believing, and if any doubts existed that there is to be a Hudson-Fulton celebration in New York state the coming autumn they must be dispelled now that ground has been broken on the historic Spuyten Duyvil hill for a monument to Hudson, now that Holland has built a new Half Moon and shipped it to the United States and now that a reproduction of Fulton's little steamer Clermont has been launched in the waters of New York harbor. These incidents show that the commission in charge of the celebration of Hudson's discovery and Fulton's invention is making good, and they indicate that the commemoration is likely to come off according to schedule.

The monument in Hudson's honor, whose construction has been begun, will tower some 320 feet above the waters of the river he explored, a statue of him by Karl Bitter at the top and appropriate panels by Henry M. Shrady at the base. It will be the most conspicuous object of the landscape in that portion of New York. The Half Moon, which was built in Amsterdam, Holland, by the Dutch, is an exact reproduction of Hudson's little ship and was dispatched to this country on the Holland-America steamer Soestdyk, destination New York. Both the Half Moon and the Clermont will participate in the marine parade up the Hudson river to Albany, which will constitute a leading feature of the commemoration in September and October. Indeed, they will be the chief objects of interest in this parade.

The recent launching of the Clermont in the yards of the Staten Island Shipbuilding company gave a foretaste of the ceremonies of the real celebration, for it was an occasion replete with historic interest and picturesque in its setting. The original Clermont set forth on her first trip up the Hudson to Albany on that eventful morning of Aug. 17, 1807, amid the jeers of some in the small crowd that witnessed her departure. It was a company of at least 5,000 people that witnessed the launching of the replica of the Clermont, and the contrast was an interesting one between the ceremonies of this occasion and that 102 years ago when "Fulton's folly," as some called the steamboat then, started on her memorable trip up the river named for Henry Hudson. The company at the recent launching included most of the living descendants of Robert Fulton. General Stewart L. Woodford, president of the Hudson-Fulton commission, presided, and Mrs. Alice Crary Sutcliffe, a great-granddaughter of Fulton, christened the replica of the Clermont, breaking on the bow of the vessel as she slid into the water a beautiful silver filigree glass vase filled with water from the well on the Livingston estate at Clermont-on-the-Hudson, where Fulton's steamboat made the first stop of her maiden trip. As the vase was shattered Mrs. Sutcliffe said:

"I name thee Clermont and again auspiciously proclaim to the American people the sentiments of Robert Fulton as expressed in an essay to the friends of mankind: 'Industry will give abundance to a virtuous world and call mankind to one unbounded feast of harmony and friendship. The liberty of the seas will be the happiness of the worlds.'"

Then all the small craft in the harbor blew their whistles, and six carrier pigeons, which were concealed in a basket in the prow, were liberated. The vessel slid slowly, and after the crane had ceased helping it along it almost stuck. Many of the men in the crowd broke through the ropes at this point and went to the aid of the vessel, which was soon floating in the sea. The United States ship Wasp, commanded by Lieutenant Starr Tainter, then fired a salute of sixteen guns.

One of the interesting parts of this function was the presentation to the new Clermont by Eben E. Olcot, chairman of the committee having the construction of the vessel in charge, of the bell used on the original Clermont. Robert Underwood Johnson read a poem written by him especially for this occasion.

The replica of the Clermont is as nearly the duplicate of the original as the commission could build from the plans noted in some of Fulton's own letters. She is 100 feet long, 18 feet wide, 7 feet deep and draws 3 feet of water. Her sides are almost straight up and down, and both ends are wedge shaped. She will be equipped with a replica of the old engine and make her trip up the Hudson to Albany under her own steam.

The difficulty of determining the exact dimensions and equipment of the Clermont was great, and it was only through the efforts of the late Rear Admiral Joseph B. Coghlan, naval constructor; William J. Baxter, U. S. N.; Captain Jacob W. Miller, Mr. Eben Olcot and Messrs. J. W. Millard and Frank E. Kirby, naval architects, that it was possible for the commission to build an exact replica of the Clermont. According to the plans of the commission, the Clermont will be escorted by the Half Moon, Henry Hudson's ship, and a fleet of war vessels of many nations when the naval parade starts on Friday, Oct. 1, on the commemorative trip from New York city to Albany.

One of the ways of making the Hudson-Fulton celebration productive of greater patriotism and interest in the history of the country is to give the children and youth of the schools of New York city and state a leading part in it. It is expected that about a million children in the Greater New York will participate in some way in the pageants, tableaux and festivals of the celebration. Some of the subjects for tableaux will include the progress of civilization in the past 300 years in New York state and vicinity. The principal ceremonies in which children will participate will be held on Sept. 28 and Oct. 2.

It has been the aim of the commission in charge of the joint celebration, a body composed of a large number of representative citizens of New York state, to make the commemoration as educational as possible and as interesting to the children and youths of the schools as can be effected through the creation of historical spectacles and reproductions of scenes connected with the events celebrated. In this way study of the two periods and of the two principal characters honored may be stimulated.

Bolivian Consul General's Views.

The Bolivian consul general at New York, Senor J. Aguirreacha, in explaining the cause of the rioting at La Paz and the popular feeling against the decision of the Argentina president in arbitration of the territorial dispute between Peru and Bolivia, said:

"We accepted Argentina's president as arbitrator because of the close friendship which had existed between that country and my people. For more than four years Senor Don Ellodoro Villazon, who as president elect of Bolivia will assume his official duties on Aug. 6, served as Bolivian minister in Buenos Aires. The most cordial relations always have prevailed. Believing that we were fully in the right, our people had prepared to celebrate the award of arbitration in their favor in connection with the extensive ceremonies arranged for the centennial of the first battle for independence against Spanish domination. Now all our claims, based on justice as they were, seem to have gone for naught."

THE PERSIAN NATIONALISTS.

Their Leader, Satar Khan, and Their Loyalty to Their Constitution.

The leader of the Nationalist forces, now in the ascendant in Persia, is Satar Khan. Subordinate to him in the Nationalist ranks are Sipiadar and Sardarassad, the leaders under whom the troops opposing the shah entered and occupied Teheran, the Persian capital. The occupation of the capital of this ancient empire by the Nationalists and the efforts of the latter in the direction of re-establishment of constitutional government are the direct result of the insistence of the Persian people that the shah govern the country un der the constitution that was granted on Jan. 1, 1907. The shah has ignored and withdrawn the constitution, which he signed when he ascended the throne. His course has resulted in widespread unrest in Persia, which in some sections has approached anarchy. The movement to compel him to observe the constitution gained force until, following the dissolution of parliament in 1908, a great part of the country broke out in insurrection. The Nationalists were especially strong at Tabriz, which fell into their hands after fierce fighting.

While the shah was trying to cope with this situation in the north the Bakhtiari tribesmen, the fighting race of Persia, rose in the south and early this year captured Ispahan, 210 miles south of Teheran. The tribesmen then began the long march to the capital, and their advance guard arrived in front of Teheran in June.

The British and Russian governments have been exerting their influence to induce the shah to summon a representative assembly to bring the state of anarchy to an end, and Russia, acting in full accord with Great Britain, sent a military expedition into Persia from Baku for the protection of foreigners.

The Persian empire is divided into British and Russian spheres of influence, and these complications, together with the Turkish aggression on the western frontier, have served to increase the hostilities between the internal factions.

THE SAYLER TRAGEDY.

A Distressing Case In Which Prominent Families Figure.

It is a pitiable situation in which Mrs. John Sayler of Watseka, Ill., finds herself. She watched from her cell in the county jail the funeral procession in which the body of her husband was borne to its last resting place. Mr. Sayler, a banker and leading citizen, on entering his home on a recent evening found there Dr. W. R. Miller, and, words between the two men ensuing, Dr. Miller drew a revolver and shot Mr. Sayler, killing him. Mrs. Sayler and Dr. Miller were both held and were charged jointly with responsibility for the death of the slain banker. Golda Sayler, seventeen years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sayler and for whose sake the banker is said to have shielded the relations he suspected between his wife and Dr. Miller, has issued a statement in which she says the latter was a good friend to her and her mother and, she believes killed her father only in self defense. Mrs. Miller has said she was confident her husband had done her no wrong and she expects to stand by him in his trial.

Figures of The Passing Show

SECRETARY MACVEAGH.

SECRETARY FRANKLIN MACVEAGH of the treasury department wishes every one was as conscientious about paying debts to Uncle Sam as a man at Annapolis, Md. About six months ago something struck the conscience of the Annapolis citizen, and every two or three weeks since then he has sent a twenty dollar gold certificate to the secretary of the treasury with this note, "Due to U. S." There is not a word about the missive to indicate the name of the sender. The envelope is always plain and without any legend save the address. The envelope, the writing and the inclosure are always the same. The remittance comes almost with the regularity of a city tax bill. The money is credited to the conscience fund and is turned into the treasury.

The government has another regular conscience fund contributor residing in Washington. He is not so methodical in his habits as the man at Annapolis, and his contributions are smaller. His conscience hurts him every two or three months for some fraud imposed upon the government, and he sends $10 to $15 to the treasury with a confession that it belongs to the government.

A strange character is Warry Charles, the Americanized Chinaman who is under sentence of death in Massachusetts along with four others of his nationality. The names of the others are Win Sing, Hom Woon, Leong Gong and Joe Guey, and, according to the decree of the court, they will die in electric chairs in the state prison at Charlestown during the week beginning Oct. 10. All the men were convicted of the murder of several of their countrymen belonging to the Chinese society known as the On Leon tong. The murderers were members of a rival society known as the Hep Sing tong. The date of the wholesale slaughter for which the quintet are to pay the penalty the coming autumn was Aug. 2, 1907. The conviction of the group was secured by the Boston prosecuting authorities over a year ago, and the supreme court of the state overruled the exceptions taken to the verdict.

Warry Charles, who was said by some of those convicted of the crime to have been the moving spirit in the plot of assassination, protested his innocence when sentenced. He was formerly a court interpreter.

The curtain has fallen on a stirring scene in a tragedy in real life in which figures the great Italian operatic composer, Giacomo Puccini. The curious thing about the affair is the parallel which may be drawn between certain circumstances in the real tragedy and the fictitious one which forms the theme of the composer's famous masterpiece, "Madama Butterfly." In the latter the little heroine, Cho-Cho-San of the mikado's empire, commits suicide when she learns of the perfidy of her English husband. The story is somewhat turned around in the tragedy in which the composer and his wife figure. In this drama the heroine was a little peasant girl whose father lived and worked on Puccini's estate. She was employed in the composer's household after her father's death and, being a favorite of the great musician, excited the jealousy of his wife. She accused the young girl of wrong relations with her husband and struck her in the face. The child, who is believed to have been innocent of any wrongdoing, was so affected by the humiliation and disgrace into which she deemed she had fallen that she drank poison and died. Puccini denounced his wife and at once separated from her, and, the suicide of the girl having been made the subject of an inquiry, an Italian court sentenced Signora Puccini to imprisonment for causing her death.

GIACOMO PUCCINI.

HE SEES ANOTHER CIVIL WAR SOON

The Outcome of the Tariff Problem and the Only Cure for It Alleged.

From another civil war, due this time not to slavery, but to the tariff, the United States may be saved by national insolvency, toward which it is rapidly drifting, says John Bigelow, the aged Democratic statesman, in a letter to the tariff reform committee of the Reform club, in reply to one calling for financial assistance. Nothing else will save the country from civil war, he thinks.

All appeals for a real revision or a reduction of the tariff, Mr. Bigelow says, are like appeals to drunkards not to drink to excess or to burglars not to steal so often. He goes on:

In each and every case these appeals are not merely to toleration of crime, but an excuse for it, just as the toleration of slavery blinded more than half the nation to the fact that slavery was not only a disgrace to any nation, but a violation of the divine law, which had to be expiated by trials proportionate to its enormity.

When your reform committee is prepared to take a firm stand against any tariff upon imports, to make every harbor upon our 600 miles of seacoast as free to the commerce of the world as those of New York are to those of New Jersey or those of Pennsylvania are to those of Virginia, I shall be happy to join you and do what I can to promote the success of your labors.

In such a work I should have the satisfaction of knowing that I was not even indirectly countenancing a vicious system of taxation; also that I was helping to put our statesmen upon an inquiry for sources of revenue that were not tainted with every crime, save murder, of which highwaymen have been condemned by the laws of God and man.

Your hope from the division of the administration party over the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill is, I think, largely a delusion. No one can count the number of people that are willing to steal or go on the highway for a living whenever public sentiment or the law will say or even countenance the implication that these modes of living are not disreputable. We have before us in the tariff precisely the same issue that confronted us in the rebellion of 1861.

To me it appears that protection is even more firmly fixed in its saddle than ever slavery was, because the property it gives to the protected exceeds the total value of the slave property of the United States at its maximum.

I make no pretensions to being a prophet, and therefore I will only ask what reason there is for hoping for a deliverance from the unrighteous burden of protection by any less severe trials than those by which we effaced the only reproach upon the constitution of the United States provided by our conscript fathers who framed it. What motive had the southern planter to go to war for the protection of slavery that the Republican party has not in far greater degree to fight for protection?

The Origin of John Bull.

In March, 1712, there was published in London a satirical brochure dealing with the events of the previous year and bringing prominently into light the doings of Spain, Louis XIV., Holland and England, the last named country being represented by "John Bull." The original of the character was John Bollingbroke, minister of Queen Anne, who in the first edition was spoken of as "Lord Bullingbrook" and "John Bullingbrook" alternately, the title of the brochure subsequently becoming abbreviated to plain "John Bull." It was the production of a Scotch writer, Dr. John Arbuthnot, and not Swift, as some have stated.—London Queen.

WHAT LIBERIA WANTS.

Walter F. Walker, professor in the college of West Africa at Monrovia, appears as a defender of that harassed republic in several American publications. Being on the scene, he would seem to be qualified to speak authoritatively of the troubles that beset and threaten to exterminate the Liberians as a nation. The American commission sent by the United States to make an investigation is now preparing its report. Walker, writing from a full knowledge of the problem involved, may be considered to have anticipated in some degree the report to be made to President Taft by this commission.

There has been some doubt as to exactly what the Liberians wanted the United States to do in their behalf. They would, of course, willingly become an American colony like Porto Rico and the Philippines. Barring that, which appears even to the Liberians as improbable, they would have the United States:

1. Guarantee Liberia's independence.

2. Secure the consent of the other nations to submit all questions of an international character to arbitration.

3. Advise the Liberian government in all important matters which might entail international complications.

4. Establish a coaling station somewhere on the Liberian coast.

5. Lend Liberia experts who will develop all the departments of government along the best and most modern lines.

6. Float a loan which shall wipe out all the indebtedness of Liberia, thus consolidating her debts.

It is an active program of paternalism thus laid out for the United States. This government is asked to do more for a weakling republic thousands of miles away than it has done for Cuba in our own side yard. Perhaps the responsibility is greater. That is for congress to determine.

The demand tabulated briefly above probably fairly summarizes the story told the American commissioners, from which the formal report will be made at Washington. What form or degree of suzerainty do the facts seem to justify?—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

TAX PENALTY NOT ASSESSED AS YET

People Have a Few Days in Which To Pay Taxes.

The fifteen per cent delinquent tax penalty has not yet been put into effect by County Treasurer W. C. Worthing and the tax books will continue to remain in his office until County Auditor Charles L. Allen returns in a few days from his vacation in Michigan

The total tax collection with today's receipts amounts to $272,245.25.

After the fifteen per cent penalty is put into effect by the auditor, taxpayers in arrears may obtain their tax receipts only by paying the original amount of their taxes with the fifteen per cent. added. This can be done, under the law, any time from now until December 20, after which the delinquent tax list will be prepared and the property sold the third Tuesday in January.

plan to appoint Mr. Weeks to the head of the committee as a clever coup on the part of Speaker Cannon's followers to endanger the chances of the opposing factions in the coming senatorial contest in this state.

The fact that Representative Gardner of New Jersey, who would be entitled to the chairmanship of the postoffice committee on the state point of service, for the first time voted with the rules "insurgents" and the Democrats on the urgent deficiency bill, was taken to indicate that he regards Mr. Weeks' appointment as assured.

Gardner With Insurgents.

Representative Gardner of Massachusetts, who it is said also would be affected by the appointment of Mr. Weeks because of his affiliation with the Lodge forces, is to lose his chairmanship of the committee on industrial arts and expositions. It was understood that this action would be taken by the speaker because Mr. Gardner was one of the leading "insurgents" at the opening of the present session. Representative Roderburg (Ill.), it is said, will succeed Mr. Gardner.

Representative Cooper of Wisconsin, who was also an "insurgent" against the ruling, may retain the chairmanship of the committee on insular affairs. It was reported that President Taft had interceded with Speaker Cannon in his behalf. On the other hand, it was learned from equally reliable sources that Representative Fowler of New Jersey, who was chairman of the banking and currency committee in the last session, would lose his committee.

THE LODGE WORLD.

At a regular meeting of the Pythian Sisters, Monday evening, some matters of business were given attention, and arrangements were made for degree work at the next meeting to be held in two weeks. Arrangements were also made for a picnic, to be held August 25, at which the members of the lodge and their families will be entertained.

Marion Lodge, No. 70, F. and A. M., has been presented a beautiful silk flag by the living past masters of the lodge. As the color-bearer of the lodge was without a flag, the past masters decided to present one. The flag is made of the best of silk and measures about five by six feet. It is accompanied by a staff surmounted by a gold eagle, also a stand, and is trimmed with silk yellow fringe.

The past masters who made the donation are James A. Knapp, Frank W. Thomas, George D. Copeland, Busby P. Sweney, William H. McClure, Milton B. Dickerson, Michael Waddell, J. Frederick Dombaugh, Frederick E. Guthery, J. Jay Smiley, John H. Bartram, James W. Knapp, Karl R. Wilson, Charles H. Conley and Joseph H. Mason.

Recites That Gompers Is Sent To Europe To Study Labor Conditions To Give the Results of Investigation Abroad to Laboring Men and Arranges To Sell His Observations to a Newspaper Syndicate.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 5.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has according to the United Mine Workers' Journal, incurred not only the enmity of the largest single union within the federation, but has brought down a storm of abuse in the Journal which is the official organ of the miners.

The Journal charges that Gompers was sent to Europe by the Federation with his expenses paid and that the result of his investigation abroad was to be given to the laboring men of this country for their betterment. The Journal asserts that it and other labor papers were recently offered the weekly letters of Samuel Gompers giving the result of his investigations and his conclusions at one-half per letter per week, said letters having been sold by previous arrangement by Gompers to a newspaper syndicate which in turn was to get its money out of the labor people of America.

The Journal announces that it will not publish the Gompers letters. It says that whatever Gompers learns in Europe the Journal has a free right to as the official paper of one of the unions that is paying his way, and his salary. The Journal states, too, that its position was the subject of a resolution by the international executive board of the union.

Calls It a Hold-Up.

Referring to Gompers' actions as a "hold-up," the Journal says:

"Two million half-starved workingmen cheerfully wished President Gompers Godspeed on his visit, and but before he leaves our shores he proposes to go into an agreement by which, if we desire to get the benefits of his visit, we are to chip in to the tune of one dollar per letter to help make newspaper syndicates and to further increase the financial benefits of the trip to the man we are already favoring so bountifully, while our organization were starving on half a day's work per week and thousands of them idle for months, caused by the closing down of mills and mines and factories.

"Now, this is wrong. We might go further and say that it is viciously so. If President Gompers could not afford to make the trip on the conditions made by the American Federation of Labor, he should have stayed at home.

"The letters will not be published in the Journal. We have paid our taxes. President Gompers would not have been in Europe now if we and the rest of us had not done so, and to us, as an official organ, belongs any benefit that may come as a result of that visit without being held up."

One of the things a man can't understand is why his enemies seem to have so many friends.

Another Victim Of Bridge Suicide

Fifth Person Jumps From Cincinnati Bridge This Year.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 5.—Another victim was added to the list of suicides from the Cincinnati bridge when Frank Hoffman, 30 years old, a laborer, jumped from the bridge to the Kentucky shore. He was seen by a number of persons who were on the bridge at the time. He was taken to the police station in the patrol wagon, but died before he reached there. He left a note saying that he was tired of life and that he had no friends. He was married and lived with his wife and two children on Lexington pike, Kentucky.

This is the fifth person who has committed suicide from the bridge this year.

Fire Destroys Barn.

Loss Is Estimated At $2,000 With Insurance of $1,000.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the barn on the farm of Mrs. Mary Hoffman, on Bellaire road, Tuesday morning, at 2 o'clock. The loss is estimated at $2,000 with insurance of $1,000.

The barn was filled with hay and grain, which was also destroyed. The fire department was called but the building was beyond saving when the firemen arrived.

AN AGED RESIDENT PASSES TO REWARD

Mrs. Mary O'Connell Dies Sunday Morning.

PASSES MUCH OF LIFE IN MARION

Mrs. O'Connell Reaches an Extreme Age—Came to America with Her Husband in 1847—Lives in Marion More Than Fifty Years—Funeral Services at St. Mary's Church.

Mrs. Mary O'Connell, ninety-four years of age, a resident of Marion since 1852, died of old age and complications at her home, No. 209 Patterson street, Sunday morning at 8 o'clock. She was the widow of the late Cornelius O'Connell, who died nine years ago last February.

The deceased was a native of Tipperary county, Ireland, in which country she was married. When Ireland's historical famine of 1847 broke out, Mrs. O'Connell and her husband came to American shores. They first took up their residence in Canada. Later they moved to Vermont thence to Syracuse, New York, and from the latter place to Marion.

For more than half a century Mrs. O'Connell had lived in Marion, and she was widely known among the older residents of the city. She is survived by five children, as follows:

Thomas W. O'Connell, of No. 521 Quarry street, at whose home the remains were taken following death; Mrs. Thomas McMahon, of Chicago; Mrs. Timothy Fell, of Crawfordsville, Indiana; Miss Ella O'Connell and Michael O'Connell, of this city.

The funeral services were held at St. Mary's church, Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock. Six grandsons Neil, Alexander and John McMahon, of Chicago; William and Timothy O'Brien, of Marion, and Thomas F. O'Connell, of Lima, will act as pallbearers.

Mrs. O'Connell was buried in a shroud, which she made more than twenty years ago.

ELTON FERGUSON IS INJURED SATURDAY

Is Struck by a Stone Thrown by an Unknown Person.

Elton Ferguson, the Prospect liveryman, suffered a terrible gash in the head, Saturday evening, as the result of being struck in the head by a stone, thrown, he claims, by some one he could not see or recognize.

Ferguson engaged a rig, Saturday evening, from the R. P. Perry livery barn on Court street. He left the barn alone and returned there alone after suffering the injury about 10 o'clock. Dr. H. W. Sager was called and removed the man to the General Emergency hospital. An examination developed the fact that the gash was about three inches long and was cut to the bone just back of and below the left ear. The wound was dressed, and the injured man left saying he was going home. The man lost a great amount of blood.

According to Ferguson's story, he was driving south on the Waldo pike and was alone, when suddenly he was struck on the head by a stone. He immediately turned around and drove to the city.

BURKE FOUND GUILTY OF SELLING WHISKY

Is Fined $150 and the Costs of Prosecution.

WILL CARRY MATTER TO A HIGHER COURT

Is Given Until August 3 To File a Bill of Exceptions—Mayor Huff, of Prospect, Gives Decision in the State Against Edward J. Burke, Tuesday.

The trial of Edward J. Burke, charged by Wilbert E. Stillwell with selling intoxicants in violation of the law, was held in the township hall at Prospect, Monday, before Mayor Huff. Burke was found guilty as charged in the indictment, fined $150, and assessed the costs in the case. A motion for a new trial was overruled, and August 3 was set as the time for filing a bill of exceptions to carry the case to the higher court.

Attorneys Frank Marriott, of Delaware, and Mooney & Moloney represented the defendant, while the prosecution was represented by J. Thompson and J. H. Clark. William Snyder and Henry Gonworth, of Wyandot county, W. E. Stillwell, Charles Brown and A. L. Bond were the witnesses called by the prosecution. Stillwell testified that, in company with Snyder and Gonworth, they visited Burke's place, April 28, and asked for a drink of liquor. He vouched for the men with him and said that no trouble would come to him, Burke, from making the sale. He said that Burke replied by saying he had ginger ale and poured it out under the bar, and the drinks served were whisky.

Gonworth and Snyder were inclined to the opinion that they were given ginger ale, but in the whole their testimony corroborated that of Stillwell. Charles Brown testified that he had purchased whisky in Burke's place. The testimony of Bond was not important.

The witnesses for the defense were Frank Donohoe, Benjamin Mosier, R. Stoll, William Regan, Michael English, Oscar McElhiney, Dallas Messenger, Michael Burke, James Drake, Edmond Molloy and William McGrath. The trend of the testimony of these witnesses was that they had seen Stillwell in Burke's place, had heard him ask for a drink of liquor and heard him refused. The trial

COMPASSION TAKEN ON AN UNFORTUNATE

Bucyrus Mayor Makes Allowance for Loss of Trip.

The Marionite who joined the Marion Steam Shovel excursionists, Saturday, but had to be taken off the train when he reached Bucyrus, because he had tried to force the breweries to put on a night shift, regained consciousness late Saturday afternoon. He seemed very much puzzled when he found himself surrounded by the blank walls of the Bucyrus hastile, but when his presence there was explained to him, he accepted his fate philosophically. He explained that he and his friends had taken a few drinks before they left Marion and that he must have lost count and taken three too many.

Considering that he had lost a whole day of pleasure at Cedar Point through his error in calculation, Mayor Songer released him without a fine. He went back home on the returning excursion train and is probably today telling what fun he had at Cedar Point.—Bucyrus Telegraph.

S. H. KING DIES IN SALT ROCK TOWNSHIP

He Reaches the Age of Eighty-Two Years.

SPENDS ENTIRE LIFE IN THE TOWNSHIP

Mr. King Is for Many Years a Prominent Farmer and Stock Breeder. His Record as a Hunter—The Deceased Leaves an Aged Widow and Two Grown Children.

S. H. King, eighty-two years old, died on the farm on which he was born, raised and spent his entire life in Salt Rock township, Monday afternoon. He was probably the oldest native born resident of Marion county. Death was due to Bright's disease and complications.

Mr. King was born June 5, 1827. He inherited from his father forty-two acres, the old home place, to which he added over 100 acres. His widow, to whom he was married November 7, 1850, survives him.

During his active days on the farm, Mr. King was largely engaged in the grain and stock business. He was one of the largest sheep breeders of the county.

Politically, the deceased was a Republican and served several terms as justice of the peace and filled other township offices. He was an ardent hunter a number of years. While on a hunting trip in Michigan in 1881 he killed eighty-nine deer and in the fall of 1882, in addition to a lot of

APPOINTMENTS CREATE GOSSIP

Representative Fowler Is To Be Shelved.

Will No Longer Head Banking and Currency Committee—Weeks To Get the Postoffice Committee Because of His Opposition to Postal Savings Banks—Cooper Saves His Chairmanship Through Taft.

Washington, Aug. 5.—It is expected that Speaker Cannon will announce his committee assignments today, and that they will not be altogether satisfactory is manifested by gossip heard about the house chamber.

The selection which is expected to cause a great deal of comment and, incidentally, considerable concern, is the designation of Representative Weeks of Massachusetts to be chairman of the committee on postoffices and postroads.

It is understood that Mr. Weeks does not favor the postal savings bank proposition, and that his attitude with regard to that legislation, which was proposed and recommended by George Von L. Meyer of Massachusetts, formerly postmaster general, has had some influence with Mr. Cannon in selecting Mr. Weeks for the head of the postoffice committee.

NIGHT WATCHMAN CAUGHT PEEPING

A Logan Gas Company Employe at Mansfield Is Shot.

Mansfield, O., Aug. 5.—John Them, twenty-four, night watchman for the Logan Gas company, was shot and probably fatally injured last night. Ed C. Smith is held by the police pending an investigation.

Them staggered to the office of Dr. Stevens, where it was found that a twenty-two caliber bullet had entered the abdomen above his left hip. He said that he had been shot by a man whom he encountered in an alley in the rear of the gas office.

Smith says he was awakened by a noise outside his bed-room window, and saw a man looking into the room. The man was frightened away twice, but returned. As he was peering into the window of an adjoining room, in which Smith's sister-in-law, Miss Hazel Greenlee, was preparing to retire, Smith shot at him with a Winchester rifle. Smith then reported the incident to the police. When Them's injury was reported, Smith was taken into custody.

LOST WITH 300 SOULS ABOARD

STEAMSHIP IS NOW NINE DAYS OVERDUE

On a Trip Which Is Only of Two Days' Duration.

It Is Believed That She Went Down in a Cyclone Which Sweeps the South African Coast—Under Orders from the British Admiralty, Two Warships Have Been Despatched To Search for Her.

Capetown, Aug. 5.—Under orders from the British admiralty, two warships were despatched today to search for the steamship, Waratah, carrying 300 passengers, which is now nine days overdue in her trip from Durban to Capetown.

The trip requires only two days, and it is considered almost certain that the Waratah went down in the cyclone that swept the coast the second day she was out.

This belief is strengthened by the fact that no incoming ship reports seeing any disabled vessel or wreckage from such a ship.

Hunting for Survivors.

Capetown, Aug. 5.—Rescue parties are today searching the coast near here for the survivors of the steamship, Maori, from New Zealand, which sank near here last evening. It is not known how many got off in lifeboats, but it is feared that the death list may be heavy.

NOT DELUSIONS ON THAW'S PART

THAW'S BELIEF IS BASED ON FACTS

Offers Testimony of Carvalho to That Effect.

The Handwriting Expert Testifies Strongly in Behalf of the Alleged Insane Prisoner—The Thaws Are Pleased Over the Showing Being Made and Harry Is of the Opinion That He Will Be Discharged.

Court-House, White Plains, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Substantial evidence that Harry Thaw's belief in the practices of Stanford White toward young girls was based on fact, and is not, therefore, the delusion of a diseased brain, was introduced into the habeas corpus proceedings today by David N. Carvalho, the noted handwriting expert.

The state's alienists have declared that a belief based on fact is not a delusion and therefore not paranoia, and Thaw's attorney dealt sledge hammer blows at the paranoia by getting in evidence, through Carvalho, a packet of letters from White to "Sue Parker," who made affidavit that she had been lured to "Eagle's Nest" by White and there ruined.

The Thaw family believes that if it can be shown Thaw's belief was based on fact, they can free him, and they were enthusiastic when the letters were allowed to be introduced as lured her to his place, "Eagle's Nest," plied her with wine and assaulted her. The woman's letters from White and her affidavit, Carvalho said, were finally bought from the woman by Thaw's lawyers for $500. Carvalho identified the letters in court as copies of the originals. These were offered in evidence, and Jerome discovered that only sixty of them were on hand, though there should have been sixty-eight.

Delusions Not Delusions.

Jerome, on cross-examination, attacked the character of the Parker woman, and Carvalho admitted that none of the letters contained any reference to the assault on her. Carvalho reiterated that Thaw had told him that White had treated "May" with the utmost consideration as long as he thought she was a bad woman, but that when he discovered she was not, he assaulted her.

Under redirect examination, Carvalho said the Parker girl's story impressed him as true because of the way she told it.

Jerome failed to destroy the foundation that Carvalho had laid to show that Thaw's alleged "delusions" were not delusions, but facts.

PROTEST AGAINST ANY INTERFERENCE

Permanent Peace Can Be Reached in No Other Way—Action of the Government in Closing the Saloons Is Generally Applauded, Scores of Saloon-Keepers Who Violated Order Are Punished.

Stockholm, Aug. 5.—Sweden began to feel the paralyzing grip of the strike today when the saloon union joined the movement. Already shipping is seriously affected and by tonight, when every member of the union will probably be out, a complete tie-up in Swedish waters will result.

Another alarming feature developed today in the decision of the strike committee to call out all printers and railroad employes. The railway men had previously decided not to strike, and it is not known what response they will make to the committee's demands.

The printers will undoubtedly obey the order, and all newspapers will have to suspend. Traffic is at a standstill in the city, as but few street cars and cabs are running, the employes in both lines having joined the strike.
